New York City Called On to Take $1,334,082,400, Over 74 Per Cent. of Whole District.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—President Wilson called on Secretary Lansing at the State Department this morning for a conference which is believed to have been related to the speech the President will deliver tomorrow night in New York City in the Metropolitan Opera House, when the $6,000,000,000 Liberty Loan campaign will be inaugurated.

This speech will serve not only as a slogan for the great bond campaign, but as a keynote for the nation in its attitude toward the war, which is to be pushed as vigorously as possible with a view to winning a complete victory over Germany and without attention being paid by the President to the political peace offensive that has been inaugurated by the Central Powers.

It was the general opinion here tonight that the President's speech might be taken as a reply to the speech of Imperial Chancellor von Hertling before the Main Committee of the Reichstag in which the German statesman professed to have placed himself in fundamental agreement with President Wilson's peace principles. But whether the President will make direct allusion to the Hertling speech could not be ascertained tonight. The President had previously, in his Baltimore speech, replied to a similar statement made by the Chancellor on Feb. 25 last.

On that date the German Chancellor declare in the Reichstag that he could "fundamentally agree" with the four principles laid down by the President and that peace could be declared on such a basis. Meanwhile, Germany and Austria had forced the signing of peace treaties which wrested vast areas from Russia, under the guise of establishing independent kingdoms and republics in voluntary association with Germany, and from Rumania under the pretext of restoration and frontier rectifications.

President Wilson directed attention to this vital difference between German words and German deeds in an address on the anniversary of America's entrance into the war, delivered at Baltimore on April 6. His answer to what Chancellor von Hertling has just said in reiteration of his previous declaration that he was in fundamental agreement with the four principles laid down by President Wilson, does not, as a matter of fact, call for an answer now, as it was taken care of by President Wilson in his Baltimore speech.

Nevertheless, the President may find it convenient to reiterate in stronger words his declaration of April 6 at Baltimore, when he said:

"Her (Germany's) statesmen have said that they wished peace and were ready to discuss its terms whenever their opponents were willing to sit down at the conference table with them. Her present Chancellor (von Hertling) has said—in indefinite and uncertain terms, indeed, and in phrases that often seem to deny their own meaning, but with as much plainness as he deemed prudent—that he believed that peace should be based upon the principles which we had declared would be our own in the final settlement. At Brest-Litovsk her civilian delegates spoke in similar terms. * * * But action accompanied and followed the profession. Their military masters, the men who act for Germany and exhibit her purpose in executing, proclaimed a very different conclusion. We cannot mistake what they have done—in Russia, in Finland, in the Ukraine, in Rumania."

The President will go to New York tomorrow morning. He will remain in New York tomorrow night and return to Washington Saturday morning.

Did Foe Expect a Tea Party With Us, Asks Mr. Gompers

PARIS, Sept. 26.—"I see that a German official announcement says we are the most bellicose of all," said Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, at a luncheon at the American Club this afternoon.

"Well," Mr. Gompers continued, "what did we get into it for? Did they expect to have a tea party, with us as the invited guest?

"Those who have lived by the sword must be destroyed by the sword. I do not regret that the war has come, for never otherwise could the democratic nations have become so thoroughly united."

Mr. Gompers's speech was received with outbursts of applause. His war aims were characterized by Walter Berry, former Judge of the International Court of First Instance at Cairo, as "the Gompers peace, which is inevitable."

FILIBUSTER HALTS SUFFRAGE VOTE

RACE QUESTION ARISES

Senator Williams of Mississippi Moves to Bar Negro Women from Voting in the South.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Owing to a filibuster of the suffrage supporters, the Senate today failed to reach a vote on the Susan B. Anthony Amendment to the Constitution. All day the debate went on, with the anti-suffrage Senators eagerly awaiting the vote, quite confident that they would be able to win.

Toward the end of the day, Senator Wadsworth of New York, an ardent opponent of woman suffrage, demanded to know of Senator Jones of New Mexico, Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Committee, if the suffrage advocates were not trying to hold back a vote until Saturday in the hope of mustering enough support to save themselves from defeat. Senator Jones avoided making a direct reply. Later the Senate abruptly adjourned until tomorrow, when the suffrage fight will come up again.

Tonight suffrage leaders in the Senate are hoping for the return to the Capital of Senator Johnson of California and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, whose votes they need to help put the amendment through. But even with these two votes, the opponents of suffrage insist that the resolution will not pass. Senator Martin of Virginia and Senator Underwood of Alabama, Democrats, with Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, and Senator Wadsworth of New York, Republicans, who are leading the opposition, confidently claim at least thirty-three Senators will vote against the amendment. If they do, the resolution is doomed.

The suffrage leaders engaged themselves at intervals during the day in making frantic polls of the Senate. Senators Shaffroth, Democrat, of Colorado, and Smoot, Republican, of Utah sat in a corner of the Senate chamber every hour or so making up a list. But they were never quite able to count the necessary two-third required to adopt the amendment.

Drew Surprises Suffragists.

One shock to the suffrage supporters was the announcement of Senator Drew of New Hampshire, successor to the late Senator Gallinger, that he would vote with the opponents of the resolution. He had been counted upon to vote in favor of it

Senator Gore of Oklahoma made a hurried trip from the West to vote for the amendment, while Senator McLean of Connecticut, a bitter anti-suffragist, spread gloom among the suffragists by appearing at the Capitol for the first time in weeks.

The energetic suffrage leaders kept the telephone and telegraph wires active during the day trying to get supporters back to the capital. While all this was going on, the foes of the measure sat back, calmly awaiting the vote that never came.

As the situation stands to-night, the anti-suffrage leaders believe that, if the vote is taken on Saturday, the amendment will be defeated. The suffrage proponents, however, insist that when their full strength is in the Senate they will have the master hand. Pressure from the White House, it was said tonight, might be sought to win over recalcitrant Democrats.

The Senate galleries were jammed throughout the day by women, the majority of whom were suffragists. They brought their luncheon and knitting with them. The suffragists were

INFLUENZA STOPS FLOW TO THE CAMPS OF DRAFTED MEN

Crowder Cancels Calls for 142,000, Due to Prevalent Epidemic.

REPORT 6,139 NEW CASES

Disease Reaches Two New Camps, Leaving Only 13 Now Free from Contagion.

AILMENT CLASSIFIED HERE

Health Department Announces That It Is an Epidemic Pneumonia and Is Infectious.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Because of epidemics of Spanish influenza in army camps, Provost Marshal General Crowder tonight canceled calls for the entrainment between Oct. 7 and 11 of 142,000 draft registrants. During the twenty-four hours ending at noon today, 6,139 new cases of influenza in army camps had been reported to the office of the Surgeon General of the army. One hundred and seventy deaths, resulting chiefly from pneumonia following influenza, and 723 new cases of pneumonia also were reported.

Two More Camps Infected.

Two camps, Kearny, California, and Eustis, Virginia, were added today to the list where influenza has made appearance, leaving only thirteen camps free from the disease. The total number of cases of influenza in all camps was placed at 35,146, with 3,036 cases of pneumonia. One out of every four men at Camp Devens, Massachusetts, has contracted influenza, it was announced, and 10 per cent. of the cases have developed into pneumonia.

In canceling the call for the entrainment of the draft registrants early next month, General Crowder acted upon instructions from General March, Chief of Staff. Every State and the District of Columbia had quotas assigned, and the men were to have gone to practically all of the camps in the country. The men probably will not be entrained until after the influenza epidemic has been checked.

It was said at the office of the Surgeon General of the army tonight that every possible precaution is being taken in all camps to check the spread of the disease, but that despite all measures it is believed the disease will run its course and probably spread to still other camps. Additional physicians and nurses have been sent to camps where the epidemic is most severe.

The greatest number of new influenza cases, 1,007, was reported today from Camp Dix. While Camp Devens reported fewer newer cases pneumonia showed an increase there, 309 new cases and 89 deaths being reported.

The stamping out of the influenza, which has extended to more than a score of army camps and many parts of the country, has been recognized by the Government as a war measure.

Medical and nursing units today were mobilized in communities where the epidemic has gained considerable headway under the general direction of a central committee representing the Public Health Service, the army, the navy, and the American Red Cross.

To Relieve Stricken Communities.

Immediate relief for the cities where influenza has gone beyond control of the local authorities will be the chief task of the committee, organized after word was received that in the East, and particularly Massachusetts, conditions were serious.

It was explained that the principal relief will be afforded by units at home, for with the possible extensive spread to other parts of the country it would not be advisable to shift nurses and physicians back and forth. Traveling medical units will be mobilized, however, through the volunteer medical service corps. The Red Cross will provide compensation, traveling expenses, and maintenance, as a war measure, and the work will be kept up until normal conditions are restored.

Home defense units will be organized with such nurses as may be spared from other duties, and each unit placed at the disposal of the central committee.

Where local funds and buildings are not available, these will be obtained by the Red Cross, which also will open emergency hospitals.

Some concern has been felt at Public Health Service headquarters over the spread of the epidemic in Massachusetts and other New England States. Steps have been taken to provide relief by the organization of nursing and medical

Iowa Regiment Lost Half Its Strength in Eight Days

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 26.—During eight days' fighting, ending Aug. 3, the 168th Infantry, Iowa's regiment in the Rainbow Division, "lost 1,460 officers and men, or about 50 per cent. of the effective conbatant strength," according to Colonel E. R. Bennett, its commander.

This information is contained in a letter from the Colonel received today by ex-Senator Lafayette Young.

Fighting in the Baccarat sector of the Lorraine front, the Iowans participated in a twelve-mile advance, the Colonel said.

BRITISH REACH SEA OF GALILEE

Tiberias and Two Other Towns Occupied by Allenby's Victorious Army.

AMMAN ALSO CAPTURED

Turk Prisoners Now Exceed 45,000 Men—Fourth Army in Serious Straits.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—British troops operating in Palestine are extending their occupation about the Sea of Galilee. They have occupied Tiberias and Semakh, on the borders of that sea, and Es-Samra. One the east of the Jordan they have occupied the strategic town of Amman, on the Hedjaz Railway.

In this region the Fourth Turkish Army is virtually surrounded. Its annihilation, now hoped for, would complete the cleaning up of the Turkish forces in Palestine, accounting for about 80,000 men. The total of prisoners already taken was increased today to 45,000.

The precarious position of the Fourth Army may be seen from the fact that Arab cavalry and infantry are north of it, Arab and British forces east of it, and British troops to the south. All these are pressing inward on the enemy, while the Jordan, with the crossings, is in the hands of the Allies.

The British casualties during the entire offensive were less than one-tenth of the number of prisoners taken from the Turks, the announcement states.

The text of the War Office statement today reads:

In the northern area our cavalry has occupied Tiberias, Semakh, and Es-Samra, on the shores of Lake Tiberias, (Sea of Galilee,) despite the determined resistance of the Turkish garrisons.

East of the Jordan our cavalry has occupied Amman on the Hedjaz railway and are in pursuit of the Turkish force, retreating northward along the railway.

Since the commencement of the operations on the night of Sept. 18 our total casualties from all causes amount to less than one-tenth of the number of prisoners captured.

One of the chief advantages of General Allenby's victory is that it will allow of large British forces from this section being used on the western front or any other place where they might be needed. Syria, with a large anti-Turk population, is open to invasion.

The communications of the Turkish Army, in Mesopotamia cannot be considered secure. It is pointed out that there is justification for believing that the Turkish operations in Persia will be paralyzed, particularly in view of the allied successes in the Balkans, which seriously threaten the Turkish position in Europe.

But it is also shown that even should the Allies push on and capture Aleppo, and cut the Bagdad railway, it would not result in Turkish evacuation of Upper Mesopotamia, and not affect the main Turkish Army in the Caucasus and Persia, which is based on the Black Sea ports.

The military critics do not fail to point out, also, that the attack in Palestine was timed to take place when the Germans were unable to spare men on the western front for the Near East.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Liberated territory in Palestine will be administered under the agreement reached between the British, French, and Russian Governments in 1916, it is learned here. England and France will carry out the

BRITISH INVADE BULGARIA

VELES CAPTURED BY SERBS

FOE'S WHOLE ARMY IN PERIL

Large Force in West Cut Off in Mountains May Have to Surrender.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Veles, twenty-five miles southeast of Uskub, (the principal railroad centre of Old Serbia,) on the Uskub-Saloniki Railroad, has been captured by the Serbians.

The fall of Ishtib, eighteen miles due east toward the Serbian border, and another valuable base, which is linked with Veles by a branch line, is also reported unofficially.

British and Greek troops forming the right wing of the allied army have invaded Bulgaria from the Doiran region. They are forcing their way over the Belachista Mountain range, while British units have crossed the border opposite Kosturino, about six miles from the Fortress of Strumnitza, which is the enemy base on this section of the front.

A British official statement from Saloniki says:

Our cavalry and infantry continue to advance into Bulgaria. The Anglo-Greeks are advancing over the steep Belachista range. The Greeks are approaching the crest of the mountains north of Lake Doiran. Our troops have reached Dzuma Obasi.

Plight of First Bulgar Army.

On the allied left the cutting at Isvor, fifteen miles north of Prilep, of the Prilep-Veles highway, the only road northward between Prilep and the Vardar River, both of which are held by the Allies, has isolated the First Bulgarian Army, under General Geshof, from its main line of communication. This places large bodies of enemy troops in an extremely dangerous position, which is rendered still more precarious by the fact that Italian cavalry has reached the road running from Prilep westward toward the Albanian frontier, which affords the only avenue of escape through the mountains, and it can be reached only by the trails through the mountainous area between.

In fact, it is pointed out that the entire Bulgarian Army, estimated to aggregate 300,000 men, is in a very dangerous position, but the victory will not be decisive, in the opinion of the military experts, until Uskub, the centre of all the enemy's communication lines, is captured. If that is accomplished, it is believed the victory will be numbered among the few decisive ones of the war.

The reports received today emphasize the demoralization of the Bulgarians, who, routed by the Serbian, French, British, Italian, Greek, and Jugoslav troops from either side of the great salient which now stretches far into Serbia, are retreating in confusion, leaving behind an enormous amount of material, and probably many thousands of prisoners, as the allied troops strain every energy to get to Uskub, and thereby make the victory complete. The renewed resistance of the Bulgarian rearguards and the arrival of German reinforcements in Macedonia have nowhere succeeded in stemming the great allied advance.

It is pointed out that prior to the beginning of this push the Allies had no great superiority in numbers, and that they face a stupendous task in maintaining communications through the fifty miles they have penetrated. Some of this country is extremely rough.

Even should the Allies not take Uskub, or if there should be some other development which would prevent the making of the victory a decisive one, the experts believe that the Bulgarians have suffered so heavily in men and material that it is doubtful if the Section A—This morning northwest of Verdun, the First Army attacked the enemy on a front of twenty miles and penetrated his lines to an average depth of seven miles.

Pennsylvania, Kansas, and Missouri troops, serving in Major Gen. Liggett's corps, stormed Varennes, Montblainville, Vauquois, and Cheppy, after stubborn resistance.

Troops of other corps, crossing the Forges Brook, captured the Bois de Forges and wrested from the enemy the towns of Malancourt, Bethincourt, Montfaucon, Quisy, Nantillois, Zeptzarges, [Septsarges?] Dannevoux, and Gercourt-et-Drillancourt.

The prisoners thus far reported number over 5,000.

Germans Copied French Tactics But Gouraud Outwitted Them

"Elastic Defense" Failed When French Took Advantage of Weak Defense in Frontal Area to Advance Their Lines Without Opposition—Feint at Moronvillers Also Deceived Foe.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH GENERAL GOURAUD'S ARMY, Sept. 26.—"Our first impressions are excellent," was the summary of available news of today's operations of General Gouraud's army in the gigantic battle given to me by the General himself at his headquarters. That means that not only have the opening movements of the infantry been successful, but that the conditions of the preliminary bombardment compare more than favorably with the German artillery preparation for the offensive in the same region on July 15.

Whereas then the French knew the exact hour of the attack and were able to begin counter preparation with disastrous effect upon the German infantry massed in waiting a full hour before the German shell storm broke, the reply made by the enemy today was exceedingly feeble and grew weaker as the engagement progressed.

On the main sector of the attack between the Suippes Valley and the western side of the Argonne, the enemy was evidently expecting an offensive movement, as General Gouraud learned yesterday that the Germans were attempting to apply his own tactics of depth defense that proved so effective in July, by withdrawing from the frontal area which constituted the "outpost zone."

The General immediately sent forward skirmishers, who corroborated the news, with the double result that, unlike the enemy in July, the French gunners did not waste projectiles upon empty targets, and, secondly, that the infantry were able to move forward to make the first bound from a point considerably nearer the main line of defense than had been expected. The foe's strategy had reacted against himself.

The enemy made another costly miscalculation, as he seems to have expected the weight of the French drive to come against the strong massif of Moronvillers, where, in fact, Gouraud only feinted. Here were concentrated great numbers of German batteries, the fire of which was as violent as it was useless.

I spent last night on a high plateau behind the centre of the front of the attack on the spot where Gouraud had watched the bombardment start at 11 P. M. As far as the eye could see the northern sky was split up with flashes that winked out continuously along the whole line. Nearly all were the sudden, broad glare of French "departures." But now and then a tiny triangle of light marked the explosion of a German "arrival."

Right ahead a crimson glow now rising high above the horizon, now scarcely distinguishable, told of a huge German munition dump that blazed for three long hours. Others of less extent broke out in many directions.

At brief intervals a white star shell or colored rocket would soar up from a German position. One could well imagine the desperate plight of some German commander as he called in vain for his own artillery to protect him against the inferno of destruction.

As the bombardment swelled in volume toward the dawn, the words "drum fire" exactly expressed the sound. All night the air had been filled with an enormous and irregular tumult, in which the deep drone of the allied aircraft passing, as it seemed, in an unbroken stream, to add their part to the work of destruction seemed the leif motif of the cannon's thundersong.

But when the climax came it was like nothing so much as the roll of a titanic drum, explosion so thick upon explosion that no separate sound could be distinguished.

The success developed as the day advanced. I took luncheon with General Gouraud and his staff, who were all radiant. They emphasized the importance of the victory, which in a few hours overcame, without the use of tanks, whose value would have been diminished by the broken character of the ground and the traps the Germans laid for them, positions fortified during a long period with every art of war known to the enemy.

Over thirty, one behind another, had been detected by air photographs with all the accompanying barbed wire entanglements, at a speed hardly inferior to that of the Franco-American progress over unprepared ground in the battle of July 18.

As far as can be judged, the enemy has tried to refuse battle along the whole front, which accounts for the comparatively limited number of prisoners reported in the first hours, but the French are not to be denied and as the attack is pressed home captures of men and material increase and are beginning to include battalion commanders and other superior officers. Could better proof be required of the all important superiority of the Allies in morale than that the enemy should thus yield positions so strong and so long held?

It was a thrilling moment for the assailants when they first entered the old German lines.

"The poilus cheered and rushed on with redoubled energy," said an officer who had taken part in the attack. "For them it was a decisive proof of success. They cried 'Now we've got the boche on the run!' and after that the difficulty was to hold them back at all."

The operations are facilitated by splendid weather. The sky suddenly cleared last night at the exact hour the bombardment started, and today the sun is shining in blue unflecked by clouds.

The work of the aerial artillery observers was somewhat hampered this morning by a dense mist in the valleys, but by 9 o'clock the conditions for air work were ideal, and the aviators are making most of the advantage. The reaction of the Ger-

AMERICANS GO ON AT NIGHT

Pennsylvania, Kansas, and Missouri Troops Defeat the Prussian Guards.

LIGGETT'S CORPS IN THE VAN

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 26, 9 P. M.—The First American Army attacked this morning between the Meuse and the Aisne Rivers on a front of twenty miles, smashing through the Hindenburg line for an average gain of seven miles.

The line now runs roughly through the Forges Forest and Nantillois to the Meuse River.

The prisoners counted thus far number 5,000.

The infantry started north at 5:30 o'clock, after three hours of intense artillery preparation.

The brunt of the attack in the centre fell to the corps commanded by Major Gen. Hunter Liggett.

Troops from Kansas, Pennsylvania, and Missouri stormed, despite the stubborn resistance of the Prussian Guard, the towns of Varennes, Montblainville, Vauquois, and Cheppy.

The tanks did stout work at Varennes.

Our airplanes had full supremacy.

Tonight the troops are pressing forward beyond the old German defense line.

Malancourt, Bethincourt, Montfaucon, and Dannevoux have been taken.

Surprised the Enemy.

The least busy portion of the army today was the Hospital Service, which had practically nothing to do, despite the size of the drive.

This second effort of America's First Army came just two weeks after the beginning of the successful stroke at the St. Mihiel salient. There is little doubt that General Foch and General Pershing surprised the German command.

It is known that the enemy expected the attack on the St. Mihiel sector and had rushed new troops there.

At 11:30 o'clock last night our artillery began heavy work east of the Meuse, and this was followed by strong raids. Meanwhile, at 2:30 this morning the artillery work for our real attack began and was followed just three hours later by the start of the infantry.

Our young soldiers left the trenches, scarred by four years of war, and started north over the war rocked No Man's Land on an enterprise which had proved so costly to other allied efforts. A few hundred yards took them into the first line of the Hindenburg series of defenses. This was taken at 7 o'clock.

By 9 o'clock the second line had been taken, and by noon our troops had passed the whole Hindenburg line ahead of schedule.

Before noon I was able to go up the Aire valley beyond the masses of masonry, walls, and concrete dugouts and gun positions on which the enemy had worked so long.

The foe had long ago mined the roads, which were blown up ahead of us. I crawled around one of these holes, which was 150 feet in diameter and sixty feet deep.

Many Troops Never in Battle Before.

By midday our engineers were bridging this and blowing up masonry walls across the roads further ahead.

Many villages looked like abodes of departed spirits, the crumbling walls being covered with moss. The villages along the front north of Verdun were blown to pieces when the enemy tried so hard to take the French citadel.

Many of our troops had never been in battle before, and while they were ready for anything they were elated beyond words by their initial success against what they believed the strongest of positions.

Farther on the resistance increased, machine gun nests being found. In dealing with these the American tanks did fine work, climbing in and out shell holes with remarkable agility. One tank was credited with taking seventy prisoners.

Back of the Hindenburg line one found ample evidence of havoc wrought by our artillery. Knowing the locations of the German masses of artillery, we gassed them heavily.

Prisoners were taken within half hour after the advance started. It appeared that the Germans took the notice of our artillery preparation at its face value and began a withdrawal, leaving behind large numbers of machine gunners, who did not do the usual good work.

Many prisoners whom I saw today were machine gunners.

We captured large numbers of machine guns and considerable material, which has not yet been counted.

Pinched Out Strong Positions.

The success of our troops in taking formidable positions in the Argonne forest and the forest of Montfaucon is a tribute to our methods. Instead of taking these positions frontally, we pinched them out.

This time our attack was not made on a salient, but straight against the Hindenburg line.

Reports tonight indicate that the battle continues to develop very favorably.

Large Number of Guns Taken.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE CHAMPAGNE FRONT, Sept. 26, (Associated Press.)—The assumption of the General Staff that the Germans had not discovered the intention of the Americans to attack was proved by the earlier phases of the fighting.

Apparently dazed by the suddenness and ferocity of the artillery preparation, the German artillery reaction was slow in being registered. It never recovered its balance.

From the minute the Americans swarmed forward the inferiority of the enemy resistance was marked. Early this morning the enemy had laid down artillery fire, calculated to cover a local raid. That incident was quickly forgotten in the magnitude of the operations that followed.

One division reports the capture of twenty 77 guns and plentiful supplies of ammunition. The check on the amount of booty has not yet been taken, but every report indicates that the amount of it will be large.

Officer prisoners show that there was much enemy perplexity as to the exact point of attack, but say they were aware that one was impending.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Franco-American attacks begun early this morning on a 50-mile front extending westward from the Meuse, north of Verdun to Auberive, on the River Suippe, east of Rheims, are continuing satisfactorily, according to the War Office announcement tonight.

French troops have made an advance of nearly four miles at certain points west of the Argonne forest.

According to the latest unofficial reports reaching Paris, the American advance is progressing well and is already five to six miles from the point of departure. Among the places taken are Gercourt, Cuisy, Montfaucon, Cheppy, and Varennes, all northwest of Verdun.

General Gouraud's progress has also been good, his troops having occupied all the enemy's first line.

The Germans, anticipating the attack, seemingly had withdrawn a portion of their forces.

The day official statement from the War Office announcing the attack says:

This morning at 5 o'clock French troops attacked on the Champagne front, in co-operation with the American army operating further to the east.

The night report reads:

Storming Franco-American troops, in close contact, carried out an attack on both sides of the Argonne. The operations continue satisfactorily.

Petain Directs French Drive.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE CHAMPAGNE FRONT, Sept. 26, (Associated Press.)—The French troops attacked the German positions in the Champagne from Auberive to the Main de Massiges this morning about 5 o'clock, and carried their first objectives without much opposition, except on the left, where rather stiff fighting was required.

By 9 o'clock General Gouraud's troops had taken Servon, which had been in German hands since 1914, and were in possession of the Main de Massiges, Butte du Mesnil, and Navarin Farm.

The operation, which was personally directed by General Petain, recalls in some of its features the first battle of Champagne, of which yesterday was the anniversary. General Petain was then, as now, in command, and the direction of the attack was the same, but the means available for the attack then were less in proportion to the material obstacles to be overcome.

The developments today resembled also those of the second battle of Champagne in July. Then General Gouraud skillfully parried the great German thrust by drawing his infantry back out of range of the artillery, leaving his own guns in position to inflict smarting losses on the advancing infantry. It is learned from prisoners that the Germans were imitating General Gouraud in retiring their infantry from the first line, but that is as far as they profited from Gouraud's lesson. Their artillery went back with the infantry.

German Gunfire Weak.

The reaction against General Gouraud's artillery preparation was feeble. The French guns, heavy and light, opened fire at 11 o'clock last evening, and for six hours the front of the attack was clearly defined, a long line of bright flashes lighting the fog and the sky, with here and there a steady glow from burning dumps of munitions and supplies behind the German lines.

The glare of the bursting German shells could be seen from time to time between the flashes of the French guns, until about 4 o'clock, when the foe artillery reaction practically ceased.

French aviators, favored by bright moonlight, co-operated with the artillery by bombing the enemy's positions and attacking his troops with quick-firers.

After six hours' artillery preparation, the last hours of which developed an intense drumfire, French infantry bounded out of the trenches in a thick, gray fog, which furnished the best possible camouflage for crossing the low ground and ravines to the slopes of the heights where most of the formidable German positions were to be stormed.

The abandonment by the Germans of powerful positions that they had not ceased to strengthen from the time they occupied them reveals a state of nervousness, symptoms of which have appeared at different points along the front during the last month. This is taken more as a confession of weakness than a tactical measure.

Line Not Broken, Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 26, (via London.)—The attacks by Franco-American troops, launched on a wide front this morning in Champagne and between the Argonne Forest and the Meuse River, have not succeeded in breaking the German front, according to the German official communication issued this evening. The battle began after artillery preparation lasting eleven hours and the fighting continues.

The text of the communication reads:

In Champagne and between the Argonne and the Maas (German for Meuse) Franco-American attacks have commenced on a wide front after eleven hours of artillery preparation.

An enemy break-through has been frustrated. The fight for our positions continues.

GERMANS BURN 30 VILLAGES.

Retreating Foe Leaves Devastation —Boys of 1920 Class Taken.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE CHAMPAGNE FRONT, Sept. 26, (Associated Press.)—Troops of the French Army, operating in conjunction with the Americans in the new battle along the Champagne front, have today conquered positions that the Germans have been fortifying for four years and which they have sacrificed thousands of men to hold. The French losses have been remarkably light in spite of the fact that the German resistance stiffened this afternoon.

General Gouraud's soldiers, who advanced to those positions three years ago and have been facing them ever since, are now enjoying a peculiar satisfaction in being in them.

In the battle of Champagne in 1915, the taking of these positions would have demanded a sacrifice that the strategic advantage to be gained then did not warrant. The situation is changed now. Successive blows administered to the Germans on different parts of the front give a different meaning to the attack.

The number of prisoners taken by the French is increasing steadily. They are filing back by all roads in groups from a score to several hundred. Among them there is a larger proportion of very young men than heretofore taken. Some of the captives are recruits of the 1920 contingent.

They are leaving behind them scores of burning villages. Thirty had been observed in flames up to noon today. Even this additional and unjustifiable devastation can scarcely add to the desolation that has been spread all over this sharply disputed ground.

The ridges are covered thickly with shell holes that touch each other everywhere. All vestiges of vegetation long ago disappeared, the surface of the ground giving the impression that it must have been reduced to a state of mud violently churned and then left to dry. The ground is crossed and criss-crossed in every direction by trenches that have been blown out of shape.

A feature of today's operations was the activity of the enemy airmen, who engaged in spectacular encounters with French observation balloons and anti-aircraft artillery. White puffs from the French shrapnel were seen everywhere over the field.

FOE'S AISNE ATTACKS FAIL.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Renewed German attacks north of the Aisne have been repulsed. At one point, where the Germans gained a foothold in the French positions, they were ejected by a counterattack.

The War Office statement on these operations reads:

Between the Ailette and the Aisne the Germans renewed their attacks last evening in the region of Allemant and Moulin-Laffaux. The enemy succeeded at the latter point in penetrating the French lines, but an energetic counterattack by the French re-established the situation.

Further south the French have enlarged their gains east of Sancy and have taken prisoners.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—News of unexpected offensive by General Gouraud's army in Champagne, in combination with American troops, to the east, reached Paris from unofficial sources during the morning, and spread through the city. It was what Paris had been waiting for since July 18, when Gouraud, after secretly falling back on his second line two days before, led the whole German force in front of his army into a colossal trap, and with dramatic suddenness brought what was to have been a victorious German army within a stone's throw of disaster.

Since then Gouraud's men have been waiting like hounds in leash for the word from Foch that should launch them once more at the enemy.

The news so far is extremely scanty, and gives little information beyond the bald facts contained in the communiqué. It is understood, however, that this offensive is being made jointly by Gouraud's army in the Champagne, Americans, and part of Castelnau's armies.

The name of Castelnau, which is on every lip in Paris this afternoon, is synonymous with victory in any part of the long battle front that lies between Verdun and Epinal. It was Castelnau, who, in 1914, by his victory at the Grand Couronne, in front of Nancy, snatched triumph from the hands of the German Emperor himself, who was there in person to witness the success of the heir to the crown.

Castelnau's victory there was the first step in a series of events that brought about the crowning miracle of the Marne. With Castelnau in command of any section of the offensive, especially on the eastern border, there is not a French soldier engaged but will fight with assurance of victory.

This veteran soldier, who stands in a group of three or four over whom Paris disputes as to which may most justly be styled the greatest French commander, has lost three of his five sons in this war. Two fell while fighting under their father's command.

One of the most moving personal incidents of the war occurred when the news of the death of one of them, who fell almost at his father's feet, was brought to Castelnau, who forced himself to continue directing the battle, in spite of the burden of his grief.

Not long ago, while chatting with Castlenau, Premier Clemenceau asked him what he intended to do with himself after the war.

"I shall weep over the graves of my sons," replied the stern old soldier, sadly. The "Tiger" wrung the hand of the stricken father, and turned away, with tears in his eyes.

BRITISH CAPTURE 1,500 WEST OF ST. QUENTIN

Trenches and Strong Posts Close to the Hindenburg Line Are Taken.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Two British divisions have captured in the last few days a German system of trenches and strong points northwest of St. Quentin, with 1,500 prisoners, according to the War Office announcement tonight. There were only minor encounters today. Enemy strong points in the neighborhood of Selency and Gricourt were taken.

North of Gricourt, on the St. Quentin sector, the British repulsed German counterattacks.

In Flanders the British line has likewise been advanced, progress having been made in the sector north of La Bassée.

The night statement from the War Office reads:

Except for encounters between raiding parties and patrols on different parts of the front, in the course of which we captured a few prisoners, there is nothing of special interest to report.

In the last few days the 1st and 6th Divisions of the 9th Corps, under command of Lieut. Gen. Sir W. P. Braithwaite, captured by hard fighting, but at small cost, an intricate system of trenches, strong points, woods, and villages northwest of St. Quentin, with over 1,500 prisoners.

In these operations the enemy has delivered many counterattacks in strength, all of which have been repulsed by the troops concerned with great gallantry and determination.

The day official statement says:

Local operations were continued successfully yesterday afternoon and during the night northwest of St. Quentin. English troops progressed and captured certain strongly defended localities in the neighborhood of Selency and Gricourt, together with a number of prisoners.

In addition to the counterattacks already reported which were launched by the enemy yesterday northwest of Fayet, his troops twice attacked the positions north of Gricourt. These attacks were unsuccessful.

A successful minor operation was carried out yesterday by English troops northwest of La Passee, as the result of which the line was advanced and over 100 prisoners were taken. A counterattack launched by the enemy in this locality during the night was repulsed and several prisoners were left in our hands.

We improved our positions slightly yesterday and during the night northwest of Armentières. In patrol encounters and raids between Armentières and Ypres we captured several prisoners.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 26, (Reuter's.)—On the long stretch of front upon which the British forces have approached within eye range of the Hindenburg line the combing out of enemy posts is continuing. In addition, a little fresh ground in this region has been gained in the last twenty-four hours, improving the tenure of the British.

Last evening, after a sharp bout at bombing and bayonetting, the British took a trench of some length—a section of a somewhat formidable line. By sundown they had worked through Selency to the neighborhood of Chateau Wood.

Between that point and Fayet the Germans delivered several counterattacks without achieving any results. These minor affairs gave the British prisoners whose number runs to three figures, and a good haul of machine guns and small arms.

Unless indications are fallacious, it may well prove that, just as Gouraud's triumphant resistance of July 15 put an end to the German offensive period at high water mark, his attack of today may form an epoch in the war by introducing the commencement of a German débâcle.

FAILED TO DELAY FRENCH.

How the German Attempt at Depth Defense Reacted.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN CHAMPAGNE, Sept. 26.—As was to be expected, the enemy learned something from the lesson that General Gouraud administered to him on July 15. But to recognize the new fashion of an elestic defense is one thing; to practice it with anything like the spirit of Gouraud's army is quite another matter.

Anticipating a grand attack, German divisions between Nogent l'Abesse and the Argonne yesterday evacuated their advanced lines, leaving only small posts of machine gunners and flemenwerfers to fight delaying actions therein. When this report of prisoners and deserters reached the French staff, patrols were sent out and, the fact being verified, artillery preparation was advanced to the real zone of resistance.

The difference between the German experience of today and that of the French on July 15 was at once manifest. In July Gouraud had received information of the exact time when the German attack would be made. He, therefore, was able to anticipate it with a heavy fire on the German batteries as well as on the infantry positions.

The German fire during the French preparation, which began at 11 o'clock last night, was very feeble, and when the assault began at about 5:30 this morning, it was not very heavy.

The artillery preparation, when in full play, painted a band of flame for forty miles across the low hills and flats of Southern Champagne. High above the angry blaze and shaking turmoil of this convulsion of our old planet the half moon rode calmly over the zenith amid her train of stars, and a cold wind gave a prelude to Winter. Spectral regiments of dwarf fir trees emerged and disappeared in floating tides of thin white mist, suitably weird scenery for such a drama.

The always dismal and now long warworn solitudes of Gouraud's front are for the third time riven with the thunders and lightnings of a vast and critical battle. Three long years have passed since I waded through the trenches and climbed the crests won in the first great French offensive.

It is again the same battlefield of open moors, chalk slopes, and shattered plantations, but all the old horrors are mutilated, perhaps three or four fold, by the crash of high explosives, the depth of the wire mazes, and the network of trenches. The numbers of men engaged cannot be very different, but they carry new weapons and are supported by terrible forces hardly dreamed of three years ago.

The first news that comes in from the moving front is highly satisfactory, but we are in too early a stage of the action for any sweeping estimates.

On the French right Servon has been occupied. This part of the Aisne Valley is marshy and, moreover, dominated by high ground held by the enemy on either side. For this reason Servon had remained in hostile lines for four years.

Next westward one of the French divisions has cleared the remaining northern portion of the hand of Massiges, a very important massif which gives command of the Dormoise Valley.

The French centre has been carried forward in contact with the main enemy positions on Mesnil and Tahure hills, and the site of Navarin Farm, famous in the fighting of three years ago, has been captured in an advance of about two and a half miles.

Everywhere the advance continues, and news from the American forces, which are extending the offensive between the Argonne and Verdun, is cheering.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY, Sept. 26.—Bombing encounters, German attempts to raid the British outposts here and there, a forward movement of the British into the enemy trenches and counterattacks on our new positions west of Fayet on the right of the line are episodes of yesterday's strife along the British front. North of La Bassée, some of the troops captured 100 prisoners and advanced their line.

The British now hold the road east of Silency, near St. Quentin, for which there have been fierce struggles this week, and they seem to have captured the whole of that old system of earthworks called the Quadrilateral near Fayet, where German machine gunners fought from their intrenchments with stubborn courage. German counterattacks from the direction of Fayet were repulsed with the usual price on their side for unsuccessful efforts. Some more of their dead and wounded must be added to the sum of their colossal casualties, and their raids had little luck.

These raids are for the ursual purpose, to grab living men from whom the German intelligence officers, who know their jobs, hope to get small facts which they can fit together, and so build up a reasonable theory as to the future British plans. Much of their anxiety seems to be concentrated on the Hindenburg line, to which along all its length the British and the French on their right have drawn too near for the comfort of the German high command or the nerve control of the poor devils who hold it. The British are through the line at Havrincourt and broke the switch line above Queant, and German soldiers, judging from the prisoners, have no longer entire faith in its defensive strength.

As I said yesterday, the enemy hopes to hold it through the Winter, and I see that Count von Hertling, in his last speech, says they will hold it, but over the wire there came to us this morning the news of the American advance in the Argonne and each surprise attack like this weakens the resisting power of the enemy, who for some time, at least until his youngest class is out of the depots and absorbed by the divisions shattered in the recent battles, must find it very hard to gather up enough reserves to meet the menace that is all along his line.

Today the weather is bright again, with the sunshine of Summer heat, though the wind whispers of Autumn and the trees are putting on their russet dress.

Order Issued by Austrian Military Authorities Against Captured Allied Aviators.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Copies of orders found on German prisoners taken on the battlefront show that the Austrians have now given instructions for the penalty of death to be inflicted on captured aviators known to have distributed proclamations within the enemy lines. The text of an order of this kind promulgated by the Military Commander at Innsbruck, which is quoted by the L'Intransigeant this evening, runs as follows:

"Enemy airplanes landing in our lines must be absolutely prevented from getting away again. Information of landing of enemy airplanes must immediately be notified by telegram. In order that the troops, gendarmes, and civil population should work in close co-operation the local military commander should notify the fact at the same time to the military authorities at Innsbruck and Linz, to the provincial Governor of Salzbourg and to the provincial Gendarmerie Commanders.

"Further distribution of manifestos and proclamations by enemy aviators constitutes a crime against the State. Any aviator who distributes such manifestos or is even found carrying them thereby places himself outside the limits of international law and will be considered guilty of a crime punishable with death."

Another document specifies that the penalty laid down for such cases is death by hanging.

A copy of this order was published on Sept. 9 in the Allgemeine Tiroler Anzeiger.

FRANKFORT IS BOMBED BY BRITISH AIRMEN

Aerodromes at Various Points Attacked—Seven British Machines Missing.

LONDON, Sept. 26, 9 P. M.—British airplanes yesterday dropped bombs on the German City of Frankfort, according to an official statement issued this evening by the War Office. Five enemy machines were shot down. Four British airplanes are missing.

Airdromes at Buhl, twenty-five miles southwest of Karlsruhe, and Kaiserslautern, between Metz and Mannheim, have been bombed by machines of the British Independent Air Force.

Fighting took place during the expedition, with the result that two enemy machines were destroyed. Three of the British machines have not been located.

BERLIN, Sept. 26, (via London).—Allied airmen lost seven airplanes in an attack on Frankfort-on-Main and Kaiserslautern, according to the German Headquarters statement today. The statement says:

"Seven airplanes were shot down out of enemy squadrons which attacked Frankfort-on-Main and Kaiserlautern."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 26.—"Bitter disappointment"—in these words may be summed up the impression made in Germany by ministerial speeches which on Tuesday followed each other like so many old and worn gramophone records.

"Difficulties, but still no settlement," says the Vorwärts in a front page headline.

The Pan German Lokal-Anzeiger declares "Hertling might have taken the bull by the horns and said something about parliamentarization and popular Government, about the needs of the people and the rights of the crown, but he willfully steered clear of both burning questions. The Left will not now be satisfied with mere promises, nor the Entente with well-meaning statements about a league of nations and disarmament. It cannot, therefore, be deemed appropriate that our leading statesman perseveres with arguments which in the present foreign and domestic situation must be regarded as obsolete."

The ultra Pan German Deutsche Tageszeitung decides that the present régime cannot rule and that things must not go on as they are going. The errors of German policy in peace have been far outdone, it adds, in these times of war.

No Leadership, Says Wolff.

Theodor Wolff in the Tageblatt condemns the German policy in Russia as likely to produce an irridenta everywhere there, and he points to the barrenness of the speeches.

"The attempt of the Vienna Government to shape the inert mass of Central European policy into a movement," says the mildly liberal Vossische Zeitung, "showed up vividly the stagnation of the whole situation, allowed all the neglected opportunities to be again observed, and made clear to everybody how unbearable this eternal waiting is. In an instant a crisis was there, not because something had been done wrongly, but because nothing at all had been done.

"Out of all the subsequent deliberations, including a long speech by the Chancellor regarding themes which might well be left to history, an oration like a half dozen leading articles with no words like those which a leader should use who speaks at the most serious period of our existence. There was not a single syllable of what we wanted to hear—no program, no leadership, no will."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung and other jingo organs regard the Chancellor's speech as being like crates of eggs, only good in parts. That is fairly thorough and all-round condemnation.

The Berliner Tageblatt, too, condemns as outspokenly as any Entente journal the lip service of the Chancellor and his colleagues to the idea of a league of nations, while in the next breath they declare that the Brest-Litovsk treaties must be kept intact. What the Chancellor said about Belgium arouses wrath on the Left of the Reichstag, and the Vorwärts' comment deserves to be placed on record. The Socialist organ says:

"Hertling had all the more reason to remain silent on the delicate question of Belgium because his former party colleague, Erzberger, has just in a book on the league of nations torn to pieces those well-known threadbare arguments which the Chancellor brought up again. 'Belgium,' Erzberger declares, 'preserved her neutrality in irreproachable fashion, and the wrong which has been done was done to her by Germany.'

"Against the assertion that Germany had to anticipate a French attack on Belgium, Erzberger places the statement that the French mobilization plans did not include an invasion of Belgium. As for the right of self-defense, Germany had taken upon herself an engagement, even in case of self-defense, (that is, in war,) to respect and guarantee the neutrality of Belgium. There is no sense in a neutrality guaranteed only for peace times, and when Hertling once more complains that Belgium refused Germany's demand to be allowed to march through Belgium Erzberger says effectively that Belgium had to refuse in order not to be guilty of a breach of her neutrality.

"Erzberger declares that every friend of the truth must now regard Belgium's case as clear. We do not wish to point a personal moral, but we must say definitely that if Hertling could not speak as Erzberger had done on the matter, the emphatic promptings of political wisdom suggest that he should have remained silent."

Centrists Turn from Chancellor.

The main committee of the Reichstag had two sensations yesterday. The first was a speech by Herr Groeber, the Centre party leader, in which he turned roughly on the Chancellor (more roughly, the papers say, than the official reports indicate) for the general weakness of his policy.

It is generally regarded that this utterance is an indication that the Centre party is veering round toward the Left and hopes have risen that it will possibly create a majority for a Parliamentary Government. However that may be, there can be little doubt that Hertling's days are numbered. Those who support the Socialist demand for a Parliamentary Government recognize that it is of little use to try to force a program on Hertling and that the crisis for the moment resolves itself into the question of getting rid of the Chancellor.

Negotiations are believed to be in progress between the Socialists, Progressives and Centre with the object of finding a common basis of action. It is not desired that a new program should be forced on the Crown Chancellor, but it is insisted that he must be a person with a program of his own, which includes the democratic demands.

Even the Pan-German Lokal-Anzeiger admits that Hertling is losing support on the Right of the Reichstag, and the impression is very general in Berlin that Hertling and the palsied system which he represents are doomed.

But it is also recognized that it will be a difficult matter to find a Chancellor to face the great task of reform.

The second lively episode was a very general attack delivered on the War Minister for his decrees against holding peace and franchise reform meetings. The committee managed to secure a promise that in future all such orders will be submitted to the Chancellor before being issued.

Reichstag Cold to Speeches.

In the very arrangement by which such a vast mass of oratory was hurled in one day by the German Government at the German people a sad lack of parliamentary skill and judgment was shown. Speaker after speaker rolled out long columns of dull, dreary matter which almost any one could have guessed at and prepared beforehand. The consecrated official vocabulary was used to the uttermost extent and stereotyped speeches at terrific length simply overwhelmed the main committee of the Reichstag and left it cold and completely unenthusiastic.

The Ministerial speeches were listened to in frigid silence, broken only now and then by taunts and mocking laughter from the Left. A few months ago such utterances would have "cleared the air" and won praise from the press, but things have gone too far for such a political mixture "to be effective."

The dulling effect of the day's oratory was increased by the gloomy references to the military situation made by the Chancellor and the representative of the War Office. Even Admiral von Hintze, the Foreign Secretary, that new broom at the Government masthead, completely failed to arouse anything like enthusiasm.

The press, to a very general extent, admits the confusing effect of the day's oratory. In the sea of words all that light and leading called for by the seriousness of the time is not to be discerned. Statesmanship and leadership appear to be spurlos versenkt. In short, the whole heavy, crude conglomeration of talk shows, as is recognized widely in Berlin political circles, that the Hertling Government is incapable and antiquated.

Avoided Democratization.

The Berliner Tageblatt puts its finger roughly on the point which irretrievably condemns Hertling and his colleagues. There was not the least allusion to the great question of democratization and parliamentarization. Hertling was frigid toward all the hopes which live in the hearts of the people. "Count Hertling," the Tageblatt declares, "belongs to an epoch of which, amid the thunder of cannon, the death knell sounds."

The crisis therefore remains. Although the Centre Party has for the moment thfown its shield over the Chancellor and thus prevented the formation of a Reichstag majority against the Government, various reports show that there is a strong current in the party which may bring that majority into existence at any moment.

The Socialists' six minimum conditions, fixing the nature of the Government and the policy they require, create, as the Vossische Zeitung says, a totally new situation, not only for the Government, but also for the Reichstag. A short year ago such an ultimatum would have been met with an overwhelming storm of ridicule and opposition. The astonishing thing is that today, although the centre and national liberal parties as parties are against it, a free Reichstag vote would probably produce a majority for it.

And the anger of the Pan Germans, although in cases it will be enough in sound, will be paltry as compared with that of which they were once capable. Scheidemann was not far wrong when in his speech at the meeting of his party on Monday he referred to "that cheerful development in the situation, the complete collapse of big-mouthed Pan Germanism."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung is exceedingly wrathful regarding the Socialists' demand that the Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Ludendorff should be muzzled by a parliamentary Government. That journal blames von Payer, the Vice Chancellor, for the muddle which has been reached and declares wildly that his recent speech was "a national crime which should cost him his head." But generally the Pan Germans are singing very small.

A Political Offensive.

The most important fact in the whole situation, which I think it well to emphasize, is that it is not mainly a peace offensive which is in progress. Politically, as well, Germany has been driven back to an offensive position. This crisis has not arisen chiefly out of a desire to mislead the foe. It is pretty plainly recognized in Germany at the present time that there is little or no chance of that.

The crisis arises out of two things: The first is that, after the great west front defeat, the national defense must be organized. That, it is believed, can not be done by any other than a Government of a democratic nature.

In the second place, it is clearly seen that internal conditions are such that the fatherland must be defended against something very much akin to Bolshevism. A newspaper like Germania did not without reason devote its leading articles on three successive days to the increase of Bolshevist-like opinion in Germany.

At the Socialist meeting referred to there was not a little talk of the peril of things going the same way as in Russia, and warnings that that must be prevented, hence the campaign for a Parliametary Government, hence recognition of the need for a complete change of attitude on such matters as the Brest-Litovsk treaties and Alsace-Lorraine.

The pan German Government and pan Germanism, as many signs of late have shown, are beginning to offend the weary German people's nostrils, and their temper is rising. That is the root cause of the whole crisis, and the crisis will remain till some big step forward has been taken. How effective that will be in bringing about that Germany with which alone peace can be discussed remains to be seen.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

A new blow against the Hindenburg line was struck yesterday, a blow in an entirely new and dangerous quarter, a blow which if continued may have more important results than any action fought in France since the first battle of the Marne.

This blow was between Verdun and the Argonne forest, extending somewhat beyond the forest into the Champagne. The relation between this and the Hindenburg line is in the threat to the lines of supply by which this line is maintained. It does not seem possible that the war will be decided by a series of blows against this line. Such a series of frontal attacks would be brutally expensive in men and would take years to accomplish definite results. But an attack from the front struck yesterday can be made to produce even greater results with much less expenditure of man power or of machinery. It must be admitted that the action has not yet progressed to the point where we are able to formulate any definite opinion as to its purposes or its present effects. The news which has reached us is scanty and more or less general. We do know that the front of attack was a wide one, twenty miles west of Verdun, and that the initial penetration was unusually great, seven miles. This augurs well for the future. It may be that it is not intended to push this matter beyond the point where the German resistance stiffens, the idea being merely one of the continued destruction of the German army. An opinion on this point must wait for the developments of the movement itself.

The attack took place in what is in a way the weakest section of the German line, from the eastern edge of the Argonne to the heights of the Meuse. It did, of course, extend beyond the Argonne, but this part of the operation was probably intended merely to protect the left flank of the advance, rather than to be a part of the main effort. This weakness in the German line on this front is due to the absence of lines of communications. Between Sedan and Verdun there is but one railroad which runs east and west. In other words, there is but one crossing of the Argonne, and that through the pass at Grand Pre, running from Challerange to Banzancourt, northeast of Rheims. This line follows the Aire Valley and does not go direct into Germany, but the Germans have in all probability constructed a connecting link by which the Sedan-Verdun road can be reached. Between the Aire and the Meuse then, which appears to be the main front of attack, there is not a single railroad running east and west except the possible link which Germany may have constructed.

There is a much more positive advantage in attacking here rather than in the Champagne. An attack delivered west of the Argonne has its positive limitations before it is launched. These limitations are the banks of the Aisne River. The Aisne curves about to the north between Rheims and the Argonne, forming the western boundary of the forest and making a pocket within which the fighting could take place. But when this pocket was retaken, the Allies would be stopped and the German line would generally be where it is now. But before the section of the front attacked there is nothing. The way is clear without a clearly defined obstacle. By keeping between the Aire and the Meuse, both of the attacking flanks are well guarded until Grand Pre is reached, where the Aire flows through the Argonne, and by this time the Argonne positions will be so far outflanked that some change, or readjustment of the German line will become necessary. There is, therefore, no great danger to our forces in having this bastion of strength on their left flank as they go forward. The character of the country is very much the same as is the Champagne, a gently rolling country with here and there a predominant landmark which overlooks the surrounding country. The direction of the advance is straight toward Sedan, some thirty miles off. Sedan is the most important city on this part of the front, more important, indeed, from the standpoint of communications than is Metz itself. Its capture would simply paralyze a great section of the German front in France. It is from Sedan and from Mezieres, a little further on, that the entire southern section of the German line is fed and supplied.

For many reasons it is highly desirable to get the Germans out of the Hindenburg line before Winter. The Allies facing this line are living in tents in the open where they are visible to the German airmen. The country behind them is devastated without a house or a village to be used for billets. The Germans, on the contrary, are living in concrete dugouts where at least they have a modicum of comfort. For this reason if for no other the Hindenburg line should and must be cleared. Perhaps we have just heard of the first allied step in this direction.

BRITAIN IN NO MOOD TO PERMIT STRIKES

Public Sentiment Strongly Backs the Government in Its Strong Attitude.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The action of the Government in taking a strong hand against the railroad strikers has been received with relief by the public at large. The epidemic of strikes and rumors of strikes had begun to be alarming and the War Ministry will have plenty of support if it has to resort to the great powers it possesses under the defense of the realm act.

The Westminster Gazette points out that "the Government can conscript men of military age. It can prosecute ringleaders, or it can bring individual strikers before a munitions tribunal. Before all else militant labor will do well to recognize that the era of concession to its every demand is coming to an end. The Government has been pushed into a position where it is bound to stand and say 'no' in the interest of the whole country. Some of the railway men did not understand that. The shipwrights will be well advised if they read the omens aright."

The conversations with railway men in London showed, however, that it would be a mistake to believe that the collapse of the strike has been entirely due to fear of Government action. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was told frankly by several railway men that they expected to have to come out because the union would order it, but that they personally were opposed to it as they realized the danger to the country that must result from the stoppage of trains. They expressed the belief that the majority of their comrades agreed with them, but they were at the mercy of young hotheads who might force them to strike.

To these moderates the action of the Government has come as a relief, for it has given them a chance to make a stand.

The railwaymen also insisted to THE TIMES correspondent that their discontent had nothing to do with weariness of the war. The very fact that they had not brought up their grievances until the news from all fronts was so cheering was proof that they were heartily in favor of fighting on till the enemy was thoroughly beaten. In fact, it was because they thought the pressure of the war was not so great for the moment that they took the opportunity to press their claims.

It was interesting to note the marked difference in the causes of their discontent from that reported from Germany. The Germans complain because of the dearth of necessaries of life. The British strikers do not protest on account of any real want, but simply because they find it difficult to maintain their former standard of comfort, while other more fortunate classes of workers are earning far more than ever before. Thus The Westminster Gazette quotes the case of a railway engine driver who earns only $17 weekly while a junior member of his family, not a skilled worker before the war, makes $20 at a munitions works. The public, however, are in no mood to listen to grumbling. Every one in England is pinched in one way or other, and the welcome the soldiers sent to strike centres, received and the violent action taken by wounded and discharged soldiers against strike headquarters prove, it is held, that the Government can rely on general approval if it refuses to permit any section to exploit its grievances to the peril of the nation.

PARIS READS FEAR IN HERTLING'S TALK

'INTERNAL FRONT' BREAKING

Adhesion to Wilson's Peace Principles a Sham and Electoral Reform Proposals a Subterfuge.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The general effect on opinion here of the speeches before the Main Committee of the German Reichstag of Chancellor von Hertling, Foreign Secretary von Hintze, and Vice Chancellor von Payer has been to give a strong impression that Germany is anxious to extinguish as soon as possible, before the flames reach her own house, the conflagration she herself has started. As Paris sees it, there is not only no sign in any of the three speeches of any admission of Germany's guilt, but merely a repetition of the same old lies that the Allies, and particularly Belgium, are alone to blame for the beginning and continuance of the war.

Hertling's speech especially is regarded as a discursus in extremis, mingled with characteristically hypocritical falsehoods. The only parts of the speech which Paris regards as worthy of attracting attention are those in which the German Chancellor intimates his adhesion in principle to some of the articles in the program of President Wilson. Even here, however, Hertling qualifies his agreement in such a way that his apparent conversion is proved to be absolutely without foundation.

He accepts, for instance, the proposal for the constitution of a society of nations, but on condition that Germany is admitted thereto backed by all the power of Prusian militarism. He accepts progressive disarmament of the powers, but only because he foresees that after the war is over all the great nations will be in such a state of material weakness that such a step will be necessary. He supports the doctrine of the so-called liberty of the seas, but only because this would involve, as Germany interprets the phrase, the disappearance of British sea power. He is an ardent apostle of protection of the smaller nations, provided Germany is permitted to remain master of Courland, Livonia, Esthonia, and the rest of her conquests in Russia.

A Cry in Extremis.

Reading between the lines, Paris sees in Hertling's appeal to the German people to be confident and firm a cry in extremis and an admission by his references to recriminations and bad temper that there is real anxiety on the part of the German directing class in regard to the present temper of the deceived and incredibly patient German people. In other words, Hertling realizes that if Germany's "interior front" is not actually broken it is getting perilously near the breaking point.

Another aspect of the speech, as Paris reads it, is that the Berlin Government, in agreement with the militarist party, now admits its reunciation of any hope of a victorious peace, because it recognizes that this henceforth will be impossible. The Chancellor's declarations, it is held here, mark in this respect a definite retreat on the political Hindenburg line, and are intended to convey to the German people that even further retirements will probably become necessary if the allied peoples persist, as they seem likely to do, in holding out firmly for their present terms.

In this connection the fact that the German ruling powers are now again holding out the bait of a more democratic franchise is regarded here with entire skepticism. Hertling has just given the Prussian Landtag to understand that it will be dissolved if it persists in resisting the electoral reform proposals. But, it is asked here, is it likely the Prussian Government will open wide the floodgates of electoral reform just at the moment when defeat on the battlefield stares it in the face? The numerous suggestions which have been made latterly to the effect that the inauguration of a more democratic régime in Germany is contemplated are regarded here merely as intended to throw dust into the eyes of the Allies and the German people alike in the hope of enabling Germany to bring about peace by compromise and avoid the chastisement which is in store for her.

A Diplomatic High Command.

In view of the never ending series of speeches which are being made by statesmen of all countries and both sides, a feeling is growing here in favor of unification through an allied diplomatic high command, after the model which has been adopted in the case of the allied armies. When, it is asked, will the Allied Governments agree to proclaim solemnly that they will never consent to treat with the criminals who are responsible for the war? President Wilson alone, as Paris sees it, has expressed himself precisely. What is more and more felt here is that if the Allies with one voice would state precisely to the German people that they can only have peace when they decide to rid themselves entirely of the Hohenzollerns, the result would be greatly to shorten the war and save the lives of possible millions who will have to fall if the struggle continues indefinitely.

TWO NEW SHIPS SUNK IN PACIFIC STORM

American Steamer Blackford and the Coos Bay Founder Off Lower California.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 26.—In a terrific storm which raged off Lower California and the northwest coast of Mexico on Sept. 17 two United States Shipping Board vessels on their maiden trips were sunk, a fleet of other craft was badly battered, the town of La Paz was partly destroyed, and the floating equipment of the United States Naval Coal Depot at Pichilinque was damaged.

News of the havoc wrought by the storm was brought here today by a long overdue fishing launch. Several residents of La Paz were reported killed. The crews of the vessels sunk were rescued by passing steamers after being adrift three days in open boats.

The vessels that foundered after a terrific battle with mountainous seas were the steal steamer Blackford, northbound from an Atlantic port with a cargo of 3,000 tons of coal, and the wooden steamer Coos Bay, bound south in ballast.

William A. Brown, first mate of the Blackford, arrived here as a passenger on the launch from Magdalena Bay. Brown said that the steamer foundered at a point about 250 miles south of Magdalena Bay. Huge seas smashed the ship's rudder. Drifting helplessly with two blades of the propeller and the rudder stock twisted, it was seen that the craft could not much longer remain afloat. The crew of forty-six men then took to lifeboats. On Sept. 20, three days after the Blackford foundered, her lifeboats were picked up by an oil tanker.

No details of the loss of the Coos Bay have been received here, with the exception that the wooden craft foundered about fifty miles from where the Blackford went down. The crew landed at a Mexican port.

BRITISH INVADE BULGARIA

army will be able to recover without the aid of the Central Powers, and that contingency is viewed as unlikely. Meanwhile the Serbians have regained the greater part of Serbian Macedonia.

Prilep May Be Serb Capital.

A dispatch from Paris says that Monastir or Prilep will become the seat of the Serbian Government as soon as the allied lines north of those cities have been definitely established, according to Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, Serbian Minister to France.

The following official report, dated Wednesday, was received from Serbian Army Headquarter today:

On Sept. 24 Serbian troops achieved a very important success on the left bank (east) of the Vardar. We reached Krivolak and the outskirts of Ishtib. In this region we captured a Colonel commanding a Bulgarian regiment and a considerable number of prisoners, as well as four howitzers, three mountain guns, 100 horse wagons with teams, and other material.

Gradsko Station, which was defended by Germans, has fallen into our hands with enormous quantities of supplies, including nineteen guns, mostly heavy ones of 210 millimetres. To the number of prisoners we already had taken we added two German officers and several soldiers.

On the right of Prilep our troops have obtained very fine results. Near Izvor we are pursuing the enemy, who is completely routed and in retreat. There, too, a great number of wagons with material has fallen into our hands.

An enemy battery which attempted to take up a position in order to come into action was attacked by our machine guns. The men were killed and the guns were captured. A complete German machine gun section also was made prisoner. These Germans complained that the Bulgarians had abandoned them intentionally and said that the Germans had continually compelled the Bulgarians by threats of opening fire on them to return to the fighting line.

At Troyatsi the Bulgarians burned their depots, and the fires spread to a hospital, with the result that more than 150 Bulgarian wounded perished. A horse hospital also was destroyed in the fire.

We have liberated more than fifty Greeks and ten Italian soldiers who had been captured.

It is confirmed that the Bulgarians continue to commit atrocities on our soldiers when they fall into their hands. One of our patrols of four men was found near the village of Veputchana horribly done to death.

Our aviators have used their machine guns very effectively against the retreating enemy troops.

Hard Fighting on Right Wing.

The review of the first day's fighting in the great offensive shows that it is not a case of the Allies chasing an enemy who was willing to retreat. On Sept. 18 Greek and British forces attacked on either side of Lake Doiran, which lies almost at the eastern extremity of the present line. West of the lake the Allies captured the ridge running from Doiran town westward, but the Allies' left was driven back. Some Bulgarian outposts east of the lake were captured, but all attacks against the Bulgarian main line were fruitless.

The next day the allied troops gained a little more ground west of the lake, but were unable to hold all their gains. The Bulgarians are described as having put up a determined resistance in the fierce fighting.

On the 20th, however, the Serbs, French, and Italians broke the Bulgarian front further westward, and the enemy began a general retreat along the whole line, which since has developed into rout. The reports of prisoners and guns taken are not surprising owing to the rapid advance of the Allies and the centring of all the allied energies in getting to their objectives.

Asks Mackensen to Save Bulgaria.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has asked Field Marshal Mackensen, who is now in Bucharest, to take the command of his armies so as to block the advance of the Allies in Old Serbia, and preserve Bulgaria from invasion, according to information received here from Switzerland.

"Fresh dispositions made by General Franchet d'Esperey, who has passed through Prilep, justify the belief that there will be an energetic exploitation of the great interallied victory in Macedonia," says Marcel Hutin, editor of the Echo de Paris.

Advices received in Serbian diplomatic circles here today show that the Bulgarian troops in the region of Lake Ochrida, toward the western end of the Macedonian front, are virtually encircled by the Italians, advancing in the direction of Kichevo, and the Franco-Serbian forces moving from Monastir toward Krushevo. The fall of Krushevo is expected hourly.

The only means of exit for the Bulgarians here is a narrow passage between Kichevo and Krushevo. The army seems doomed to destruction or surrender, or to a retreat into Albania, as the allied heavy artillery now installed northwest of Monastir commands the passes in the other direction.

Army headquarters today issued the following communication concerning the operations:

EASTERN THEATRE, Sept. 24.—In spite of the arrival of new German troops, the enemy continues his retreat toward the north. Strong rearguard detachments are resisting strongly.

Northwest of Monastir, on the left wing of the allied forces, we have passed Prilep and advanced on the roads toward Krushevo, Kichevo and Veles.

In the centre, Serbian forces have taken the massif of Popadija, to the east of Babuna, and have gained ground to the west of the Cerna River.

We have enlarged the bridgehead north of the Vardar and are on the heights between the Vardar and the Kriva Lakavitsa, which the enemy is hastily crossing.

On the right wing French, British, and Greek troops have launched strong advance guards northward along the Vardar toward Gradets and Hudova. They have taken the massif of Kara Bail, north of Lake Doiran.

Booty captured is being augmented incessantly. During Sept. 23 more than thirty new cannon were captured and also a large amount of railway material.

SEES FOCH'S HAND IN EAST.

German Critic Credits Him with Plan of Drive in Macedonia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—A diplomatic telegram from Zurich, dealing with the effect produced in Germany by the allied successes in the Macedonian campaigns, says that the military editor of the Münchner Neueste Nachrichten considers the allied offensive in Macedonia as an operation of first importance and not a simple diversion. He says:

"The division of the principal operation against the Doiran-Prilep line in two divergent waves of attack with complementary operations on the two wings is so masterfully methodic that no doubt can exist as to the author of this manoeuvre. It bears Foch's signature."

The Frankfurter Zeitung also judges the military situation in the East to be serious.

"We do not believe," it writes, "in a grand offensive aiming at the liberation of Serbia or in an immediate attack against Bulgaria, because to do that the means at the disposal of the enemy, which depend on communication by sea, would not be adequate. But a danger threatens lest a part of the Macedonian territory occupied and coveted by the Bulgarians should again fall into the hands of the enemy. We suppose that this danger will suffice to incite our allies to offer the most intense resistance."

LONGS FOR AMERICAN TROOPS.

Moral Effect in Macedonia Would Be Great, Serb Envoy Says.

PARIS, Sept. 26, (Associated Press.)—"Had we one single regiment of Americans in Macedonia battling under the Stars and Stripes alongside the French, the Serbians, the British, and Italians, a prompt and complete victory would be assured."

The Serbian Minister to France, Dr. Vesnitch, thus declared to The Associated Press today and continued:

"This does not mean I doubt that the ultimate and final success will be complete, but the moral effect upon the troops fighting in the Balkans would be immense if a few of your brave boys were with them."

Asked about the probable effect of reinforcements of German troops sent from Rumania under Field Marshal von Mackensen, the Minister replied:

"The German troops in Rumania are old classes of the Landsturm. I do not believe that von Mackensen has at his disposition any great reserves, but merely has an army of occupation necessary to hold the Rumanians down under the mailed fist. If reinforcements are drawn from Rumania the country will soon make things uncomfortable for the remaining garrisons, and von Mackensen would have a hostile population in his rear hampering communications."

Dr. Vesnitch referred to von Mackensen as unwilling to assume charge of the armies of Ferdinand.

"The Germans will probably come," he added, "but they will not be led by von Mackensen. The German Field Marshal, owing to his English extraction, has always refused to meet British troops, and he has already told the Kaiser so, when the latter last spring asked him to assume charge of part of the operations on the western front. Von Mackensen has made the biggest reputation of any German General in this war. Having conducted his campaigns to a successful conclusion on the eastern front in Rumania and Serbia, he is unwilling to risk defeat by leading Bulgarian soldiers."

LORD READING COMING BACK

Rumor That British Envoy Is to be Succeeded Is Denied in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Rumors that Lord Reading may not return to the United States are denied by The Evening News.

It says it can "say definitely that Lord and Lady Reading are returning to resume their most successful and patriotic labors in Washington. Dates in these matters are, of course, kept secret for obvious reasons."

agreement under which France is charged with the preparation of a scheme of self-government for the people of Palestine. This work will be the object of conversations which will take place shortly.

When the Bolshevist authorities took control in Russia they published a number of secret diplomatic documents found in the archives in Petrograd. Among them was a convention negotiated between Russia, France, and Great Britain under which Alexandretta, in Asiatic Turkey, was to be a free port and Palestine was to be a protectorate under the three Governments.

VON SANDERS OFF TO BERLIN.

Field Marshal Who Fled from Allenby Reaches Constantinople.

GENEVA, Sept. 26. (Associated Press.)—Field Marshal Liman von Sanders, Commander of the Turkish forces, who fled from Nazareth shortly before the attacking British troops appeared, has reached Constantinople.

Advices from the Turkish capital say that von Sanders will return at an early date to Berlin.

Troelstra's Peace Effort Fails.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Pieter J. Troelstra, the Dutch Socialist leader, who has been in Switzerland, has failed in his effort to create an international Socialist bureau, with headquarters at Berne, it is reported. During his stay in Switzerland Troelstra conferred with Swiss Socialists, and it is said that Socialists from several Entente countries went to confer with him. Pro-Germans in the United States were to have been approached by agents of the bureau, it is said.

In Time of War Prepare for Peace

A lot of people are prophesying about conditions after the war. Business is going to be either good or bad?

One thing is certain—the manufacturer who succeeds after the war, come good times or bad, is going to be the one who has the Good Will of the people.

Good Will cannot be built in a day; nor can it be held indefinitely without effort.

During times of war manufacturers may make new friends, and may retain old friends by advertising. After the war those manufacturers will be regarded by the public as "old friends"—and "old friends are best."

LAY UNAIDED FOR 30 HOURS

Other New Yorkers in List of Casualties Sent from United States Overseas Army.

Lieut. James Saunders O'Neale, second in command of Company D of the 305th Infantry of the Upton Division, a son of James Saunders O'Neale, the Secretary and Treasurer of the Hudson and Manhattan Railway, and a nephew of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, was severely wounded in action on Aug. 25. His wife was notified yesterday by the War Department that her husband is in a base hospital behind the American lines. Just before she received the notification she received a letter from her husband describing how he had been wounded. He wrote that the 305th went "over the top" at 4:30 A. M., the morning of the 25th, and that he was crawling toward the German lines when a bullet struck him in the lower left side. He added that he lay for thirty hours in "No Man's Land" before he was rescued. He is now recovering and expects to rejoin his company in a few weeks. Lieutenant O'Neale, who is 26 years of age, was a member of the staff of The New York Tribune before he entered the service. He is a Columbia graduate of the class of 1915, and was Captain of the University baseball team in his senior year. He won his commission at the first Plattsburg camp of last year.

Lieut. Douglas B. Green, a lawyer of 1 Liberty Street, has died in France of wounds received in action. He was 30 years of age, and a graduate of Yale in the class of 1909. He attended the Plattsburg Camp and went to France with the 168th Infantry of the Rainbow Division, which is the Iowa unit of that famous organization.

Lieut. Benjamin T. Abrams, who formerly lived in Hollis, L. I., and who served on the Mexican border, has been wounded in action. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. John Biederman of Hollis, with whom he lived. Lieutenant Abrams was born in New York twenty-five years ago and came to Hollis five years ago. He is a graduate of the New York Law School and served on the border with the 1st Cavalry Regiment. He obtained his commission at Plattsburg.

Lieut. Irving J. Pincus, Medical Corps, U. S. A., who was assigned by General Pershing to duty with the First Duke of Cornwall Light Infantry of the British Army, was killed in action on Aug. 1. He was a son of Dr. Henry Pincus of 140 East Eighty-third Street. He was a graduate of New York University and the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is the first member of the Columbia Chapter of the Phi Delta Epsilon Fraternity to be killed in action. He was 28 years of age.

Michael Campbell, killed, was an old 69th Regiment man. He went to France with the 165th Infantry of the Rainbow Division. He lived, when he enlisted, at 235 East Twenty-sixth Street.

Henry L. Kane, killed, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Kane of 4,429 Matilda Avenue, the Bronx. He went overseas as a member of Company A of the 165th Infantry. He was 18 years of age and a student at City College, when he resigned to enter the service.

Patrick Reynolds is another soldier of the 165th Infantry who has been killed in action. He was one of the first soldiers of the First Army to receive the American Distinguished Service Cross from General Pershing. He won the cross for gallantry under fire during the crossing of the River Ourcq. Private Reynolds, who was 24 years of age, is survived by three sisters, two of whom are Red Cross nurses in France.

Matthew F. Carberry, Jr., killed, also was of the old 69th, and went overseas as a member of Company C of the 165th Infantry. He was 20 years of age and a son of Matthew F. Carberry of 463 West Sixty-first Street.

John B. Lane, killed, was an amateur sportsman of Greenwich Village, where he was known as "Smiling Jack" Lane. He was among the first to join the 69th Regiment after war was declared with Germany, and went with that company to the Rainbow Division. He was 19 years of age, and lived when he enlisted at 300 West Houston Street.

William R. Hurst, killed, was a member of Company F of the 165th Infantry of the Rainbow. He was killed on Aug. 10 when a shell hit in the American first line trenches. His home was at 285 West 142d Street.

Sergt. William B. McLaughlin of Company I of the 165th Infantry, also has been killed. He was one of the two soldier sons of Richard B. McLaughlin, for more than twenty-five years a Supreme Court attendant. The news that his son had been killed was contained in a letter which Mr. McLaughlin received yesterday from his other son, Sergeant Richard B. McLaughlin, Jr., also of Company I of the 165th Infantry. "Will," wrote Sergeant McLaughlin, "died leading his platoon. If you could only have seen him you would have been proud of a son who could die so nobly."

James Santore, a veteran of the 69th, and who went to France in Company B of the 165th Infantry, has been killed. His home was at 946 Forty-first Street, Brooklyn.

Corp. John J. Booth was another old 69th man who has made the supreme sacrifice. His wife and baby daughter live at 83 Congress Street, Brooklyn. He was 28 years of age.

Michael F. McGrath, severely wounded, is a brother of Mrs. Julia Burke of 138 West Sixty-second Street. He is in an infantry unit of the Regular Army.

Martin M. Kelly, who was a member of Company A of the 9th Infantry, has died of wounds. He was a son of Mrs. Matthew Kelly of 419 Hicks Street, Brooklyn.

Alexander Loeser, who served under General Pershing in the Philippines and later in Mexico, also has died of wounds. He was the son of fifteen years of service and went to France with the 39th Infantry. His home was at 136 South Main Street, East Oragne.

LENINE RESCINDS REIGN OF TERROR

Moscow Paper Says He Induced Soviet to Return to Orderly Methods.

BUT STOCKHOLM DOUBTS IT

Poole, Just Arrived, Tells How Entente Envoys and a Y. M. C. A. Man Were Confined.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 26.—The Russian Bolshevist Government has issued a decree rescinding its reign of terror, according to the Mir of Moscow.

The question was discussed at a meeting of the Central Committees of the Soviet, the newspaper says, and when Premier Lenine expressed an earnest desire to return to orderly methods of government a majority of those present supported him.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 26, (Associated Press.)—Dewitt C. Poole, Jr., acting American Consul General in Moscow, who has arrived here, says that when he left Moscow a week ago R. H. B. Lockhart, British acting Consul General, and other Entente officials and many Entente civilians were imprisoned in the Kremlin.

The French General Lavenge and the French Consul, M. Grenand, were restricted in their movements to the American Consulate by the Bolshevist Guards, who refused to allow them food.

Paul Anderson of the American Young Men's Christian Association was arrested in Moscow and held for investigation. Mr. Poole was unable to obtain Anderson's release before he left Moscow.

The Norwegian Consul is protecting the American Consulate, but the attitude of Tchitcherin, the Bolsheviki Foreign Minister, was so hostile to the neutral Ministers' efforts to check wholesale executions that even Premier Lenine's reported interference in the reign of terror is not regardeu by Stockholm diplomats as a guarantee of the safety of foreigners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Coincidental with the safe arrival at Stockholm of De Witt C. Poole, the Acting American Consul General at Moscow, who left Russia under instructions from Secretary Lansing, the State Department has received further information regarding the Russian reign of terror.

This covers the reports of massacres and other atrocities made familiar in press dispatches from Stockholm and elsewhere, and confirms the statements that in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul in Petrograd there have been lately interned several hundred English and French, including officials. Ten or more are crowded into a room until there is no space remaining in which they can be seated or lie down, and the unfortunates are compelled to remain standing without food or care.

Recently, owing to lack of space in Petrograd, prisoners were sent to Moscow, where the British Consul Lockhart is interned in the Kremlin without even bed clothing.

Tchicherin, the Foreign Commissary, told the neutral Consuls that he regarded foreign journalists as spies, who would be treated accordingly. A recent decree prescribed the same punishment for aliens as for Russians suspected of counter-revolutionary participation.

The Russian Embassy has received and tonight made public cabled reports showing that the new central government of Russia organized at Ufa by members of the National Constituent Assembly, which was elected last Fall, is in the form of a directorate of five members, among whom are the present or former heads of the three main sectional Governments at Archangel, Omsk, and Samara. They are Avksentieff, Astrof, Vologodsky, Tschaikovsky, and Lieut. Gen. Boldireff.

Avksentieff, head of the directorate, is a member of the Constitutional Democrats of the Left and was Minister of Agriculture in the Kerensky Provisional Government. Astrof formerly was Mayor of Moscow, and both he and Tschaikovsky, who formerly was head of the Archangel Government, are Social Revolutionists of the Right. Lieut. Gen. Boldiroff is a new figure to Washington. He was formerly a professor in the Military Academy of Russia, and represents the military in the new Government.

The conference at Ufa, which established the directorate, the cablegrams say, was made up of members of the Constituent Assembly, delegates of organs of provincial authorities and of the Siberian Government, representatives of the Social Revolutionists and of Social Democratic parties, and delegates of the "Union of Liberty of the People," and of the "Group of Renaissance." The two latter organizations probably represent bourgeois democratic groups.

The program of the new Government as indicated a few days ago in press dispatches, is a united Russia, repudiation of a separate peace and of the Brest-Litovsk treaties, loyalty to the Allies, and continuance of the war against Germany in alliance with the Czechoslovac forces.

The Russian Embassy has also been informed by cable from the Russian Legation at Peking of a statement made to the allied representatives there by Foreign Minister Golovatcheff of the Omsk Government, saying that this Government had mobilized two classes of soldiers successfully, and that there were now with the national colors more than 200,000 men, under 30 000 officers. It is his belief that by Spring more than a million well-trained Russians can be armed and equipped with the assistance of the Allies and the United States.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The plans for the Bolsheviki Army on the Volga front, which seriously endangers the Czech Army in that region of Russia, call for fifty-one divisions, or half a million men. The army is constantly being reinforced by Germans, and to a great extent it is led and instructed by Germans.

The reports indicate that while some of the Bolshevist personnel of this army have improved in value, a majority of the soldiers are comparatively worthless.

POPE SENDS MESSAGE.

Renews Expression of Sympathy at Cardinal's Funeral.

The following cable message was received in this city yesterday from Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State of the Holy See:

Mgr. Mooney, 452 Madison Avenue, New York City:

The Holy Father renews his sympathy to clergy and faithful of New York on funeral day of his Eminence Cardinal Farley. His Holiness prays for the soul of the beloved Cardinal and appreciates the manifestation of sympathy and condolence of all classes. CARDINAL GASPARRI.

CHAPIN PLEADS INSANITY.

Court to be Asked to Appoint a Lunacy Commission.

Charles E. Chapin, the former city editor of The Evening World, who had pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with the murder of his wife in the Hotel Cumberland on Sept. 16, amended his plea yesterday to one of "not guilty on the ground that the defendant was insane at the time of the commission of the crime." This was done in accordance with the usual permission granted by the court of allowing ten days in which to change the plea or to make any motion relating thereto. Chapin was taken from his cell in the Tombs and rearranged before Judge Wadhams, who accepted the plea when Assistant District Attorney A. J. Talley announced that he would neither oppose nor approve, leaving the motion entirely to the discretion of the court.

Alienists will examine Chapin before the question of proceeding to trial is determined. Abraham Levy, attorney for Chapin, said the amended plea was merely preliminary to a further motion to be made to the court next week for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to determine Chapin's sanity. If sane now his trial may be immediately proceeded with, as the question of his sanity at the time of the shooting will be a matter for a jury to decide. Should the commission find him insane he would be sent to the State Asylum at Matteawan pending such time as he might recover his mental factulties when he could be brought to trial. The District Attorney contends that Chapin was sane at the time of the shooting and is sane at the present time.

Presbytery Licenses Woman.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Mrs. William H. Chapman of this city has been licensed to preach by the Chemung County Presbytery after a long discussion and some opposition. The issuing of a license to a woman to preach overturns all precedent of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and is a violation of the rules of the Presbyterian General Assembly. The action is taken as a wartime measure. One dissenting member of the Chemung Presbytery says he will appeal to the General Assembly. Mrs. Chapman has been filling the pulpit of the North Presbyterian Church here while the pastor is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in France.

TURKS AND BULGARS CLAMOR FOR PEACE

Reports of Bulgar Cabinet Crisis and Impending Regency Under Prince Boris.

MARTIAL LAW IN SOFIA

Rumanian Peasants, Excited by Allied Victories, Start Revolts Against Teuton Soldiery.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—In well-informed circles there are reports that a new Ministerial crisis and a complete change in Bulgaria's foreign policy are impending.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Sofia, according to reliable news printed in the German press, says the Journal of Zurich. It is said that the Bulgarian Cabinet is in continuous session and King Ferdinand had a long consultation with Premier Malinoff yesterday.

Pacifist manifestations were held at Sofia on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, it is reported.

The German Government, according to advices to the Havas Agency from Zurich, is very uneasy over the pacifist demonstrations in Bulgaria and the German Minister has conferred with King Ferdinand.

In some Bulgarian political circles it is believed that Crown Prince Boris will become regent in the present crisis.

ROME, Sept. 26.—The situation in Rumania, according to information received here, has become alarming for the Central Powers. The Rumanian peasants, made enthusiastic by the victories of the Entente countries, are beginning to resist openly the German and Austro-Hungarian military.

Local revolts have taken place at several places and the Rumanian Government has sent agents to Berlin and Vienna to obtain a mitigation of the Austro-Hungarian rule. The Rumanian Government is reported to have pointed out that if its request is rejected it will be unable to guarantee the maintenance of order or avoid the eventualities of a sanguinary crisis.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Sept. 26.—Public irritation in Constantinople has become so great, according to a dispatch from the Turkish capital to the Lausanne Gazette, that rumors are again spreading that the Ottoman Government will seek a separate peace.

The Sultan himself, the message says, would favor a separate peace if he could obtain favorable conditions from the Entente powers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The reported Ministerial crisis in Bulgaria is viewed with open suspicion by officials of the Government here. If peace is really sought by the Bulgarian Government, it is assumed here, it will be a peace leaving the Bulgars all the territory they now hold as a result of the war.

It is thought more probable, however, that Malinoff, the Premier, fears a revolution and has engineered the Ministerial crisis to forestall this and pacify the troublesome element, which, according to recent reports, has been increasing in numbers and in its demands.

The fact that the allied armies are steadily advancing on the Bulgarian front, with the Bulgarian and German forces in retreat, has greatly disturbed the Bulgarians. Today's news that the Allies actually have crossed the Bulgarian border probably will cause greater agitation.

INFLUENZA STOPS FLOW TO THE CAMPS

BAY STATE ASKS AID IN INFLUENZA FIGHT

Lieut. Gov. Coolidge Telegraphs an Appeal to President and to Governors.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—Lieutenant Governor Coolidge made an appeal tonight for aid in fighting the influenza to President Wilson, Governor Graham of Vermont, Governor Milliken of Maine, Governor Beeckman of Rhode Island and to the Mayor of Toronto, Canada. To President Wilson and the Governors he sent this telegram:

Massachusetts urgently in need of additional doctors and nurses to check growing epidemic of influenza. Our doctors and nurses are being thoroughly mobilized and worked to the limit. Many cases can receive no attention whatever. Hospitals are full, but arrangements can be made for outside facilities. Earnestly solicit your influence in obtaining for us this needed assistance in any way you can.

New Hampshire and Connecticut were not asked to send help because of the prevalence of inflenza in those States. To the Mayor of Toronto, Lieut. Gov. Coolidge said the State would greatly appreciate any assistance he could render in the way of sending nurses here.

The one-day death record of the epidemic in Boston was exceeded today, the mortality reports showing 123 deaths from influenza and 33 from pneumonia. The largest previous total for one day was 109 on Sept. 24. Since Sept. 14 there have been 853 deaths in this city.

The State Health Department announced tonight that it would pay expenses and $28 a week to graduate nurses reporting for service at the State House. Attendant nurses will be paid $15 a week and expenses. Volunteer nurses are requested to report to local boards of health for assignments.

There are fully 50,000 cases of influenza in Massachusetts, in the opinion of Dr. Bernard W. Carey, epidemiologist for the State Department of Health. Dr. Carey said today that he had found several cities where the health authorities were so busy in trying to combat the disease that they had not had time to comply with the bequest of the State Health Department that all cases be reported.

The number of new cases in the twenty-four hour period ending at noon today, Mr. Carey said, was 2,143.

The reports from many parts of the State caused State Health Commissioner Eugene R. Kelly today to appeal to the Federal authorities for assistance. He said that a hundred physicians and 1,000 nurses were needed immediately, and suggested that the War and Navy Departments might organize a flying squadron to help in the crisis. In telegrams to Massachusetts Senators and Congressmen, Dr. Kelly urged them to use their influence toward obtaining assistance for this State, even to the extent of Congressional action if necessary.

All theatres, moving-picture shows, dance halls, "and other unnecessary places of public assembly" in this city were ordered closed from midnight until Oct. 6 at a meeting today of the Emergency Health Committee appointed by Mayor Andrew J. Peters.

Schools and theatres in Lawrence, Lynn, New Bedford, Holyoke, Fall River, and other places were closed by the vote of municipal authorities. In Wakefield, all churches, as well as schools, were closed until further notice.

Two naval officers, Commander Hugh Brown, executive officer of a battleship, and Dr. John Lee Fisher, a junior grade Lieutenant of the Medical Corps, died at the Chelsea Naval Hospital today of influenza. Commander Brown was the son of Rear Admiral George Brown.

Complying with a request from the Emergency Public Health Committee, all Liberty Loan meetings and parades scheduled in Massachusetts during the remainder of the week and Sunday have been postponed.

FIND INFLUENZA IS EPIDEMIC PNEUMONIA

Health Department Announcement Gives Instructions in Ways to Avoid the Infection.

In a bulletin issued yesterday by the New York City Department of Health the announcement was made that the so-called Spanish influenza is in reality an epidemic of pneumonia.

"The disease," the bulletin said, "called by the popular term 'Spanish influenza,' is a peculiar form of pneumonia of an epidemic type. So far no exact information as to the precise microbic cause has been given, nor its relationship to influenza. The disease is infectious, the germs which cause it being passed from the sick to the well by contact."

After a description of the symptoms of the disease the bulletin said:

"There is nothing alarming in the present increase. Raw, unpleasant weather is very favorable for its spread. The enormous population of New York City, with its intimate and frequent associated conditions with the many neighboring communities, makes it wonderful to think that the malady has been kept so well within bounds."

The bulletin gives these instructions as to how to avoid contracting the influenza:

Don't crowd. Don't worry. Don't jam the entrances of railways, theatres, and places of assembly.

Don't put unclean things into your mouth. Don't eat or drink in dirty places.

Don't expose yourself to cold or wet. Don't overexert, and avoid all excesses.

Don't go out if feeling ill. Take care. Keep fit.

Don't forget to use handkerchief, covering mouth when coughing or sneezing.

Don't eat without first washing the hands.

For the twenty-four hours that ended at 10 o'clock yesterday morning 174 cases of influenza were reported to the Department of Health and 44 cases of bronchial pneumonia. Seven of the latter cases are known to have followed influenza. Of the influenza cases reported 65 are in Manhattan, 45 in the Bronx, 47 in Brooklyn, 3 in Queens, and 11 in Richmond. The report also gives in the same period of time six deaths from influenza and 11 from bronchial pneumonia.

Health Commissioner Copeland said yesterday that unless conditions improved it would be necessary to call upon the Fuel Administration to speed up the distribution of coal and to permit the heating of homes before Nov. 1. He said that if the disease continued to spread he might have to order cars run with open windows for the sake of ventilation. He said that he contemplated no move in the direction of closing theatres and places of assembly and amusement.

When the attention of Dr. Copeland was called to a cable dispatch from Rome to the effect that the bacillus of Spanish influenza had been isolated by a military surgeon, he said that he had not heard of it, but that valuable work along the same lines was being done in the laboratories in this city.

"I am not ready to make any announcement of the work," he said, "but interesting developments are taking place in the bacteriological laboratories here."

STOP SALES OF NEAR BEER.

Many Measures Adopted at Camp Dix to Check Influenza.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 26.—Sale of near beer and soft drinks in camp exchanges is prohibited under an order issued this afternoon by Maj. Gen. Scott as the latest move in the fight of medical authorities against the spread of influenza at Camp Dix. Pie, cake, sandwiches, and milk also are included in the prohibited list. The chief effect will be to stop at once the use of the nonalcoholic beverages, great quantities of which have been consumed by thirsty soldiers in the canteens.

No suspicion has been directed by camp officials against any articles on the prohibited list. The order is regarded here merely as a radical move of the Sanitary Corps to reach every possible source of infection.

The epidemic situation in the camp shows a slightly smaller death list and fewer new cases during the last twenty-four hours. The official report gives thirty-six deaths among the army personnel.

The report for the day gives the total of cases of influenza in camp at 5,727, including the minor cases in barracks, which have not figured in previous reports. There are 423 cases of pneumonia. New hospital cases of influenza in the last twenty-four hours are 232, and of pneumonia 90. The death total is 18.

BROADWAY At 34th STREET

My Country, 'tis of Thee!

A SOLDIER OF FRANCE lay on a hospital-bed. His shattered arm had just been taken away. The doctor looked down with pity at the white young face. "I'm sorry, my boy, you had to lose your arm," he said. The eyes of the lad flashed. "No, no, doctor. I didn't lose it," he said; "I gave it—to France." His head sank back on his pillow, and he whispered, "My France."

Americans! Here in your God-given land of liberty, far from the furious battles and the countless hospital-beds of France, what flame leaps to your eyes when you say, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee"? Have the words filled your soul with a passion of love and a holy zeal which make service of country the greatest thing of life, the only thing worth while in these days? Are you ready and eager to enroll in the army of twenty-five million men and women now summoned to carry the Fourth Liberty Loan to victory?

Swift and sure we are moving to the great events which will bring triumphant peace to America, and to all the world, or plunge us into a deeper misery of unending war. General Pershing, with the First American Army, has struck the enemy a heavy blow. Our hearts thrill with eager anticipation after the long waiting. We hope; we trust; we look with proud faith to our great armies, and our brave allies; we expect the "decisive victory of arms" to which our President has pledged the nation. But we can not be SURE of it until every last one of us here at home has given himself and his all, "without pause or limit," to make our armies invincible.

No such victory has yet been won. Initial success is not "decisive victory." It is too soon to rejoice, or to say, "the war will soon be over." It is too early to talk of "the headlong retreat" of the enemy, or of a German military machine "on the point of collapse." The Prussians are not beaten. Their war-machine is not destroyed. Their savage fighting power, their endurance, their strategy, their supplies, are still unexhausted. Their greed, their devil-bred Kultur, their obsession for world-dominion are still rampant. They could not conquer Russia in the open; they conquered her in the dark with soul-poison, bribery, treachery, and all forms of bedevilment known to the Huns. Already they are harvesting from that vast domain men and supplies for the German war-machine. And now the greatest Hun general, Ludendorf, the most powerful man in Germany, defies the world and says, "Our will to victory remains unbroken. We settled Russia. We will settle the Americans."

We are answering the insolent Hun with our first mighty effort on the battle-front. The beginning of it cheers us mightily; but it is still only at the beginning. It must go on triumphantly. It must succeed. But two million American soldiers, soon to be joined by two million more, are looking back across the sea to us with an even more imperative demand, "You must not let us fail. We have staked our lives on your support. We need tanks, and guns, and shells, and airplanes without limit. Unless you send them we can not win. Buy more Liberty Bonds than you ever dreamed of buying. Don't you understand? Our part here will be HELL if you stint your part at home."

Before ever a soldier of Uncle Sam stept upon the soil of France and unfurled America's battle-flag, the victory of our Allies was necessary for the safety and freedom of our country; but now our need for victory is multiplied four million times. The blood of every American boy spilled on that shell-torn ground cries to Americans for victory. From every hospital-bed where one of our boys is lying, gassed or wounded; from every cage in Germany that holds a brave American in cruel confinement; from every trench and camp, in France, in Italy, in Belgium, in Russia, the demand comes to us for victory. From every home in America into which the telegram has come bearing the news of a hero's sacrifice for his country, the demand for a victory that shall repay that sacrifice is challenging us more sternly each day. There must be no peace until such a victory is won. All our work, our thought, our money must be dedicated to this life-and-death need of our country as truly as the lives of our brave boys across the sea are dedicated to it.

Those devoted lives are in our hands. Shorten that casualty list which already reaches into the quivering hearts of thousands of American families. Lavish upon our armies, quickly, weapons and supplies which shall hasten their victory and stop all casualty lists. Pour out in a flood the paltry price in money, and lessen the greater price to be paid in the precious lives of our sons, our husbands, our brothers, and our dearest friends!

The enemy is malignant and merciless beyond our power to believe—we who have not seen. The need for his irretrievable defeat is more imperative than we have known—we who have not learned before of the foul wells from which the nature of the Hun has been springing. If we were forced to see what our soldiers, our chaplains, our Red Cross nurses have seen, we could not delay a moment to rid the world of the loathsome plague. Edward J. Lacey, an old employee of The Literary Digest, now with the 165th New York, writes: "I can hardly sit still here, thinking of the things I have seen at the different fronts I've been fighting on. I have seen them have women chained to their machine guns, and . . ." The Rev. George A. Griffith, of Baltimore, a chaplain with the 5th Field Artillery, has told how the Huns took young Belgian and French girls into their first-line trenches and tortured them until their screams made the Scotch and Canadian soldiers so crazed that they rushed to rescue them, only to fall into the machine-gun nests into which the women's screams had been made to decoy them. Other soldiers, forced back by the leveled guns of their officers, to keep them from needless slaughter, at length drove the fiends from their trenches and went over. What they saw there was too awful for words.

May a merciful God spare us all from seeing our daughters and wives chained to machine guns or tortured by the Huns! May we never see our little children or our old men crucified upon the doors of our ravaged homes! May we never see our babes impaled upon bayonets and carried through our streets over the shoulders of German soldiers!

MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE! Make our armies invincible. Insure victory now, and freedom forever from the unspeakable Hun. Liberty Bonds without limit—Liberty Bonds for twenty-five million men and women who will buy them to their utmost ability—Liberty Bonds oversubscribed with a whirlwind of patriotic eagerness and grim determination—this must be our immediate answer to the demands of our armies across the sea. Buy Liberty Bonds, and keep them; treasure them as a precious investment; do not sell them or trade them off until your Government calls for them at maturity. They are your proud possession, a proof of your loyalty, an insurance of all you hold most dear. Americans! In the full tide of your power and your abundance, answer, with all God has given you, the bitter cries of torn and outraged humanity. God has raised America, strong, rich, and free, to be His own right arm of deliverance. Save your homes and loved ones, and save a world lying in blood and tears! Buy Liberty Bonds with a hand that will not stop, and know the sublimer meaning deep in the heart of the words,

"MY Country, 'tis of Thee!"

SMITH SEES SUPPORT OF WAR AS THE ISSUE

Will Omit Campaign Speeches During Loan Drive, Candidate Says in Acceptance Speech.

NOTIFICATION AT SYRACUSE

Herrick Appeals for Support of Smith as Vote of Confidence in Wilson's Conduct of War.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Support of President Wilson in his conduct of the war was proclaimed the principal issue in the State campaign by Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee for Governor, in his speech of acceptance delivered in the Welting Opera House here tonight before 2,000 voters of both sexes. Mr. Smith charged that Governor Whitman had not given the President wholehearted support.

Ex-Judge D-Cady Herrick of Albany, Democratic candidate for Governor in 1904, who presided at the meeting and delivered the address formally notifying Mr. Smith and the other candidates on the Democratic State ticket of their nomination, said that the outcome of the elections in this and other States, midway in President Wilson's second term, inevitably would be accepted as a verdict of either approval or disapproval of his Administration, his conduct of the war, and his war aims.

"In 1898, with the Spanish war in progress, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and ex-President Benjamin Harrison urged the election of Republicans as a vote of confidence in the McKinley Administration and declared that a vote for Democratic candidates would be tantamount to a verdict of disapproval," said Mr. Herrick. "The reasoning of Colonel Roosevelt and ex-President Harrison undoubtedly was correct, and applies in this mid-term election, with another war in progress.

"The question before the voters of this State then becomes: Shall we elect this young man, whom through long years of public service the breath of scandal has never touched; who is the best-equipped man named for Governor in my time, and who from personal inclination and party consideration will give support to President Wilson, or shall we re-elect a man who would use his third term as a steppingstone to the Presidency and who would be plotting and scheming throughout the next two years to hamper and discredit the Administration of the man he is ambitious to succeed?"

Mr. Smith evoked applause when he declared that, while to be elected Governor was the goal of his highest ambition, he would make no campaign speeches in furtherance of that aim as long as the Liberty Loan drive was in progress, regardless of how it would affect his prospects of election.

Arraigns Whitman Administration.

"The leading issue is what this State can do to back up President Wilson in a successful prosecution of the war," said the nominee. "The President called upon the country to organize for war. The people were asked to curtail their expenses. The Whitman administration, which should have set a good example, is passing through a period of recklessness and waste in the appropriation of public moneys, not equaled in the history of the State."

Mr. Smith charged the Whitman administration with being remiss in the matter of providing through the Barge Canal relief from freight congestion on the railroads and with other dereliction, and went on:

"I am in favor of the passage of an amendment to the Federal Constitution enfranchising women. I am not in favor of the passage of the pending prohibition amendment until the question has first been decided by the people of the State by referendum. To those who would see inconsistency in this attitude, I desire to say that the question of woman suffrage was submitted to the people of the State less than one year ago, and they voted overwhelmingly in favor of it. The prohibition question is one that deals with the daily life and habits of a great number of people in this State, and before it is adopted by the Legislature I deem it good, sound democratic theory that they be permitted themselves to pass upon it. If a majority of the people approve it by their votes, I shall give its passage more sincere aid than the present Governor did at the last legislative session."

Mr. Smith went on to say that this was the sixteenth time he had been a candidate for public office.

"I saw many of the activities of the State the day of their birth and have watched them ever since," he said. "I will bring to the office of Governor an experience that few men in the State have had. I understand the people of this State as I understand the State itself. I gained my knowledge by working night and day all during my legislative career. What I was deprived of in the way of education in my youth, by hard labor I have tried to make up in later years. I am in a position to appreciate the greatness of the State and of the country that gave me the opportunity to be the candidate of the Democratic Party for the greatest office in the gift of the people of this State. If I am called to this great office by the people, I promise them to discharge my duties with all the energy, all the force and all the vigor that I possess."

In conclusion Mr. Smith said:

"On Saturday next the drive begins on the Fourth Liberty Loan. The President of the United States says that politics is adjourned. As a good American interested in the welfare of the country, I agree with him, and, much as I would like to be elected Governor, for the opportunity it would give me to serve the people of the State, and for the joy and happiness that it would bring to my wife, my mother, my children, and my friends, I would sooner go down to defeat than achieve that office at the expense of a single activity on the part of any Democrat that he should give to the country during this drive."

All the other candidates responded briefly to the notification address after Mr. Smith had spoken.

Charles F. Murphy Absent.

All the members of the Democratic State Committee had been invited to attend the notification. Few members from New York City were in evidence. Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, who at the last moment had been urged by friends of Mr. Smith not to appear at the notification ceremonies, was conspicuous through his absence, as was his Brooklyn lieutenant, John H. McCooey.

Of the old-time district leaders of Tammany Hall and of the Kings County organization who are members of the State Committee none was in evidence at the meeting. Of the younger element in Tammany, which grew up in politics with the nominee for Governor, there were present Senator Robert F. Wagner and James H. Foley, the latter representing Murphy's district in the Senate; Matthew Cahill, the new Democratic leader of Richmond, who won his new power by beating the machine in the primaries, was about the only New York City leader with a whole borough for his bailiwick to come to the notification.

Mr. Smith arrived here early this evening after making addresses at the Oswego County Fair in Fulton. He will return to New York tomorrow.

WANT HARRIS TO RESIGN.

Democratic Leaders Had Reports of Chairman's Contract Connections.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The probable retirement of Edwin S. Harris from the Chairmanship of the Democratic State Committee, to which he was elected a few weeks ago, was foreshadowed as Democratic leaders from up State gathered here today for the notification of the Democratic candidates. Reports recently published, indicating that Mr. Harris had sought to benefit financially from war contracts, were given as a reason by the up-State men for their desire to see him relinquish his place.

Mr. Harris said tonight that he had not been asked to resign, nor had he volunteered to do so. About the time this statement was forthcoming, a prominent Democratic leader declared that Mr. Harris had offered and would be expected to produce in New York tomorrow evening documentary proof that the charges made against him were groundless.

Norman E. Mack, Democratic National Committeeman, was urged by up-State Democrats to use his influence for the retirement of Mr. Harris. Mr. Mack left for his home in Buffalo this evening. It was said that he would be in New York tomorrow night.

TWO GERMAN U-BOATS SUNK BY NAVAL CRAFT

British Submarine Torpedoed One and Destroyer Bombed and Shelled Another.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The destruction of two submarines by British naval craft is thus described: The Captain of a destroyer saw a German U-boat attack a merchant steamer two miles off. The destroyer went to the assistance of the steamer, and the submarine dived.

"When I judged that we were directly over here, I let go a depth charge with a lifebouy to mark the spot," said the Captain. "Within fifteen seconds of the explosion the submarine came to the surface with a slight list to starboard. Immediately the conning tower showed above water all our starboard guns opened fire, and the conning tower was riddled."

A British submarine destroyed the other German U-boat.

"I fired both bow torpedoes almost simultaneously," said the Captain of the British submarine, "and about half a minute later there was a terrific explosion, a big flame, and a fountain of water a hundred feet high. The German submarine totally disappeared. There was a lot of oil about and the smell of paraffine, but no sign of any part of the boat. I heard shouting in the water and picked up one man."

THOUSANDS VAINLY PLEAD FOR TICKETS

dress which will not only mark the opening of the selling campaign for America's Six Billion Dollar Liberty Loan, but one which, it is believed, will prove a historic utterance on the world war by democracy's spokesman.

Judging from the applications for tickets received yesterday, the Liberty Loan Committee would not have had any difficulty in filling an auditorium ten or twenty times the capacity of the opera house. The telephone exchange at the committee's headquarters was virtually taken over by incoming pleading calls for tickets. There was a steady stream of messengers and a heavy mail overwhelming the committee with requests.

The committee asked the newspapers to explain that tonight's meeting was arranged for the "Liberty Loan Army," consisting of the various Liberty Loan committeemen and women throughout the New York Federal Reserve District, who are to get their inspiration directly from the President on the eve of the three weeks' campaign. There are approximately 50,000 committee members. The seating capacity of the opera house is approximately 3,500; the stage will accommodate about 50, and with the standees the total will be about 5,000, and that number of tickets had to be apportioned among 50,000 workers.

Remarkable Eagerness Shown.

The eagerness of the public to have an opportunity to see and hear the President was considered remarkable. At the committee offices and other places men and women offered to pay almost any price for a ticket, but none was for sale. They implored bank presidents and citizens of standing and influence to obtain tickets for them, but with no success.

The doors of the Opera House will open at 7:30 o'clock and admission will be only by ticket. Besides the address by the President, the program includes a brief speech by Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, who will preside, and the singing of patriotic songs by John McCormack. He will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," "When Pershing's Boys Go Marching Into Picardy," and "When You Come Back."

Before the meeting begins at 8 o'clock the city will be treated to the "noise concert" arranged by the Police Department.

Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank received yesterday the following letter from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo:

My dear Governor: I want to impress upon you the importance of having all activities in the way of solicitation of orders for Liberty Loan bonds under the control of the Liberty Loan Committee.

While I appreciate the patriotic enthusiasm which inspires many citizens with the desire to conduct extensive campaigns for the sale of these bonds, I know that you will realize that with the wonderful organization which we have now established throughout the country all efforts must be under their direction.

Yours sincerely, W. G. McADOO.

Governor Whitman, it was announced, would buy the first Liberty bond of the Fourth Loan at midnight tonight, thus signaling the formal beginning of the selling campaign. He will make a brief address at Liberty Hall, an out-door rostrum in Times Square, which has been designed by David Belasco. Other speakers there will be Internal Revenue Collector Edwards, former United States Senator Theodore E. Burton, and Major Gen. W. A. White, head of the British Recruiting Mission.

"Air Raid" Tomorrow.

A novel air raid on New York City will be carried out tomorrow by Italian and French "aces." Captain Jacques Boyriven and Lieutenant Georges Flachaire, under the direction of Major Beroetta of the French Aviation Mission to the United States, will fly two fast Nieuport combat biplanes which were used at the recent Somme front by famous French "aces." Lieutenant Julian Parvis, the Italian aviator, will pilot the new American-made Caproni which is equipped with three Liberty motors.

The planes will start from Mineola at 5 o'clock tomorrow evening and fly to New York. The aviators will drop "aerograms" reading:

We Have Fought for Democracy for Four Years. Help Us Win the War—Buy Liberty Bonds!

Announcement was made yesterday of the rules for the competition for having ships and tanks named after towns which establish records for subscriptions to the Fourth Loan. The idea originated with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. The right to compete for the honor of naming ten ships is reserved to banking towns, and the naming of tanks is reserved to non-banking towns. The award will be based on the percentage of oversubscription of quotas and on the percentage of population of the respective communities subscribing to the loan.

The Finance Committee of the National Surety Company authorized yesterday a $1,000,000 subscription from the company's capital and surplus to the Fourth Liberty Loan. The company subscribed $1,000,000 to each of the other three loans.

LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE EAGERLY AWAITED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Premature eagerness by scores of communities to gather Liberty Loan subscriptions before the formal opening of the campaign Saturday kept the Treasury officials busy today telegraphing that advance pledges would not be recognized in the records of cities or towns. Pledges may be held until Saturday, however, and turned in by soliciting committees to swell the total for the first day.

Unofficial advices to Washington said several towns already had "oversubscribed" by getting several times more pledges than they believed their quotas would be. Although not frowning upon this eagerness, the Treasury will take no cognizance of preliminary bond soliciting.

Committees in many localities reported today that they were prepared to start canvassing one minute after tomorrow midnight and to bring in their harvest of pledges before dawn Saturday. No arrangements have been made for a nationwide competition for first honors of oversubscribing, owing to the difficulty after the Third Loan of deciding to what towns the honors belonged.

Director General McAdoo today instructed Region Directors to have posted at shops and stations another appeal to railway employes to subscribe to the Liberty Loan.

Approximately 25,000 show windows of 105 chain-stor concerns will be used by the Treasury Department for advertising purposes during the loan drive. The windows were offered to the Department of Labor.

Fuel Administrator Garfield announced tonight that the "lightless night" order would not be suspended during the Liberty Loan campaign. Requests for a suspension so that lights might be used in advertising the loan had come from many agencies. Reiterating that coal is urgently needed for the manufacture of munitions for General Pershing's forces, Dr. Garfield said that not even a Liberty Loan campaign justified its use for electric light advertising.

Thirty-nine German field guns, captured by American soldiers in France, have arrived in this country and are being distributed to eastern cities for display during the loan campaign. The guns range from three to six inches in calibre, and bear the names of thousands of American soldiers penciled on the guns themselves, the wheels, and carriages in the hope that they may be seen by friends and relatives back home. Most of these guns were captured in the recent allied offensive between Soissons and Rheims.

How to buy Bonds and pay your Taxes too

Notwithstanding that this Fourth Liberty Loan must be completely subscribed, a lot of people are asking, "How can I buy more bonds than I ever did before and still pay my taxes?"

Nearly all of us civilians have a private conceit that we would make pretty good officers if called into active service. Our intelligence---our experience in dealing with men---our ability to overcome difficulties---and all that stuff.

Just suppose you were a General and were told to get out after a bunch of retreating Germans.

Would you say "How can I follow up and maintain contact with a bunch of fast moving Germans, handle the prisoners, collect the abandoned material, have my men in fresh fighting trim and maintain my transport and communication service at the same time?" Would you ask that?

A bum sort of Brigadier you would make if you did.

Well, General, please remember that you are a General. You are General Public. And it is your business here to go after the Germans with bond-buying as your front and tax-paying as your flanks.

In order to do it, you have to do what the soldier does. You have to get on a war basis.

That's the way to buy bonds and pay taxes, too. Get on a war basis.

This war isn't something to read about in the papers and talk about at lunch. It's something to be fought and won.

It's all right to talk about the "initiative of the American soldier." He has it.

But where is your initiative? Are you going to work out your problem or are you going to ask the Loan Committee "How can I do it?" with self-pitying hopelessness?

It is your decision, for you to make. The British have done it. The French have done it. Even the cussed Germans have done it somehow. Most Americans are gritting their teeth and tackling the problems of living on less---buying their quota of bonds, paying their share of taxes.

Are you going to hold your place in the civilian ranks or drop out and ride the captain's horse?

It's not so hard. It's really easier than carrying about seventy-five pounds of equipment for fifteen miles up a one way hill with a blistered heel and a few machine guns at the top of the hill peppering away at you.

Get on a War Basis.

MRS. MELLEN HEARS HUSBAND TESTIFY

Row Happened While She Was Darning—She Hit Him with Darning Egg, He Says.

LOANS MADE TO MRS. BROWN

Denies He Furnished Funds for a Suit Against Mrs. Mellen—Tells of Lamar's Visits.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Katherine L. Mellen, accompanied by her eldest daughter Katherine, came into the Probate Court this afternoon while her husband was being cross-examined during the hearing in his petition for a decree permitting him to live apart from his wife. It was the first time that Mrs. Mellen attended the proceedings, and she stayed only long enough to confer with her attorney, M. B. Warner. Before leaving the court-room Mrs. Mellen gave out this statement:

"I have been grossly misrepresented, and when the real facts in this case are known the sympathy of the public will be with me. I have made no defense against the cruel allegations charged against my character as yet, but in proper time and place revelations will be made which will vindicate me before the world. To those familiar with my side of the case, I need no vindication."

Mr. Mellen in the course of his testimony today told of three visits paid to his home at Stockbridge by David Lamar, the "Wall Street Wolf." Mr. Mellen testified that Lamar was an uninvited guest and took dinner at the Mellen home on one occasion because he did not respond to suggestions to leave when the dinner hour had arrived.

Mr. Mellen denied that he had furnished Mrs. Margaret B. Brown, the wife of Harry Douglas Brown, with money to finance a suit against Mrs. Mellen. He admitted that he had loaned Mrs. Brown $3,000 on a note in November, 1917, which was the month she brought an action against Mrs. Mellen, charging the alienation of the affections of Mr. Brown, a suit subsequently withdrawn. Mr. Mellen said he took collateral security for the money and loaned it because Mrs. Brown seemed to be in distress.

The witness, in answering questions of his wife's counsel, said that Mrs. Mellen was accustomed to drinking and that he had taken a cocktail with her occasionally. He said he considered this "no crime, but a very foolish custom." He told of striking his wife because she had scolded their children for littering his desk. On one occasion, he said, he kicked her. In November, 1917, Mr. Mellen testified, he had a black eye for two weeks after his wife hit him with a piece of marble used in darning stockings.

When the court opened today Attorney Crim began reading letters from New Haven astrologers which he found in the private box of the Mellen family safe in Stockbridge. The letters from the astrologers, Abdul Hamid and his wife, Frances Cuttut, all written by Mrs. Cuttut, and some of them containing dictations from Abdul, contained very little of interest. Their contents were suggestive at times because they appeared to be reports of surveillance of some persons at the Cumberland Hotel, in New York, where it is said that H. Douglas Brown and his wife lived at the time. The letters began March 21, 1916, and continued over several months.

Mr. Warner asked Mr. Mellen about the visits of the late James B. Brady [Diamond Jim] to Stockbridge. Mr. Mellen said he had known Mr. Brady for forty years in a friendly way, and that Mr. Brady had visited Stockbridge often.

Mr. Warner questioned Mr. Mellen at some length on his claim that his legal residence is in New Haven. Mr. Mellen admitted that he had not passed a night in his house there in three years, but said he voted, paid taxes and maintained his legal residence there. His income is $53,000 a year, according to his income tax return, he said, and later he admitted that he had made money since he left the New Haven system.

The witness said he regarded his daughter, Kathryn, as a spy when he found her removing articles from her mother's room and concealing them in the servants' quarters.

Mr. Warner brought out from the witness that he had bought parcels of land and had them deeded to his wife. "At one time," said Mr. Mellen, "I was going to deed all of my real estate to my wife. I thought it the proper thing for a husband to do."

Here Mr. Warner began cross-examining Mellen regarding his life with Mrs. Mellen.

"Hadn't Mrs. Mellen always tried to cheer you up during your railroad troubles?" asked Mr. Warner.

"I recall no such incidents," the witness replied.

"You said Mrs. Mellen was 'loaded' most of the time. What do you mean by that?" the counsel asked.

"I said nothing of the kind. I said Mrs. Mellen was seldom drunk, but that she carried a load most of the time," replied Mr. Mellen.

The questions and answers then continued as follows:

"Well, what do you mean by a load?"
"She carried a drink."
"How do you know?"
"I could smell it."
"Your smellers are good?"
"Excellent."
"You take a cocktail once in a while yourself?"
"I do. It is a foolish custom."
"You drank cocktails in your home with Mrs. Mellen?"
"Yes."
"You have drunk cocktails and wine at banquets?"
"Yes, but very little.
"When you were coming up from New York in the evening Mrs. Mellen waited for dinner until you arrived?"
"She did."
"When you were going away early in the morning she had breakfast with you?"
"Yes."
"Wasn't that commendable of her?"
"Yes."
"Her children love her?"
"I hope they do."

Going into the matter of the time when Mr. Mellen alleged Mrs. Mellen struck him with a marble darning egg, Mr. Warner asked:

"She was darning her own stockings?"
"Yes," Mr. Mellen answered.
"She was a thrifty housewife, wasn't she?"
"Far from it," the witness said. Mr. Mellen added that the servants darned his stockings.

Describing the alleged encounter, which was introduced as grounds for a separation, Mr. Mellen went over the recital of the encounter in the living room. Mrs. Mellen, he said, was darning her hose and was using the marble egg. She struck him on the little finger with the egg and then she went at him with her hands.

"She had the egg in the stocking," the witness continued. "She hit me with egg twice. Then I put out my hand to ward off the blows. The hand hit her on the nose and made her nose bleed."

"Did you kick her good and proper?" Mr. Warner asked.

"I kicked her once," replied Mr. Mellen.

Mr. Mellen then said that his wife struck him in the eye and the eye was bruised for two weeks. He denied that the bruise had been caused by a fall down a flight of stairs, asserting that the fall took place months before the alleged encounter with his wife.

Lucien Muratore Back from France.

Lucien Muratore, the French tenor, arrived here yesterday from a brief holiday in France, accompanied by his wife, Lina Cavalieri, the Italian soprano. The tenor said that he would sing in concerts on the Pacific Coast within two weeks and then travel eastward, and would also help the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign.

"CARMEN" SUNG IN FRENCH.

Mme. Sylva Applauded as Heroine of American Singers' Production.

As the third item in its repertoire of opéra comiqu the Society of American Singers last night gave "Carmen" at the Park Theatre. The cause of opera in English was laid aside for the time being and "Carmen," apparently at the request of Marguerite Sylva, was sung in French—not altogether to the comfort of one or two members of the cast. Mme. Sylva's Carmen, heard here last Winter with the Chicago opera company, was received with much applause, and extensive floral offerings were sent up to her as she took the curtain after the second act. Carmen as Mme. Sylva plays her is a hardened character, dripping with wickedness and more likely to frighten than to lure a José of the bucolic purity given to the part by Riccardo Martin. Mr. Martin sang very well indeed, perhaps better than any other in the cast, though Henri Scott, as Escamillo and Ruth Miller as Micaela were well liked. In the minor parts were Blanche de Costa, Florence Mulford, Franklin Riker, Walter Greene, Howard White, and Harvey Wilson.

Richard Hageman got good work out of the orchestra, so much so that he even put a certain amount of enthusiasm into the preliminary "Star-Spangled Banner." The limitations of the stage caused the omission of the picadores and the carriage in the last act, and Edouard and Laura Kurylo danced without the support of a ballet. The opéra comique character was not much stressed; the dialogue was sung, not spoken, and aside from the merry evening in Seville portrayed in the second act there was no unusual levity in the representation, except the Escamillo of Mr. Scott, who leaned toward the jovial rather than the pompous. It was interesting to observe the garrison of Seville getting the latest war news out of La Prensa.

San Carlo Gives "Barber of Seville."

Comedians of the San Carlo Opera Company had their innings last night, and made the most of them in a performance of Rossini's "Barber of Seville" at the Shubert Theatre. The veterans, Cervi, as Dr. Bartolo, and De Blasi, as Badillo, earned many laughs, even from those who did not understand their jokes in Italian. Miss Mario, in her fourth "Sembrich rôle" as Rosina, won applause with the aria, "Una Voco Poco Fa." Joseph Royer sang Figaro in fine voice, and Romeo Boscacci, who was not in good voice, was Almaviva. Stella De Mette took a minor rôle in place of Alice Homer, who was said to be slightly ill with influenza.

clustered in galleries by themselves and were easily distinguished by the yellow colors they wore, while the anti-suffragists sat in opposite galleries, wearing their red badges.

The debate ran along for five hours. It started when Senator Jones called up the amendment, the same one, as to phraseology, that was drawn up by Miss Susan B. Anthony in 1875. It reads:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

This amendment was adopted by the House of Representatives on Jan. 10 of this year and has been in the Senate ever since.

The debate was focused chiefly upon an amendment to insert the word "white" before the word "citizens." This was offered by Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, to prevent colored women from voting in the South. Later in the day Senator Jones of New Mexico charged that this amendment had been offered to block a vote.

Race Question Raised.

Senator Vardaman of Mississippi took the floor at once, to support the Williams amendment. While he favored the vote to women, the Mississippian said, he knew "only too well," the danger there would come in the South if negro women obtained suffrage. Senator Vardaman deprecated what he called "the timidity of white men of the South to make a political issue of the negro question in suffrage." However, he said, he would vote for the Susan B. Anthony amendment, regardless of whether the franchise was to go to the colored women.

Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, said that in view of the fact his State had gone on record for suffrage for women, he would yield his vote, even though he opposed it.

Senator Hardwick of Georgia spoke earnestly for the Williams amendment. He said the South had one difficult problem with its negro vote and did not want it accentuated.

"This is a grave problem for the South," said Senator Hardwick. "With all due deference to the men of the North, I say you do not quite understand what it means when you vote to give the franchise to the negro. I predict that after this war the negro question in this country is going to be one of the most difficult ones. You will have colored soldiers coming from France, where they have been fighting and you will want them to have the vote.

"Either you hybridize the South or you must maintain a system such as we have there now. The facts must be plainly stated and squarely faced. It is in the hysteria of war that this suffrage amendment has been forced upon us. In other times it would be quickly voted down. Now men are afraid to do it."

The Georgian insisted that States' rights would be trampled by giving the suffrage to colored women of the South. The privilege of States defining what are to be the qualifications of voters for State or municipal offices, he said, ought not be taken away. Senator Shaffroth interrupted to say that the Democratic Party had not pledged itself to oppose woman suffrage. Senator Hardwick thereupon read from the platforms of both parties to show, as he expressed it, that they had both "come out unequivocally for States' rights."

Senator Hardwick declared that, "no matter if the President himself has abandoned the pledge of the Democratic Party, I will not do it myself."

Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican of New Jersey, in announcing himself in favor of the amendment, said that it had been unfortunately phrased.

"While I shall vote for it, I want to say that, as drawn, it is a sinister menace to the country," said the New Jersey Senator. "It violates our naturalization laws."

If adopted as phrased, the Senator said, the amendment would automatically naturalize any alien who married an American citizen. He offered an amendment to provide that "no person, male or female, shall exercise the suffrage unless he or she has acquired citizenship by birth or the naturalization laws."

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, said he would vote against the suffrage amendment because the people of his State had voted against giving the franchise to women. Senator Gudon, Democrat, of Louisiana, was "unalterably opposed to having the suffrage question settled by Federal legislation."

Senator Fletcher, Democrat, of Florida, was opposed to the amendment, he said, because it was "all against the spirit of the Constitution," in guaranteeing State's rights. The Florida Senator offered a substitute reading "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be abridged by the United States on account of sex." That, he said, would preserve the right of the States to determine the suffrage qualifications of its voters.

"And that," he said, "is as far as I will go."

Senators McKellar of Tennessee, Willfley of Missouri, and Thompson of Kansas, Democrats, all supported the amendment. Votes on the amendments offered by Senators Williams and Fletcher will be taken either tomorrow or Saturday.

DEFER NEWBERRY INQUIRY.

Senators Also Put Off La Follette Investigation Until After Election.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Senate Committee on Elections, by a vote to 10 to 1, today decided to postpone until after the November elections consideration of the resolution providing for an investigation into expenditures made in the primary campaign in Michigan which resulted in Truman H. Newberry receiving the Republican Senatorial nomination. It also was decided to postpone further consideration of the charges involving the loyalty of Senator La Follette because of his St. Paul speech until after election, owing to the absence from the city of many members of the committee.

The motion to postpone temporarily consideration of the resolution was made by Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico. Only Senator Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio opposed it. Most of the members of the committee believed that to conduct inquiries into campaign expenditures now would be unfair to candidates, and might unduly influence elections. There was also a question regarding the Senate's authority to conduct such an investigation before a candidate's election.

SLAIN IN RIOTS IN INDIA.

High Food Prices Was the Cause of Trouble in Madras.

SIMLA, India, Sept. 26, (Via Montreal.)—Several persons were killed in Calcutta and Madras as a result of riots in those cities in the last few days. The riots were quelled by the police and detachments of the Indian defense Corps.

In Calcutta there were serious disturbances due to ill-feeling on the part of sections of the Mohammedan population.

High food prices resulted in minor disorders in Madras. Looting accompanied the rioting in both cities.

Swiss Subscribe for Wilson Medal.

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—The national Swiss subscription for the purpose of presenting to President Wilson a gold medal as a thank offering for the protection of Switzerland when in economic straits, is receiving hearty support. Several towns have expressed their intention of changing German-named streets to American.

VON HERTLING AT HIS WORST.

A desperate hardihood in mendacity and a certain carelessness about the consistency and coherence of his utterance characterize the speech made by the German Chancellor VON HERTLING on Tuesday before that much-tried but still patient body, the Main Committee of the Reichstag. It cannot have been remorse of conscience that prompted the Chancellor to recite again the story of the German invasion of Belgium, in the hope that by repeating the old lies he might remove any impression lodged anywhere in the German mind that the Imperial Government had done something wrong. We may leave conscience out of the question altogether. But why, then, retell the old tale about a British and French agreement with Belgium by which their troops were to be permitted to invade Germany over the soil of that kingdom? There was no such agreement. Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality was without other justification than that of brutal might, with no excuse save to get into France as quickly as possible.

In view of the treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, with which all Germans are familiar, how could VON HERTLING say with a straight face that "all thought of conquest is far from our minds"? "From the first "day we have waged this war as a "war of defense." The dullest German must know this is not true, just as he must know, if his intellectual interests extend to the sphere of international politics, that the world war was "not prepared years ago by the "well-known encircling policy of King "EDWARD." Probably this is the gem of the Chancellor's speech: "Finally "comes the protection of small na- "tions. Here we can forthwith and "without reserve state that in this "matter we have an entirely clear "conscience." We must bring conscience into the matter, after all, but it must be borne in mind that it is the German conscience which, though it be as black as midnight with the record of old crimes, seems crystal clear to the apprehension of the German ruling classes. But how do intelligent Germans not of the ruling class take these things? That is still one of the unfathomable mysteries of the German mind.

The Chancellor makes the plainest confession yet made in Germany that the Imperial cause is in a bad way, that the German armies are everywhere suffering reverses. He speaks of the "deep discontent" that has seized "upon wide circles of the population"; of "the sufferings and de- "privations which have brought in "their wake sacrifices which war im- "poses upon all classes and all fami- "lies"; and of "our present military situation" as the cause of this discontent. The army command has been obliged "to withdraw our far-flung lines," and "the situation is grave." Hitherto it had not been necessary to use such language in speaking of Germany's military situation.

But VON HERTLING rather bunglingly tries to restore the people's courage by reminding them of the first reverse of the Marne, of the failure of the Verdun offensive, of the battle of the Somme, and of BRUSILOFF's rushing assault; also of "the well-known unfavorable reaction" on the Italian front. There is small cheer in that. America had not entered the war when these reverses were encountered, Germany's man-power was still abundant, the morale of the troops was high. Now disasters come when 1,750,000 of American troops are in France, and when preparations are making to send new millions for the reinforcement of the Allies, when a great Turkish army is either destroyed or on the way to destruction; when Bulgarian forces are, to their evident surprise, driven back from positions felt to be secure; and when dire alarms are reported from Sofia and from Constantinople. However, the Chancellor puts on a bold front and declares that "our "business is to stand together, cool, "confident, united, and resolute." They may try to be resolute, but the Germans at this dark hour certainly cannot be confident.

Then he rails at "the wildest war fury" that is raging in the United States. It is not the habit of this peaceful nation to give itself up to wild war fury. What VON HERTLING mistakes for fury is a firm and united resolve of the American people that Germany shall be punished for her crimes, that she shall be shorn of the power ever again to plunge the world into bloody strife. The various parts of the Chancellor's speech do not hang together. At first he is compassionate, then doleful, then he is reassuring; later he assumes a hopeful tone and exhorts the German people to stand by their Government. Finally, he appeals to the Allies to be reasonable, to recognize the kindly consideration he has given to President WILSON's terms. It is a strange speech, but it does leave upon the mind the distinct impression that the German Chancellor is "rattled." That, we imagine, is a pretty accurate reflection of the state of mind of all Germany.

WORK FOR THE LIBERTY LOAN.

The American people know by this time that when they subscribe to a Liberty Loan they are fighting Germany as truly as if they were firing guns at Metz. Secretary MCADOO did not need to teach that lesson in his speech opening the campaign for the new loan of $6,000,000,000. He emphasized the fact that we must all work hard to raise it, and he pointed out the field in which there must be special endeavor.

Only 22,500 persons, he tells us, bought bonds over $10,000 in amount; only 22,500 out of 18,000,000. It is, as he says, "preposterous" to suppose that there are only 22,500 persons and corporations in this country who are able to buy more than $10,000 worth of bonds. There are many more, and those who are rich enough to subscribe large amounts and did not subscribe for the third loan must be labored with now. They are intelligent enough to know that they will lose nothing by it, but, on the contrary, are making a safe investment.

It is a bright picture, however, that Secretary MCADOO paints when he turns to the smaller subscribers, those who subscribed in amounts ranging from $50 to $10,000. They number no less than 18,000,000, deducting the 22,500 who represent the patriotism of the rich. They will do as well in this new loan, and we hope Mr. MCADOO's contrast will bring to their side those better off in this world's goods than they. Tonight the President is to make an address in aid of the loan campaign. The work will begin in earnest Saturday morning, and must be kept up with all diligence and zeal until the $6,000,000,000 and more is subscribed.

A HIGHLY INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE.

Whatever just or unmerited criticism of Mr. HENRY FORD can be made, even Envy cannot deny that he is the most independent, free and easy, and, if it may be said without disrespect, devil-may-care candidate now on exhibition. Not long ago he said that he would give a million dollars if he could escape the candidacy for Senator that was to be thrust upon him. At that time he had not been nominated. There was a place of penitence for him. He could have withdrawn. A Michigan statute of 1917 forbids a candidate nominated for office by a political party to do that. The only way such a candidate can escape his candidacy is to get out of the State, become physically disabled, or die. Naturally, none of these means of avoidance appeals to Mr. FORD. He saves his million dollars. He faces his political honors or perils, jovially and bravely.

The Democratic State Convention seemed to have a happy sense of humor, and to understand the divagations, somersaults, and Titmarshian principles of perspective that obtain in Primaryland. Instead of pretending to give advice and instructions to Mr. FORD, the convention asked him for them. He has no right or title to give them, he says modestly, but he does take occasion to tell the convention and the public that, having accepted the nomination at the request of President WILSON, and having been nominated on the Democratic ticket, it is only fair that people who expect to vote for him should understand that he is not a party man, that he is under no pledge, save "to support "President WILSON'S war measures "while he continues his present and "past wise course in the conduct of "the war." If elected, he will be free to support such measures, Democratic or Republican, as seem to him "for the best interests of all the people." As for the new questions that will arise after the war, "these must "be dealt with, as they arise, in the "broadest and most liberal spirit, for "the good of all mankind."

If these promises are a little vague, they are entirely unexceptionable. At least, only a Hunker Democrat could object to them. For a nonpolitician who can't remember the name of the candidate for President for whom he cast his first vote, Mr. FORD seems to be "playing" shrewd politics. So far as he can, he attaches himself to and shelters himself in the mighty influence and popularity of Mr. WILSON. And he has to be independent. In the Michigan Presidential primary of 1916 he got, whether in jest or earnest, some 83,000 votes to Senator WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH'S less than 78,000. The Michigan Democratic bosses tried to make the Republicans nominate him for Senator this year. To win he must have a fat sheaf of Republican votes. But thrice in two generations have Michigan Democrats elected a Governor. Only once or twice in all that time have they had a majority in either branch of the Legislature. Not since 1857 has there been a Wolverine Democratic Senator. In ordinary times there are perhaps 125,000 more Republican votes than Democratic. Since the wicked deprived Mr. FORD of the Republican nomination, he must have abundant Republican support. Consequently, he cannot be too independent.

Mr. FORD'S chief qualification to be a Conscript Father has been dwelt on enthusiastically by State Senator BOLEN. Mr. FORD has "built up a popu- "lar, economically sound trade in au- "tomobiles." Moreover, he has the wisdom and good fortune "to own 67 "per cent. of the capital stock of a "property valued at $225,000,000." Mr. BOLEN admits that "probably he "lacks a deep and far-reaching grasp "of history and of the ethnic and eco- "nomic forces that operate between "races and nations." So do a lot of other people. It is Mr. FORD'S distinction that he has put the people on wheels. He has given pleasure to millions. He has made money almost as easily as by the rubbing of Aladdin's lamp. He is like a god of prosperity. Many folks in Michigan admire him as a marvelously successful business man. Many vote for him, doubtless, from the same high reasons that finally made a very different kind of man, General BUTLER, Governor of Massachusetts, just "to see what the old man will do."

One likes to believe—one does believe—that Mr. FORD is sincere. When he speaks of the fact that not a dollar was expended by him, or in his behalf, to get the nomination, he reflects by implication on Mr. NEWBERRY, the Republican candidate, who had to spend quite a pot of money in advertising. Mr. FORD forgets that he had done his advertising earlier, that his name rolls over most of the roads of the world. Mr. NEWBERRY had no such luck. And Mr. NEWBERRY'S qualifications for the Senate are entirely different from those of his amiable opponent. The philosopher is not surprised to observe that, while Mr. FORD is forgiven for being incredibly rich, Mr. NEWBERRY must not be forgiven for being reasonably forehanded.

RUSSIA SIX WEEKS AGO.

Confirming and adding to the reports of the American correspondents who recently escaped from Russia to Stockholm, there comes out of Russia a dispatch that was sent to England before their flight. It is dated Aug. 14, before the worst phase of the Terror set in, and saw the light yesterday in The London Times, to which it was sent, and in The Philadelphia Public Ledger. "The last time I attempted to send a message," the correspondent writes, "was on July 10." That was rejected, and his dispatch of Aug. 14 gets into print six weeks after it was sent.

It was written just after the arrest of Consul General LOCKHART, and records much that we all know—for instance, the arrest of thousands, "some say 12,000," of retired Russian Army officers. But it gives some additional details concerning the means by which the Bolsheviki seek to serve their German employers by turning Russia against the Allies:

> Everything possible has been done to excite the ignorant, misinformed, and bewildered populace against us. In this respect the communistic Commissionaires and Deputies set no bounds for their malicious mendacity. Their journals all the time give us "news" of general uprisings in India, rebellions in Ireland, labor, railway, and munition strikes in England, and the imminent downfall of British imperialism both at home and in the colonies.
> He quotes from a placard posted on "every wall and housefront in Petrograd," which calls upon the workmen to enroll themselves in the new army and save the country from the English and French and Czechoslovaks:
> With the aid of the Russian Black Hundreds, English capitalists are capturing one town after another, taking away our crops, slaughtering our brethren, violating our wives and sisters, and robbing our homes.
> "Whole trainloads of grain," he says, "are being taken from boats on "the Volga at Nijni Novgorod and "transported to Dvinsk by the Ger- "mans." The people complain of scarcity, but they do not suspect the Germans. Why? Because the Bolsheviki, who control all the avenues of publication, inform them that it is the Allies who are doing the stealing.
> Domestic animals are becoming scarce. The few remaining horses, except those belonging to the Bolsheviki, kept for their benefit or that of their friends, are mere hide-covered skeletons. A week or two ago eight dead or dying horses were counted in a distance of less than half a mile. The flesh had been cut from the dead animals, which had lain by the roadside several days, and used as human food. There are no more stray dogs; they have been seen biting the dust and gnawing the curbstones in the agony of hunger pangs.

This was six weeks ago, before the general slaughter had yet attained its height under the direction of URITZKY—"the terrible URITZKY," this correspondent calls him, who two weeks later was to die at the hand of one of the Social Revolutionists whom MARIA SPIRIDONOVA has loosed against the Bolsheviki. What is going on in Russia now is a blank to us; we know nothing of it except what the Bolsheviki and the Germans are willing for us to know, or what leaks out by way of Stockholm.

RESTIVE POLAND.

The advice given to the Polish proletariat by a paper of the Radical Peasant Party, reported in a dispatch from Stockholm, is so good that it is no wonder that publication of the journal has been prohibited by the German authorities: "Here the Ger- "man military power rules, and our "Governments are powerless against "it wherever Germans are in com- "mand. * * * The Polish people "must shake off the German yoke by "force, and at the same time our "own governing class must withdraw "from the scene. Any one who has "witnessed the Russian revolution "and the outrageous methods of the "Bolsheviki must understand that we "have to use other methods. * * * "We appeal to you to set to work and "labor assiduously to join the union "of the masses in order, without "bloodshed, to break the foreign yoke "and create a union of free people."

Get at the truth under the German-Austrian fiction of "free Poland"; overthrow, by peaceable methods, those classes of our people who support the Germans and Austrians—this is the advice of the Radical organ. Throughout Eastern Europe the German-Austrian policies have naturally attracted the interests of the land-holding aristocracy, fearful of peasant agitation for redistribution of economic and political power, and to some extent this has occurred in Poland. The extensive ownership of land by Polish nobles in countries where the bulk of the population is not only not of Polish race, but is apt to cherish an acient grievance against the Poles, is one of the chief obstacles to an easy rearrangement of racial allegiances. But it is important to observe that considerable groups of the Polish aristocracy are as wide awake to the movement of events as are other classes of the population. Mr. PADEREWSKI'S friendly reference to Lithuania at the recent Slav mass meeting here may in the future be regarded as an episode of the first importance; for it may mark the beginning of a better understanding between races who have the utmost incentive to co-operation in the danger which threatens them all from Germany.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Grieves Because of Hatred!

At several points in his address to the Reichstag Main Committee, Count VON HERTLING presented in as many forms the curious and characteristic Teutonic complaint that the Entente nations are in a state of rage against Germany—a condition that, he says, prevents them from seeing the facts in the case and from acting otherwise than in a mad determination to destroy the German State and people.

He spoke of "a hatred which eschews all moderation and chokes off all just judgment," he said that M. CLEMENCEAU displayed "a fanatical hatred" and "a coarseness of mind" that "surpassed anything of the kind hitherto achieved," and then we had our turn—"the wildest war fury is at present raging in the United States." Germany, on the contrary, he pictured as always calm and cool; with no display of what Admiral VON HINTZE called "a war psychosis and the intoxication of victory."

Such talk as this recalls the ancient story of the bitten man who, when assured that the dog was not mad, replied, "Of course not—why should he be? But I am!"

The Imperial Chancellor draws no deduction from the existence in so many quarters of a bitter antagonism to Germany. It does not even hint to him that so many peoples would not be likely to agree in feeling and manifesting such a sentiment if there were not good reason for it. He forgets that a nation cannot commit a long series of atrocious crimes against its neighbors and still find those neighbors with temper unheated by resentment and indignation.

Something of what he takes for hatred of the sinner is merely that hatred of sin against which even the severest and most pacific of moralists utter no reproof, and he demands too much of human nature when he asks it constantly to make and observe that often very delicate distinction. He would be better employed if, instead of complaining that Germany is hated—and undoubtedly it is—he had indulged in the examination of conscience, which is a well-recognized means of grace, and had undertaken an honest inquiry into the question whether or not Germany has given cause for hatred.

There are psychologists in Germany, too, who could tell him that wars of necessity develop hatred in those who participate in them—that hatred is the natural anaesthetic which alone enables people to endure the inevitable agonies of war.

A Danger Too Late Realized.

It is lamentably evident that the malady called Spanish influenza is fast assuming the pandemic form in this country, and lamentably evident, too, that it is a really serious affliction. Of panic because of it there is no need whatever, but it is to be regretted that the measures for its restriction and suppression which our civilian and military health authorities are now taking did not begin some weeks ago—that is, immediately on the arrival of the first cases from abroad.

At that time we were assured that because we were adequately fed and had not suffered any such great and prolonged mental strains as have the populations of most European countries, there was no danger that the disease would spread here either as rapidly or as far as it did there. All of these assurances have proved fallacious, and nowhere among us have the ravages of the influenza been as swift or as often fatal as in our training camps, among men as strong and well fed as any in the world. They are all young, too, and the great majority of them are suffering from no mental strain except the one produced by an eager desire to get "over there" as quickly as possible.

As a matter of fact, the malady is practically indiscriminate in its attacks, and the weak and the strong alike contract it. In other circumstances rigid measures of isolation would, or at least could, have been adopted, with the result of confining the infection within narrow limits. Whether or not such measures, taken betimes, would have interfered more with "the conduct of the war" than will a widespread epidemic among our soldiers and workers—that is a question on which opinions can differ honestly, but it is a question of which the present discussion would not be much more useful than that of whether or not the stable door should be locked after the horse is stolen.

Almost as useless, too, is the advice to keep out of crowds. Country folk will do that anyway, but city folk—except the members of a leisure class never as small as right now—can pay next to no attention to that counsel of perfection. What we all can do, however, is to frown sternly on the unguarded cough and sneeze, and we can abandon the notion that there is something virtuous or heroic in refusing to give up and go to bed when the premonitory symptoms of the influenza make their appearance.

Committed Suicide, the Verdict.

A Justice of the Peace out in Cheyenne recently found himself confronted with the task of deciding what should be done with a soldier who had resented so vigorously a verbal reflection on himself, as a soldier, that the utterer of the obloquious remark was reduced to unending silence, at least so far as this world is concerned. What the representative of Wyoming law decided was to let the soldier go free.

His explanation and justification of the release was brief. "Any soldier," he said, "who is reviled because of his uniform has a perfect right to knock down his assailant. And if the scoffer strikes his head on the curb and death results, that's his misfortune and nobody's fault."

The doctrine is as sound as its expression is vigorous. Fully to approve of it, however, one must assume that there was no more doubt as to the commission of the offense than about the immediateness of its punishment, and even then there will remain in some minds a lingering doubt concerning the wisdom of issuing what might be interpreted as a license to kill.

But all and sundry should remember, and none more carefully than the sort of people to whom the sight of the American uniform is an incitement to disparaging remarks, that tempers are high these days, and breaches of the peace easier to provoke than in ordinary times. The pro-Germans have learned this lesson, and learned it well; the pacifists of their several kinds, including our Bolsheviki, are not yet quite so well informed, but they, too, are more cautious than they were.

CHAPLAIN'S RANK.

Better Service Without the Officer's Insignia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The announcement that Chaplains are to lose their insignia ought to cause them to rejoice instead of protesting, as I understand a hundred or more of them at Camp Taylor have done. The Lieutenant's bars with the Chaplain's crosses were always a sign of the absurdity of trying to mix two distinct orfices. Ask any man who has served under this double standard whether he really thought himself capable of making good in either capacity! If a man wants to be a Lieutenant or a Captain, let him earn the right as other men do. It requires more than an elaborately engraved commission from Washington to make an officer!

On the other hand, if a minister of the gospel wants to serve his fellow men as Chaplain, let him rejoice in the privilege of wearing the insignia of that office, which knows no distinctions of rank where service is to be rendered, and stands in the minds of the men as perhaps the one link in the hour of deepest need with all that is dearest and best in their lives. As a man among men the Chaplain may speak to his fellow men without the intrusion of those artificial relationships which are an essential of military discipline. As an officer among officers, he is at best viewed as one apart from the rank and file. The experience of the American Expeditionary Force was anticipated by those of us who served as Chaplains on the Mexican border in 1916 and there learned that the office of Chaplain was what a man made it—not at all what many army men considered it, an unnecessary nuisance!

The Chaplains with the American Expeditionary Force, as indeed the Chaplains of the allied armies in gereral, have made good in the highest sense. The sacrifice of devotion, the bravery of true manhood, have been recognized in every case, and the little silver cross has been the symbol of the abiding and the eternal, whether worn by priest or pastor, in the hours which have bared men's souls to reality. It is as the man of God, the comforter of souls, the friend in need, that the Chaplain wears upon his uniform a symbol more sacred even than the General's stars, and surely not less entitled to respect. Let the Chaplains honor that little silver cross as it honors every man privileged to wear it, and let them cease all worry about their military rank or lack of it! In this they will become their sacred office and fill a position of unparalleled opportunity and usefulness. Incidentally, with all ranks in the army the office of Chaplain will be recognized as indispensable to the morale and hence to the success of that glorious crusade upon which they have ventured their all.

Old St. John's in Varick Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article in your Sunday edition signed H. K. R. has verified what I feared would happen, i. e., the demolition of old St. John's in Varick Street. I wrote a few years ago to Mr. McAneny of the Board of Aldermen and he generously responded in regard to preserving the portico by allowing the sidewalk to extend out into the street, passing around the base of the columns and then returning to the new sidewalk line, doing all within his power to preserve the magnificent edifice. But it appears it was all of no use. Trinity Corporation was eager for what the site would bring. So it is being destroyed. Very fortunately, I painted two large pictures of it a few years ago from sketches made in 1867-8. But they give a very poor idea of the splendid church edifice itself and the wonderful detail in it all. St. John's was without doubt the most magnificent example of the Sir Christopher Wren type of church architecture in all America—the exterior and the interior particularly. And it is a shame that it was not allowed to stand as a rare example of the early nineteenth century church architecture. Too bad.

NORWAY'S SHIP LOSSES.

A Statement from the Minister on the Attitude of the Owners.

Légation de Norvège aux Etats-Unis,
Washington, Sept. 23, 1918.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your paper for Aug. 9 has under the heading "Norway and the German Boycott" an article in which it is alleged that Norwegian shipowners and sailors are acquiescing in the manner in which German U-boats are sinking Norwegian ships and crews.

I have not failed to call the attention of the organizations of Norwegian shipowners and Norwegian sailors to said article, and I have now got a telegraphic reply from them, to the following effect:

The Norwegian Shipowners' Association knows of no instance whatsoever where any Norwegian shipowner has made any arrangements with the Germans regarding post-war business. It is also highly improbable that any such arrangements have been made, as they would mean a violation of Norwegian law, which prohibits any chartering without the consent of the Shipowners' Association, and the latter has approved no such arrangements as the aforesaid.

The same association further declares that claims of compensation on account of the destruction by the submarines of Norwegian lives and property have been made against Germany.

It is intended to have a conference at Copenhagen in the beginning of October between Dutch, Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian shipowners, business men, and underwriters, in order to consider the steps that ought to be taken to protect their common interests after the war.

The Association of Norwegian Ship Masters declares that the Norwegian branch of the Union of Sailors and Firemen was represented at the meeting in England on the 17th of August and the following days where the questions regarding the submarine warfare and the boycott of German sailors were considered. The said branch was the only Norwegian sailor association invited to that conference.

BARBUSSE AGAIN.

A Protest Against His Second Book as Unfair to France.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In America we have no censor. We have, however, public opinion. And it would be a disgrace for America if no public opinion protest was made against the appearance in an English translation of "Inferno" by the Frenchman, Henri Barbusse. Barbusse is the much discussed author of "Under Fire."

"Inferno" is most plainly the work of an abnormal man, and by no dialectic whatsoever can it be proved that such repulsive pictures were necessary to develop the none too new theme that love means intense suffering, disillusion and despair.

The only excuse for reading "Inferno" would be because this early book by Barbusse explains the later one, "Under Fire," that morbid, gruesomely pessimistic description of the war, and which systematically ignores the heroic and fine sides of human nature brought to light in the midst of frightful horrors.

Some people have plainly maintained that the authorization to publish "Under Fire" was the result of a shocking piece of German propaganda, and they had reasons which were not without weight, (e. g., that this book full of arguments for the campaign of the Defeatists, so strongly waged in 1916, was allowed to pass the censor at the very time when the traitor Malvy was Minister of the Interior. See the discussions of the case in Modern Philology, November, 1918.) The publication of "Inferno" could even more be so interpreted. For, remember that the American people had just—at last—been convinced that the ignoble books which were spread abroad with the etiquette "French Realism," were the undertaking of an insiduous German propaganda to discredit the French nation in the eyes of other countries, and that those books were often printed in Leipsic or Dresden, and sold cheap in neutral countries. It fairly takes one's breath away to read in a most disconcertingly shallow preface that Barbusse is one of "the most distinguished contemporary French writers"—as if distinguished was the same thing as famous: Attila and the Kaiser, Abdul Amid and Cartouche are famous, but not many would call them "distinguished." More than that, "Inferno" is actually called a "spiritual" book, a book through which "a cleansing wind is running." Let us hope the French will be charitable and not judge American literary criticism from such utterances—else the roar of laughter will surely be heard from Paris to New York.

Others before us have tried to put on guard the American public. Because most cordial relations exist today between France and America, and because Americans express so often and so generously their admiration for the fine qualities displayed by the French during the war, some people, of course, must be expected to come and take undue advantage of these feelings; they will try to fool Americans into admiring indiscriminately anything under the sun, by simply writing under it, "made in France"—as before they used "made in Germany." "Inferno" seems most distinctly a case in point.

A FRIEND OF FRANCE.
Northampton, Mass., Sept. 24, 1918.

Another Origin of "Doughboy."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has appeared in the columns of THE TIMES recently several replies to a protest against the use of the word "doughboy" as applied to our soldier boys, and they gave various reasons for its use in connection with the United States Infantry, all of them being erroneous.

If I remember correctly the nickname originated during the civil war. The cavalrymen humorously dubbed the infantry soldiers "doughboys" because of the globular buttons on the infantry uniform at that time. The word has always been both popular with and endearing to the various branches of the service.

"THEY PAY THE COST!"

What shall absolve me, if that I
For Freedom neither live nor die
Or serve with neither brain nor hand
While Liberty makes her demand?
I sacrifice nor strength nor time—
At most I curve a futile rhyme!
What eulogy is mine to give
To those who die that I may live?

How many homes throughout the world
Have been from peace to horror hurled:
The horror of invading foes—
Death—outrage—torture—myriad woes
Beyond most acid point of pen,
Beyond wild, nightmare dreams of men!
And for the ruins that smoldering lie
I spare a half-impatient sigh!

To right these wrongs, to save from fears
Of equal ills the coming years,
How many million lives are pledged!
By them my path is safely hedged;
Youth, love, prosperity, they stake
For Justice and for Freedom's sake.
And yet a passing tear I grudge!
Forgive me, just and righteous Judge!

Break Thou my heart with mighty blows
Until it bleed for others' woes;
Unfix my inward-staring eye
That it may watch how heroes die;
Save me from that worst cowardice
Which trusts to others' sacrifice!
Nor let me count my gifts with pain:
They pay the cost—I grasp the gain!

ARMY VIEW OF PARCEL BAN.

Shipping Too Scarce and Delivery in France Too Big a Problem.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 19, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The restriction of parcel post or express packages to the soldiers in France from folks at home has caused some complaint from both the men over here and generous friends and relatives in America. This order, issued in the early Spring, provides that no package may be sent to a soldier in France except when specifically requested by the individual and approved by his regimental or higher commander. It was promulgated after a careful study of the shipping situation, as well as the needs and requirements of the men, and, notwithstanding some reaction from home in the shape of complaints from soldiers' relatives and among the men themselves, the army authorities feel it is justified.

They point out that if each soldier in an army of a million, and the American Expeditionary Forces are far in excess of that, should receive one five-pound package a month it would involve the handling of 2,500 net tons a month, and require approximately 5,000 ship tons for transport overseas. This would mean the exclusive use of two fair-sized ships a month.

Translated into military needs, the same amount of ship space would maintain in France three full regiments of infantry completely equipped and ready for fighting. Overseas transport, however, they explain, is less formidable than the problem involved in handling and distributing such packages after they have arrived here. The men are not located in a city of streets, but are scattered all over France, in cities and towns and villages, in cantonments and in the trenches, and no soldier in war has a permanent address.

At present the authorities are devoting every effort to the prompt transmission of letter mail, and they feel that this is more important to the happiness of the men and their families than chocolates, cigarettes, mufflers and other presents.

ZONE PERMITS FOR WOMEN.

Enemy Females Will Be Under Same Restrictions as Men on Oct. 6.

United States Marshal McCarthy announced last night that regulations shortly will be promulgated which will place enemy women in exactly the same position as enemy men so far as the barred zones were concerned. Only men are now required to have "restricted zone permits," which gives them the privilege of living in, working in, or passing through certain restricted zones in the Southern District of New York.

Notices as to the time and place where the registrants must appy to receive the blank forms will be published between Oct. 1 and 5.

The rules affecting German women will not go into effect until midnight Oct. 5. In the meantime Marshal McCarthy said it was the desire of the Department of Justice to be as liberal as circumstances warrant in order that German women may not be disturbed unnecessarily in their residences or occupations. Wherever consistent with conditions they will be permitted to pursue their ordinary habits of life as they have in the past.

GRAY FOR CANTEEN WOMEN.

Mayor's Committee Adopts Uniform for Workers.

A military organization of the Canteen Division of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense was formed at a meeting at Delmonico's yesterday. Each Lieutenant will have a staff of a Second Lieutenant, a Corporal, and a Sergeant. These, with the Major of the division and officers of the committee, will wear a uniform of gray, skirt, blouse, coat, trench cap, and spats. Over the indoor or service uniform will be worn through the Winter a military circular cape of West Point gray and trench cap.

The report of the Treasurer of the Canteen Division, Mrs. Ned Arden Flood, showed that 157,000 men had been served in the open-air canteens since their opening. Many theatrical people will take part in the benefit for the Canteen Division at the Hippodrome on Sunday evening, Oct. 6, the proceeds to go to making the open-air canteens warm for Winter service. Tickets will be on sale at the Hippodrome on Monday, Oct. 1.

COOPER UNION IN WAR WORK

Technical School Will Train Men to Become Army Officers.

The Day Technical School of Cooper Union has been recognized as a training unit for the Students' Army Training Corps. By this arrangement the teaching organization and the scientific and technical laboratories of the institution, equipped with the most modern apparatus and machinery, costing more than $150,000, will be placed at the service of the Government in the task of training officers and technical experts for the new draft army.

Students 18 years or more old, who have had a four-year high school education or its equivalent, and are physically fit, who enroll in the institution will be inducted into the Students' Army Training Corps as soon as an officer is assigned to the institution.

CAPTIVE AMERICANS AIDED.

Red Cross Sees to It That They Get Food and Clothing.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The American prisoners in Germany are now receiving 85 per cent. of the packages shipped to them, according to the latest advices. The American Red Cross reports that the delivery of supplies to the prisoners is progressing satisfactorily, with less looting of the packages than heretofore, owing to the practice adopted of binding them with strap iron.

The Red Cross has arranged with the British and French Committees of that organization, which have warehouses near German prison camps, to supply the Americans with food and clothing pending the conclusion of agreements between Germany and the United States. The American Red Cross is paying each imprisoned officer $50 monthly, and it is arranging to have uniforms for the officers made in Berne.

BUS LINES SAVE GASOLINE.

Will Use Kerosene for Motors as Fast as Equipped.

The Fifth Avenue Coach Company announced yesterday that in operating its buses it intends to substitute kerosene for gasolene as quickly as the necessary carburetors can be procured and installed.

It explained that kerosene produces as much mileage as gasolene, and that for each part of gasolene extracted from crude oil there are two parts of kerosene, for which there is small demand. The substitution of kerosene as motive power, the company says, will solve the gasolene problem immediately.

GIVES DARK PICTURE OF BOLSHEVIST REIGN

FAMINE PRICES IN MOSCOW

Food Rationing Split Into Four Classes There—Foreigners Are Robbed by Agents in Uniform.

After being detained in the stream by the health and immigration authorities for thirty-six hours, the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord, with 567 passengers from northern Europe, reached her pier at 7:45 o'clock yesterday morning.

Even then the trouble was not over. Before the passengers were permitted to leave the ship naval, military, and Customs Intelligence officers went on board and it was 10 o'clock before the first passengers went ashore. Part of this delay was due to the Canadian Intelligence officers failing to arrive on time. The United States officials waited two hours for them and then gave orders for the gangway to be lowered.

Eleven passengers, including two women, were held for further investigation by the authorities. Three of them had recently left Germany.

Among the Americans returning from Russia was Dr. Angus Campbell of this city, who has made eight trips to northern Europe since the war started in 1914, and left Moscow three weeks ago. He traveled by train to Petrograd, which took forty-eight hours instead of twelve under normal conditions, and thence by steamboat to Stockholm.

Conditions Beyond Imagination

"The conditions existing in Russia at the present time," Dr. Campbell said, "are so bad that they cannot be imagined, except by those who have been there. The Bolsheviki hold full sway and are a band of adventurers assembled from all parts of the world. I did not see Trotzky, but I often met Lenine and heard him address meetings. He is a fanatic out and out and very dangerous.

"One thing certain is that the Bolsheviki are pro-German. At first they were passive, but gradually they became bolder and bolder, until they openly acknowledged their partisanship with the Central Powers.

"In Moscow food is at famine prices. When I left there at the beginning of this month bread cost 18 rubles a pound, butter 32 rubles, and sugar 30 rubles a pound. Green apples, which gave the people who ate them cholera morbus, cost 3 rubles each.

"The Bolsheviki divided the inhabitants of Moscow into four classes; first, the workmen, who were given what food could be obtained in the city; secondly, the women, who came next in order for the rations; then the clerks, who got what was left, and lastly, the unfortunate wealthy class, who were allowed three herrings per day and no bread.

Foreigners Robbed of Papers.

"There are a few street cars running in Moscow, but no cabs. The hotels have all been commandeered by the Bolsheviki and I had to go to them to get a room. There are no courts of justice and no regular police. Guards stand at the street corners with loaded rifles ready to shoot on the slightest provocation. They will hold a

GIVE TRACTION MEN FAVOR IN THE DRAFT

Deferred Classification Likely for Those Whose Employment Is Found to be Essential.

SERVICE BOARD SOUGHT AID

Because of the frequent statements made by officials of the city's transportation lines that better service could not be given because many of their employes were drafted into military service, Public Service Commissioner Ordway yesterday wrote to George L. Ingraham, Chairman of the District Board, asking that all persons essential to the adequate operation of the lines be placed in the deferred class. In reply Mr. Ingraham said that the board had held that transportation systems were industries essential to the national interests during the war, and that the classification of the men engaged in their operation should be deferred.

He also said that he had no doubt that the board would defer classification in all cases of essential service which women were not capable of doing. This statement, Mr. Ingraham said, could be accepted as the general determination of the board. He called attention to the necessity of showing in the applications for deferred classification that the applicant was engaged in work essential to the maintenance and operation of the railroads. Under this heading, it was said yesterday, would come only men giving skilled service, who could not be replaced by men or women lacking technical training.

In his letter Commissioner Ordway said that there was no doubt of the generally inadequate service rendered by the railroad companies, and then his letter ran in part:

The companies state that they are rendering only 75 to 80 per cent. of the service that they should. They claim that this is largely due to their inability to procure the necessary employes. The Public Service Commission has been investigating the conditions of service on these systems, and responsible officials of the companies have appeared before us and have testified that their inability to obtain and retain employes is largely responsible for the inadequacy of the service.

They have testified that the number of employes on their payrolls is less by several hundred than it has been in the past, and than is necessary to adequate service, and that in view of the sweeping extension of the draft ages it is almost certain that if their employes are left within its purview, these conditions will be aggravated and the service rendered by them will become even more inadequate during the coming Winter.

Mr. Ordway wrote further that the Public Service Commission was convinced that the transportation systems were essential to the prosecution of the war and necessary to the maintenance of He explained the need of transporting workers in plants making war necessities to and from their homes, and said that any difficulty in transportation injured the efficiency of the workers. His letter also said:

In view of these facts the Public Service Commission is of the opinion that all employes of the subway, elevated, and street surface railways in the city who are necessary to the efficient and adequate maintenance and operation of these systems ought in the public interest to receive deferred classification.

The general ruling by the board as suggested will not only render it easier for the transportation companies to obtain a greater number of skilled employes but will also, which is perhaps even more important and critical, prevent the drifting away of skilled employes now in the service of these companies.

In answer to many complaints of bad service on the Brooklyn surface lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company William Siebert, the company's Superintendent, called on Public Service Commissioner F. J. H. Kracke yesterday and said that the company was losing men so rapidly that the service had to was told that the service would have to be improved, and he replied:

"I will do the very best I can to improve it, but I don't know where the men are coming from. The best I can pay is 30 cents an hour, against 40 cents paid by the lines in Manhattan. I can't keep men in competition with the Manhattan lines or with the competition of many war industries."

Mr. Siebert said that he would shortly discuss the situation with Timothy S. Williams, President of the company, and see if something could not be done to overcome the difficulties of getting labor.

During the inquiry yesterday by the Public Service Commission into the service rendered by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the company, testified that the shortage of men and the lack of adequate terminal facilities and inspection sheds made it impossible for the company to maintain the schedules of the commission calling for thirty express and twenty local trains in the subway during the rush hours.

YALE OPENS ON WAR FOOTING

About 2,500 Likely to be Enrolled by University.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26.—Yale University began its two hundred and nineteenth year today under an administration entirely unlike any in its previous history. It has become a military institution, and its student body will be enrolled in the Students' Army Training Corps. Since Monday entrants have been undergoing physical examinations and assignment to rooms in dormitories which hereafter will be barracks.

The naval unit goes to the dormitories around Berkeley Oval, and men went on watch and patrol fully armed last night. The artillerymen go to dormitories around the college campus. The signal unit, the engineering, chemical warfare, and medical sections will be in Sheffield Scientific School dormitories near the laboratories in which several hundred officers and men from the Government Radio School and the Fort Leavenworth Laboratory School are working.

The university officers expect 2,500 men to be enrolled, and if necessary private dormitores will be taken over for the men. The Government will run the university dining hall through contract with a private caterer and students will be messed there in groups.

The university will be formally taken over by the Government on Oct. 1. No announcement has yet been made as to the immediate future of fraternities and societies in the university.

TEUTON PROPAGANDA INQUIRY TO RESUME

Konta and Berko May Be Asked Further About Activities Before We Entered the War.

MAGYARS APPEAL TO CREEL

Call a Mass Meeting to Discuss Means for Furthering America's Aims in the War.

The investigation of the German propaganda machine, which operated prior to this country's entrance into the war, is shortly to be resumed and a large number of witnesses, among them some well known citizens whose sympathies were with the Central Powers, are to be questioned. As a result of the disclosures regarding the alleged activities of Alexander Konta, Chairman of the Hungarian-American Loyalty League, as disclosed in letters written by Mr. Konta to Dr. Dernburg, the head of the German propaganda, and Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, the Financial Attaché of the German Embassy, it is probable that Mr. Konta will be called upon to answer further questions by the Federal authorities. It is also said Geza D. Berko, editor and publisher of the Magyar Amerikai Nepszava, who is also a member of the Hungarian-American Loyalty League, will be examined.

The Committee for Magyar Democracy, of which the Rev. Dr. Frank Kovacs, pastor of the First Hungarian Presbyterian Church, of Newark, is the Chairman, charged yesterday that the organization of which Konta has been the directing head is closely affiliated with the Committee on Public Information, of which George Creel is the Chairman. The following telegram was sent to Mr. Creel last night by the committee:

Hon. George Creel, Chairman Committee on Public Informataion, Washington:

Hungarians of New York City regret the embarrassing position in which the Committee on Public Information has been placed by disclosures concerning the activities of Alexander Konta, Chairman of the Hungarian-American Loyalty League, an organization under its auspices.

On the other hand, they feel that they are entitled to an opportunity to take a stand which will dispel any doubt as to their loyalty and express their desire to support whole-heartedly the war aims of the American Government and its allies.

The undersigned, for the committee, feels that it satisfies a widespread demand when it calls a mass meeting of Hungarians of Greater New York for Wednesday, Oct. 2.

Plans will be submitted to this meeting as to the ways in which Hungarians in this country may most effectively work for the victory of America in her fight for world democracy. These plans will include suggestions for co-operation with the representatives of the oppressed races of Austria-Hungary for the overthrow of the Hapsburgs and of Austro-Magyar Junkerdepotism, as it is believed that in such co-operation lies the specific contribution of American Magyars to the national war effort.

The undersigned committee represents a group of Hungarian-born Americans, who already have carried on constructive work in the field of Americanization. It offers its wholehearted co-operation to the Committee on Public Information along the indicated lines.

FOR THE COMMITTEE FOR MAGYAR DEMOCRACY.
Rev. FRANK KOVACS, Chairman.

Mr. Konta said yesterday that he had no statement to make as yet regarding the charges that have been lodged against him by the Committee for Magyar Democracy. He said that he might have a statement to give out in a few days. Mr. Konta did not discuss Mr. Creel's reported indorsement of the Hungarian-American Loyalty League. It was said yesterday that the expenses of several traveling membership agents of the Loyalty League were paid for by the Government. Six stenographers were also supplied, it was said, by the Government. Mr. Konta's salary as head of the league was $1 a year.

MRS. ELOISE KILBORN, DIVORCEE, WEDS AGAIN

Former Wife of Major Orson Kilborn Marries Benjamin Wood, Son of Ex-New York Mayor.

Mrs. Eloise S. Kilborn and Benjamin Wood, both of this city, were married on Wednesday evening in Greenwich, Conn. The marriage was a quiet one and will come as a surprise to many of their friends.

Mrs. Wood is the daughter of Mrs. George Taylor Moody of Detroit, Mich. She obtained a divorce from her first husband, Major Orson Kilborn, U. S. A., son of Horace M. Kilborn, Vice President of the National City Bank, last Fall. They were married in June, 1915, at the country home of her mother, at Bound Brook, N. J.

Mr. Wood is the son of the late Fernando Wood, who was one time Mayor of New York, and represented this State in Congress for twelve years. He is associated with his brother, Henry A. Wise Wood, in business, being Vice President of the Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporation. This is his second marriage. He was married in May, 1897, to Miss Grace Hutton, and they were divorced some time ago.

Mr. Wood and his bride are now at his home, 848 Seventh Avenue, and will leave today for the White Sulphur Springs on their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Moody attended their daughter's wedding, only a small group of relatives being present.

UNION LEAGUE RESOLUTION.

Upholds Wilson and Denounces Anything That Would Weaken Purpose of Government.

The Union League Club at a special meeting last night adopted the following resolution which had been passed last Monday by the club's War Committee, of which Samuel W. Fairchild is the Chairman:

Whereas, The Imperial Government of Austria-Hungary has transmitted a note to belligerent and neutral Powers, suggesting a meeting for a preliminary and non-binding discussion of war aims, with a view to a possible calling of a peace conference; and

Whereas, The Government of the United States has replied that "It has repeatedly and with entire candor stated the terms upon which the United States would consider peace and can and will entertain no proposal for a conference upon a matter concerning which it has made its position and purpose so plain;" therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Union League Club of the City of New York, enthusiastically and with united voice, endorses the attitude of President Wilson, and pledges every assistance within its power to counteract any peace propaganda looking to a compromise between freedom and tyranny; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Union League Club denounces any declaration by individuals or in the public press which may tend to weaken the purpose of our Government and the Allies to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor until peace with complete victory shall have been attained.

PREFERS BRIDE TO THRONE.

Rumanian Heir Observes That Thrones Are Rather Unstable.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 26.—In answer to pleas that he desert his bride of humble birth, Crown Prince Charles of Rumania has replied that thrones are so unstable nowadays that he preferred the certainty of having the wife he wanted to the chances of losing the succession.

The escapade of the Crown Prince in going to Odessa and marrying Cecilie Lambring, the daughter of a Major in the Rumanian army, reopens the question of the Rumanian dynastic succession. When King Ferdinand heard of the marriage he ordered that the Crown Prince be sentenced to seventy-five days' solitary confinement for absenting himself without leave from his garrison.

King Ferdinand also sent an emissary to Bender, Bessarabia, where the young couple are spending their honeymoon, with instructions to try to undo the nuptial knot, but to no avail. The bride refused to give up her wedding ring, and the Prince declined to leave her.

Prince Charles has not yet voluntarily renounced his rights of succession, and the King is reported to be very angry. The Rumanian Constitution does not contain a clause barring a morganatically married Crown Prince from succession to the throne.

The present case has a piquant feature in that it recalls that King Ferdinand in his youth had a love affair with Helene Vacarescu, his mother's lady of honor. Premier Catargiu threatened to resign if the King did not veto the proposed union, and it came to nothing. Should Crown Prince Charles renounce his rights of succession, his brother Nicholas would become the heir apparent. Nicholas is 15 years old, and physically weak.

There is much excited gossip in Bucharest, according to a telegram to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, as to what would happen in the eventuality of Queen Maria, who is strongly anti-German, becoming regent.

SWISS EDITORS HERE TO SEE OUR WAR WORK

Tell of Food Shortage at Home and Hardships of Maintaining Army for Neutrality.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 26.—Despite the strict neutrality of the Swiss Government, the people themselves are overwhelmingly in favor of the Allies, especially since the United States came in, according to Swiss editors who arrived today. The editors are here under the auspices of the Committee on Public Information and will tour the country gathering data on America's war preparations.

The members of the party and their newspapers are Dr. Albert Oerl, Baseler Nachrichten, Basle; Edouard Fueter, Zuricher Zeitung, Zurich; Erhest Schuerch, Der Bund, Berne; Edwin Strub, National Zeitung, Basle; William Martin, Journal de Geneve, Geneva, and John David, Gazette de Lausanne, Lausanne.

The food situation continues to give much anxiety, one of the editors said, and occasionally there was wincing under the heavy burden of keeping the small nation's army of 400,000 men mobilized on patrol. All of the many hotels of Switzerland are crowded, or were when the journalists left three weeks ago, being peopled mainly by Russians who had fled their country, and by Germans, the latter being not too cordially received anywhere.

Major Francis T. Colby of the British Army, a son of Rear Admiral E. W. I. Colby of Boston, arrived on the same steamship. He has been serving in France since 1914. Another passenger was Andrew Parker Nevin, a lawyer at 30 Church Street, New York City, who received a notice on the ptor that he had been nominated for Supreme Court Justice on the Republican ticket. He went to France last August in the interests of the American Fund for French Wounded and had not heard the result of the primaries.

While he was in Paris $250 was offered to Mr. Nevin to buy a piano to be given to one of the base hospitals on condition that he would see the instrument delivered. Mr. Nevin accepted the responsibility, and started for the front with the piano in a motor truck. Before they got near the battle, however, the car stalled, and when the soldier-chauffeur hopped out to crank up, the handle broke his arm. This was the first injury the soldier, who had been in the war since the first day, had received.

Miss Emma Underhill, a Red Cross nurse, on her way to her home in Santa Barbara, after an absence of three years, said that American soldiers in hospitals showed as much bravery under the knife as they did on the battlefield. She said there was plenty of room in France for women war workers—providing they went over determined to work, and not to look at the war as a great adventure affording thrills and great sights.

POSTERS ORDERED DOWN.

Those Criticising The Tribune Not Welcome in Post Offices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Reports to the Post Office Department of late have told of posters put up in many post offices in various parts of the country, especially in New York and New England, the latter criticizing The Tribune for alleged nonsupport of President Wilson. Among statements on the posters were quotations from replies made by Secretary McAdoo, Attorney General Gregory, and George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, to criticisms advanced as to each of these officials at different times by The Tribune.

First Assistant Postmaster General J. C. Koons issued an order tonight to all Postmasters not to permit the display of posters in Post Offices, and declaring it to be in violation of an order issued Sept. 18, 1918, intended to restrict the display of posters designed to aid war activities to those that emanate from executive departments of the Government. The order follows:

"The attention of this department has been called to the fact that posters criticising a certain New York newspaper are being displayed in Post Offices throughout the country. Postmasters are advised that such display is in violation of the order issued Sept. 18, 1918, to which attention is directed, and that such posters must be removed from their offices."

McDermott and the War

"NO war," said McDermott, "can come into me slapin-chamber and stand on me stomach like that, an' expict me to take it peaceful."

Don Marquis of the New York Evening Sun for years has been known and loved for his delicious sense of humor, but never before has he achieved anything so irresistible as McDermott starting out to end the war with a bung-starter.

It is thrilling and tragic and yet in spite of yourself you laugh your head off.

ETERNAL DISPLAYS SPEED AT AQUEDUCT

SWEEP ON LEFT IN RUCK

Contender In Oakdale Handicap Has No Chance to Catch Rival of Billy Kelly.

Eternal, the two-year-old son of Sweep, showed at Aqueduct yesterday that his owner, James W. McClelland, had some justification in hankering for a special race with Billy Kelly, which battled his way to the leadership of the juvenile division at Saratoga. Because the Queens County Jockey Club officials failed to agree to the conditions that the race take place no matter whether the track was good or bad, the much advertised special scheduled for yesterday was abandoned, but with Billy Kelly safe in Maryland Eternal had a chance to prove his worth on a muddy track in the Oakdale Handicap at six furlongs.

With the exception of Sweep On, which evidently was anchored in the going, Eternal had little to oppose him, but he gave away big weight to the four other contestants, handled 130 pounds in clever manner, and won with consummate ease by three lengths from W. S. Kilmer's Mormon. With the exception of Billy Kelly no other two-year-old has carried that weight successfully this season, and the convincing manner in which Eternal won gives promise of an exciting race if the two topnotchers come together at Laurel, as is expected.

Mr. Coe started Star Realm as well as Sweep On, the former showing such early speed under the light impost of 110 pounds that he remained in the lead until well in the stretch, while his more fancied stable companion was floundering along in last place. Mormon followed the pace closely, while Eternal was allowed plenty of time to get into his stride and was three lengths behind the leading pair as they raced around the bend.

Shuttinger called on Eternal as soon as the colt was straightened out and he leaped immediately to life. Eternal only skimmed the soft going as he raced down on the pair in front of him and he closed the big gap so quickly that he was in the lead before the last furlong pole was reached. From that point it was a gallop for the brown son of Sweep, which had taken all the heart out of Star Realm by his swift rush, so that the Coe candidate dropped back to last place. Mormon hung on pluckily and took the place by a length and a half from H. P. Whitney's Circus. Eternal's time of 1:14 2-5 was a fine performance considering the heavy going and the weight he carried.

There was another stellar number on the card in the handicap at a mile and a sixteenth in which H. P. Whitney's old campaigner Borrow was the favorite, only to finish in the ruck. Andrew Miller's Ticket was rated by Shuttinger far behind the pace set by Tom McTaggart and followed closely by Valor and Borrow. In the stretch Ticket was set down to show his noted mud-running ability and he raced over the field to win by six lengths. Daddy's Choice, another of the early trailers, also came with a rush in the stretch and took the place by a length from Tom McTaggart.

With the exception of Eternal, favorites fell all along the line, one of the biggest upsets starting the sport when Currency raced away from the prohibitive choice Nightstick. Manslayer, another odds-on choice, finished outside the money in the steeplechase, leaving the issue to be fought out by Garter and Brand. Rowan, who rode Garter, forced Brand to run out at the last bend and all the way to the finish, and though Garter finished first he was disqualified and his rider suspended.

In the last race the finish was so close that many disagreed with the official decision giving the race to Lieutenant G. D. Widener's Hindoostan over the Oneck Stable's Thunderclap.

WESTERN HORSES IN VAN.

Verlie Patchen and Lillian T. Share Grand Circuit Laurels.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 26.—Two Western horses, Verlie Patchen and Lillian T., won the feature races today in the Grand Circuit, the former taking the Arch City Stake purse, $3,000, for 2:10 pacers and the latter winning the 2:03 pace. Both victories were straight heat affairs but the competition was good enough to make the favorites step close to their records to keep their noses in front.

The 2:15 class trot was the occasion for a long drawn-out battle. There were three different heat winners, Dell Jolla looking like an easy first choice after her two miles in front; but she faded away in the stretch thereafter until the fifth heat when she came on and won the race.

YOUNG NET EXPERTS IN PARK HILL FINAL

Richards and Binzen Win Way to Deciding Round Over Older Opponents.

Two of the younger players of the metropolitan district reached the final round of the men's singles in the open tennis tournament of the Park Hill Country Club yesterday. They were Vincent Richards, national boys' champion and holder of the national doubles with William T. Tilden, 2d, and Elliot H. Binzen, a Pelham Bay sailor, who formerly was the national junior indoor champion. They will meet for the tournament laurels tomorrow afternoon.

Richards had by far the bitterest struggle. He was opposed by Allen Behr, a veteran of many court encounters, and it was only after three hard-fought sets that the 15-year-old Richards was able to conquer by the score of 5—7, 6—3, 7—5. Binzen forced his way to the final by disposing of E. F. Thomas, a fellow-sailor from Pelham Bay, at 6—2, 6—2.

Richards and Behr furnished a small gallery with many of the fireworks of advanced tennis. The youthful Yonkers champion was in splendid stroke, notwithstanding a heavy court, and he kept his older but equally agile opponent on the run from the beginning to the end. Behr made his greatest effort in the opening set, which was filled with innumerable rallies and in which every point was disputed to the utmost. Behr finally got the set, but he lost much of his speed thereby, and was forced to conserve his energies the best he could for a final effort in the third set.

Richards had splendid command of a cross-court stroke, which invariably caught Behr out of position, and the youngster also outplayed Behr at the net. Behr forced the attack at all times, and sacrificed many points by being caught out of position on remarkable placements sent over by Richards. The deciding set was exceptionally hard fought, but Richards maintained a well-balanced placement game and managed to wear out Behr.

Binzen's greater tournament experience was too much for Thomas, who succumbed more quickly than his friends anticipated. Binzen has developed a severe game from the back line, and he made use of this attack to keep Thomas from the net.

Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassell, who reached the final round of the women's singles Wednesday, were to have met yesterday, but when the appointed time came the courts were wet and a drizzle of rain was falling. The match between the feminine leaders was postponed until this afternoon, when the women will settled their part of the issue.

MISS WAGNER WINS AT NET.

Defeats Miss Holden and Will Play for State Tennis Title.

Miss Marie Wagner gained the final round of the women's New York State championship singles yesterday afternoon by defeating Miss Bessie Holden at 6—2, 6—1, in a match postponed from last week at the New York Lawn Tennis Club. Miss Wagner now is to meet Miss Helene Pollak for the title, which is under dispute this year for the first time. This match will be played at the New York club courts tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Miss Wagner did not meet the opposition expected from Miss Holden, and won rather handily.

There are still a couple of arguments to be decided in the mixed doubles competition of the New York club tournament which went over last week. It is possible that the semi-final match between Miss Marie Wagner and Elliot H. Binzen and Miss Margaret Grove and Harry J. Steinkampf will be played immediately after Miss Wagner and Miss Pollak get rid of their dispute. If this match is impossible at that time it will be played Sunday morning, and Sunday afternoon the winner will meet Miss Eleanor Goss and Walter Merrill Hall, who already are safely bracketed in the final round.

RICHARD DOUBLE WINNER.

Golfer Takes Main Laurels in Real Estate Tourney.

H. C. Richard was a double winner in the annual Fall Real Estate Board golf tournament at the Arcola Country Club yesterday. His net score of 159 won the A. E. Ashforth cup, and his 169 gross also accounted for the Class A thirty-six-hole award. This successful player presented a cup to be competed for by Class B members, and this was won by F. M. Fellowes, 192, 40—152.

There was a tie in Class C between J. S. Brennan and S. H. Tyng, both returning 202, 46—156. Tyng won the selected prize in Class C with 91, 12—79.

PENN ELEVEN AT PRACTICE.

Candidates for Football Team Are Called Out for Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—Following the decision yesterday to hold football games at the University of Pennsylvania this year under the supervision of the commandant of the students' Army Training Corps, candidates for the team were called out today for their first practice. Two practices will be held daily until Oct. 1, when the Government takes control of the University, after which training will be under military control and confined to the late afternoon hours.

RUTGERS TO PLAY FOOTBALL

Sanford's Eleven Prepares to Open Season Tomorrow.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Sept. 26.—Lieutenant James C. Torpey, commanding officer of the Students' Army Training Corps at Rutgers College, announced this morning that athletics would continue at the local institution so long as they did not interfere with the military work. It is now probable that the 'Varsity football team will play out the schedule arranged last Spring.

LOCALIZE FOOTBALL IN COLLEGE WORLD

Many Institutions Planning Numerous Contests with Teams Close to Home.

Although 'Varsity football has been cancelled at Cornell and Dartmouth, it does not mean that the pigskin will be placed on the shelf at these colleges. There will probably be more football than ever before played at these places among the student soldiers. The schedules which were formulated with other colleges have been canceled, but plenty of impromptu games will be arranged for teams which can visit these places and return in a day's journey.

It is not and has never been the policy of the military officials to stamp out such a rugged, vigorous pastime as football among the students. There has been great delay, however, on the part of the officials in making it plain to the college authorities just what plan they mean to pursue. With the guarantees and other expenses involved in the arranging of the schedules at the end of last season, it was necessary for the student managers to cancel schedules to protect themselves from financial loss.

The manner in which the football situation at Pennsylvania has been rearranged to suit the military conditions will probably be followed at other institutions. The military officers realize the value of an hour or an hour and a half's football practice each day, and as the men will be in fine physical condition because of military training, this time can be given over to the development of play and gridiron tactics. Intramural and inter-regimental football will be played at the few colleges which have decided not to play any intercollegiate opponents.

YOUNG MARKSMEN TO SHOOT

High School Teams to Compete at Peekskill Range Tomorrow.

The Government rifle ranges at Peekskill, N. Y., will present a busy scene tomorrow when about 250 New York high school students compete in the annual outdoor Public Schools Athletic Leage rifle championship. The competition, according to John J. McHugh, Inspector of Athletics of the P. S. A. L., will occupy about four hours. The shooters will strive for the team championship of the metropolis, and individual medals.

ARMY TO HANDLE FOOTBALL.

Western Colleges Place Athletics In Hands of Military.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Control of football and all other branches of intercollegiate athletics in the "Big Ten" was completely relinquished by the Faculty representatives of the Western Conference at a special meeting here tonight and placed in the hands of the War Department for management.

PURCHASE BRINGS $12,500.

S. C. Hildreth Buys Likely Juvenile from Brighton Stable.

The sale of thoroughbreds owned by the Brighton Stable took place in the paddock at Aqueduct yesterday and marked the retirement, for the time being of this formidable factor in racing. In spite of his failure last Monday, the two-year-old Purchase was easily star of the sale. He was knocked down to the bid of $12,500, made by S. C. Hildreth. Lord Brighton, a stake winner, went to the same bidder for $6,300. The three-year-old gelding Flags, one of the speediest horses on the turf, appeared to be something of a bargain as he fell into the hands of Richard F. Carman for $9,100.

CHARLIE LEYDECKER WINS.

Sprinter Rushes Into Lead in the Feature at Havre de Grace.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 26.—E. McBride's three-year-old colt Charlie Leydecker showed that he had benefited by a long rest when he won the Terminal Handicap at six furlongs this afternoon. The field of seven included several crack sprinters, but Charlie Leydecker held his opponents safe all the way and won handily from George Starr. There were several surprises during the afternoon, Pandean and Darkey being two to score at long odds:

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 26.—Though the Naval Academy squad sustained losses today on account of minor injuries, there was an excellent scrimmage, Dobie handling the two teams and making frequent changes.

Alvord, a 170-pound fourth-class man from Flushing High School, is doing excellent work behind the line, and has a good chance of making the backfield position vacated by Martin's graduation. King, another new man, is showing great strength and activity at tackle.

The management heard from the University of West Virginia today to the effect that the Navy's request for a game would be acted upon this week. The Navy contingent is particularly anxious for a game with the Mountaineers, who are reported very strong.

WREST CERAMICS FROM TEUTON GRIP

Country Will Be Independent of Foreign Markets, Say Experts at Chemical Show.

WAR GAVE THE IMPETUS

Improved Means Developed to Manufacture Glassware and Porcelain Products.

Another economic and industrial asset to the credit of the United States as a result of the war is the big progress made in the production of all classes of ceramics many of which formerly were imported from Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Discussions by leading authorities yesterday before the American Ceramics Society at the National Exposition of Chemical Societies, in the Grand Central Palace, developed that the manufacture of ceramics, owing to war stimulus, had reached such proportions that it may be classed with the other new and self-sustained industries born of the European conflict, such as dyestuffs, chemicals and explosives. There seemed no doubt in the minds of the experts discussing the subject that both Germany and Austria-Hungary, after peace is declared, will awake to the fact that the former lucrative market for ceramic products in this country is a thing of the past.

L. E. Barringer, Chairman of the American Ceramic Society, presided at the meeting held in the auditorium of the Palace. The conference room was packed at the opening of the meeting, and several hundred chemists from all parts of the country were unable to gain admittance.

A. V. Bleininger of the Government Bureau of Standards, Pittsburgh Laboratory, gave for the first time, with the permission of the Director of the bureau, an account of the new opportunities coming to the ceramics industry as a result of the war. He said that one of the most important functions of the ceramic industries was the supply of refractories for the metallurgical operations of the country's steam power plants, by-product coke ovens, gas plants, glass works, and many other purposes too numerous to be mentioned.

The Government representative said that difficulties had been met in supplying the basic magnesite refractories from the available American materials. This, he said, had been due to the nature of American magnesite, which differs from that in Australia in being very low in iron oxide and sometimes higher in lime. Magnesite from the State of Washington, however, had been found to meet requirements after being processed.

"The lack of the German Klingenberg clay for crucible making is not as serious a matter as had been thought," Mr. Bleininger said. "It has been shown conclusively that it can be replaced both by English and American ball clays. Similarly, the German Gross Almerode clay, used in glass pot making, has been replaced by American clays and synthetic mixtures in a very satisfactory manner.

"The manufacture of hard-fire, true porcelain has received a powerful impetus through the war. Three plants are already operating successfully on the production of chemical porcelain, and are making rapid strides with respect to quality. The manufacture on large scale of hard porcelain tableware is to be begun in the very near future. It is very fortunate that the pioneers in this work have realized the importance of putting their production on firm basis with reference to foreign competition.

Automatic Machinery Used.

"By the use of automatic machinery, mechanical driers, and tunnel kilns they will be able to meet foreign competitors on equal terms. The plants now in course of construction excel all European potteries in the elimination of unnecessary labor cost and expenditure of fuel. The development of a hard-fire porcelain industry is, indeed, a national duty. It would be preposterous and humiliating to contemplate any further dependence on Germany and Austria for these products. By establishing this industry we shall be in addition to seek the South American markets to which we have a fair right.

"The demand for ordinary tableware at the present time is greater than ever before, and difficulty is being experienced in supplying the requirements of the army and navy, and at the same time those of the country. The simpler shapes, such as cups and mugs, are now being produced by the one-fire process, which, incidentally, results in an appreciable saving of fuel.

"The bureau's expert went on to say that porcelains for special purposes had been developed successfully. Thus, the National Bureau of Standards has introduced the manufacture of the refractory Marquardt porcelain, essentially fulmanate, formerly produced by the Royal Porcelain Manufactory at Berlin, and used so largely for pyrometer tubes and similar articles. Likewise, the bureau has succeeded in making porcelains possessing remarkably high electrical resistance at elevated temperatures. The same materials showed none of the variations in thermal expansion common to most porcelains.

"It might be said," he continued, "that in the United States we have mastered the essentials of the production of optical glass, and about seven types are being manufactured commercially. Problems dealing with the cutting down of certain optical phenomena, &c., of course still remain; it is to be expected that continued progress will be made in this. With reference to the glass industry, the three most interesting developments are those relating to the optical, colored, (signal,) and the resistant or chemical glasses. When it is realized that at the beginning of the war but little optical glass was being produced in the United States, the rapid development of the art presents an inspiring example.

Country's Needs Supplied.

"Summarizing the effect of the last four years on glass for industrial and chemical use, American manufacturers have proven themselves capable of supplying their country's needs, and have even gone further and created new and better glasses than are made in Europe. A list of the varieties of glassware now made here that were not made to any extent in this country before the war includes optical glass, laboratory or chemical ware, glass gauge tubing, watch crystals, glazing glass, oven glass, glass brick, siphon bottles, photographic glass, and high-grade picture glass and glass for spectacles.

"This is an expansion worthy of note, and it has come in no sudden, or spasmodic manner. It rests on a good foundation of careful study and work. The question of competition with Europe in industrial glass after the war will depend only upon price, for the quality of ware is assured. There must be, it is evident, a retention of suitable import duties to be paid by all alike. The unreasonable duty-free privilege, which discriminates against American manufacturers in favor of Europe and Asia, must be abolished. Then this healthy growth can be retained as a permanent branch of the glass industry in America."

The speaker said another industry having a direct bearing upon war work was that engaged in the manufacture of abrasive and grinding wheels. He characterized the rapid growth of this branch of manufacture and its technical development as typical of American achievement. A good word also was said for the progress made by the chemical stoneware industry.

Other speakers were L. E. Barringer, H. Ries, F. A. Whitaker, S. C. Linberger, J. B. Shaw talked on fuel conservation. Motion pictures in the afternoon and evening supplemented the address made by the experts. That the importance of the chemical industry is beginning to be recognized by the financial interests of the country was demonstrated by the appearance on the floor of the exposition of the Irving National Bank of this city as an exhibitor. Today's program at the exposition will be devoted to the metal industries, and their progress under the stimulus of war.

More Interest in Fibre Soles.

Several wholesalers of shoes in this city report that there is a growing interest throughout the country in various rubber fibre soles and other substitutes for sole leather. The ill effects created by one or two inferior leather substitutes which were foisted on the market some time ago when fibre soles first commanded such widespread attention, are gradually being overcome by the better quality articles. These latter are now being taken, it seems, in some quite substantial quantities by shoe dealers in many sections, and it is believed in the trade here that from now on the practicality and economy of the better grade fibre soles will become constantly more generally recognized.

Semi-Formal Gowns Liked.

Though full formal evening gowns for women are probably to be pretty much out of the running until the war is over, the demand for so-called semi-formal dinner and evening frocks is excellent now, and promises to continue so throughout the season. Many of the frocks being shown under this latter description are of such georgeous materials and rich, deep colorings, and are so elaborately and beautifully draped that it is difficult to determine wherein they are not regularly accredited full formal evening gowns. Full-length panels, rather low necks, and a great profusion of net trimmings are used very extensively.

Gray Goods Were More Active.

Trading was more active in the local gray goods market yesterday, and first hands took more interest in selling than for some time. Sales by these traders were made for October delivery, at present Government maximum prices, of wide plain goods, sateens, and twills, and a considerable quantity of bandage cloths. Among the second-hand business in printcloths were further sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 17¼ cents for this month's delivery. Second-hands also sold 5.50-yard sheetings at 14 cents for September-October shipment, while for the same delivery they sold 3.90 sheetings at 20½ cents. October-November lots of 6.15 sheetings were let out by second-hands at 13¼ cents.

Low Output Hinders Ribbon Sales.

Activity in the ribbon market in this city is rather limited, but this is attributed by sellers more to the curtailed production at the mills than to any lack of demand. It was pointed out that not many factories have very much left to sell for delivery during the next few months, and that in jobbing and wholesale distributing circles quite a few of the most desirable ribbons are obtainable only in limited quantities. As one manufacturer put it, "We are forced to pass up one of the best opportunities we have ever had. Ribbons were never more favored by fashions than they are this season, but we cannot push sales because of the diminished mill production."

Phonograph Demand Growing.

Fall business in phonographs is increasing quite regularly from week to week, according to reports from several local factory representatives. Demand is also spreading out over a wider range of prices, including instruments made to retail from $5 up to $300 and $400. From $100 down, the upright type of cabinet is the most generally wanted. Above that figure the table cabinet is taking a more prominent part every week, and may before the Winter is over, in the opinion of some sellers, surpass in popular favor the upright types sold at corresponding prices. Some table cabinets in period styles are selling now, but the big season in these is looked for a little later on.

Reorders Larger Than Expected.

All waist manufacturers whose roadmen are now out on their second trip with Fall lines report that reorders are much larger than was expected. According to one manufacturer, several of his traveling men are sending in reorders for from $1,200 to $1,500 worth of merchandise every day. The odd feature of it is that two of these salesmen were very reluctant to start out on their follow-up trips until the season was a little further advanced. They argued that the retailers had not been given time to get rid of much of their original purchases. The orders being taken, however, which are 100 per cent. more than was expected, indicate that merchants had got rid of a large percentage of their stocks and that they needed additional supplies immediately.

Picture Frames Being Sought.

One of the features of business in the fancy goods and notions field at the present time is the increasing sale of picture frames. This is attributed to the war and to present and prospective drafting of large increments of men into service in the American forces abroad. Both wooden and metal frames are being bought by the retail trade, and both plain and ornamental goods are included in the merchandise ordered. It is said that many of the metal frames are being bought for prospective soldiers to carry their "home" pictures in, particularly those frames that can easily be stowed away in a pack or a pocket. The fancier frames, on the other hand, are believed to be bought for use by relatives to hold the pictures of the men who are responsible for the stars on the service flags.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Move Upward on Professional Operations—Marine Situation Unchanged.

With the increasing demands which preparations for the big loan are making upon financial institutions the stock market suffered from general neglect yesterday. Any hope that a sharp rise in prices would be encouraged by the banking interests to create a favorable opening for the loan campaign has been generally abandoned. The Fourth Liberty Loan needs no artificial stimulation of that nature; if the victories which inexperienced troops have already contributed to the winning of the war were not enough, the indications of the beginning of another important offensive in which American troops are participating with the French would have focussed attention in this country to the imperative necessity of an immediate and whole-hearted response to the Government's call for funds.

With the public manifesting little interest in the stock market, it remained for the professionals to supply dealings yesterday upon which most of the active issues advanced. The undertone of the market has been firm, and the fear of widespread liquidation of investment holdings to release money for bonds has not been realized. If organized support had been needed to hold prices up it would have been forthcoming, but with the public showing no disposition to sacrifice their stocks, the banks have been well content to leave the professional traders to their own devices.

Steel gained ¾ yesterday on moderate activity, and was overshadowed by the fluctuations in the marine issues. As the cynical minded had predicted, yesterday's meeting of the Finance Committee passed off with no announcement of further progress in the plan for transferring the proceeds of the sale of the British ships to the American stockholders. It will be strange if the board ever puts into effect any of the proposed schemes for evading the taxes to which the Treasury Department is entitled on the profit involved in the sale. The Directors know that public opinion cannot be trifled with, and that any obvious subterfuge designed to get around the income tax law would bring its own punishment.

Secretary McAdoo has wisely preserved secrecy as to his use o fthe sinking fund provided for the support of outstanding Liberty bonds, but bankers saw no evidence yesterday of any official support in the market for Liberty bonds. Sales were made in a relatively large volume at substantially the levels established some time ago, only the first fours yielding any ground under the offerings.

Marconi, Iron, and Steel Stocks Provide Bulk of the Business.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Money was in strong demand today. Discounts were steady.

The Stock Exchange, though quiet, developed a more cheerful tendency on the good war news and the cessation of the railway strike, which improved home rails materially. The war loan hardened a fraction. Specialties in mines and Marconi and iron and steel stocks provided the bulk of the business.

BANKERS PLEDGE ALL TO DEFEAT GERMANY

Will Support Nation to Last Dollar and Last Unit of Credit, Hinsch Tells Convention.

BATTLE NEWS QUELLS ROW

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The general session of the American Bankers Association today had developed into a tumult of noises, speakers were put down by hisses and shouts, and a minority leader had run down the aisle to shout of "gag rule" and "steam rollers," when President Charles A. Hinsch called the meeting to order to read a telegram.

It told of the beginning of another great American and French drive. P. W. Goebel of Kansas City, past President of the association, gray and sedate, seized the banker nearest him and did a dervish dance, the leader of the naval band called for "Over There," the crowd stood and thundered the words. When the demonstration had subsided few in the room could remember what the fight was about. A battle that had been brewing for months and threatened to disrupt the association disappeared in a song and a cheer.

It had been a test of strength for the coterie of State bankers led by C. B. Hazlewood of Chicago, new President of the State bank section. Supposedly speaking for all State banks, this faction had served an ultimatum on the national bank group, which has dominated the affairs of the association for years, that State banks must have fair representation on the Administrative and Legislative Committees and a Vice Presidency, either the first or second. The day's battle developed on the motion to adopt an amendment to the constitution creating a Second Vice President's station.

The Minnesota delegation started the insurrection by repudiating the Hazlewood plan in the interest of the candidacy of Joseph Chapman of Minneapolis, a national banker, for the First Vice Presidency, to which the slatemakers had assigned R. S. Hawes, national banker from St. Louis. Chapman supporters had created bitter feeling by questioning the patriotism of Mr. Hawes, a move which reacted sharply.

M. J. Dowling of Minneapolis, spokesman for Chapman, although himself a State banker, first used parliamentary tactics to obstruct the vote. Mr. Goebel made a plea for unity and attempted to check a tendency toward personalities. Mr. Dowling thereupon made the speech which passed the amendment and probably defeated his candidate.

"There is an unwritten law that the Vice President be elevated to the Presidency," he said. "By creating another Vice President's chair we are simply electing a President two years in advance, taking a chance on electing some third-rate banker instead of the man of the hour. Two years hence the boys in khaki will be back, and will deserve a voice in affairs."

Patriotism Ends It.

He got no further. Patriotic issues had been dragged into the fight before. A storm of shouts and hisses drowned his voice. Every officer in the room assumed that the speaker referred to him, and friends of the officers had the same notion. Mr. Hazlewood made the most of the opportunity, and explained what the agreement between the State and national factions had been and that it had been intended as a harmony measure. The house was shouting for a vote when Mr. Dowling ran down the aisle, shouting about gag rule. President Hinsch was able to quiet the crowd long enough to recognize Mr. Dowling again.

"There have been third-rate bankers in this association," he shouted, "but thank God most of them are in Leavenworth."

The noise which followed signalized the end of the Chapman boom. The amendment was passed almost unanimously, and the war news brought on a spectacular climax. The Nominating Committee immediately named Robert F. Maddox of Atlanta as candidate for President and Mr. Hawes for First Vice President. John S. Drum, a member of the National Capital Issues Committee and President of the Savings Union Bank and Trust Company of San Francisco, was named for the Second Vice Presidency as the State bank candidate.

At a meeting tomorrow of the Executive Council the remainder of the bargain will be filled by assigning an equal number of State and national bankers to the State and Federal legislative committees.

The State bankers obtained representation on the Administrative Committee by the adoption of an amendment to the constitution increasing the membership from three to seven and making the Presidents of the national bank, State bank, savings bank, and trust companies sections ex-officio members.

A further concession to State bankers was the acceptance of a constitutional amendment permitting a section to act independent of the main body in matters of legislation.

Greetings from White House.

The opening of the convention proper began with the reading of this telegram from President Wilson:

"Please present my cordial greetings to the bankers and express to them the gratifications which I have felt in common with the whole country at the splendid spirit and efficiency with which the bankers of the country have assisted the Government in the all important matter of the loans."

Upon motion of Mr. Goebel, President Hinsch was instructed to send the following telegram in reply:

"The delegates representing the membership of the American Bankers' Association, in convention assembled at Chicago, Sept. 26, receive with deep appreciation your inspiring message of Sept. 25. Every ounce of energy and resource at the command of the bankers of the nation are pledged to the cause of human freedom and independence. We will loyally support and follow your lead as Commander in Chief in the mobilization of every effort and every resource of America, to the end that all the power and strength of this great land shall be made available to the cause upon the common enemy until victory for the allied arms shall have been attained and the world made safe for democracy."

Governor Lowden urged support of the war to the uttermost limit by everyone in the country.

"I want to say to the bankers of America," said he, "that until Germany admits the plain truth that this war was her war; that she was the aggressor; that this war was waged in pursuance of that accursed old conspiracy, the only answer she is entitled to from America is that magnificent answer which President Wilson made last week to the Austrian Prime Minister.

"I can imagine one of you bankers who had been defrauded by a customer in years agone, again, after a lapse of time, to resume negotiations with that customer, but I cannot imagine one of you permitting him to open up a new account in your bank until he confessed he had robbed you before. If the Central Empires want to resume relations with the rest of the world, they must first repent, and you cannot repent until you first confess your faults."

Pledge All for Victory.

Robert F. Maddox of Atlanta, Ga., First Vice President, said:

"While we realize that the march to Berlin has started, the end is not yet. We are resolved to stand by our splendid President and his Administration until the insults to our flag are avenged; the wrongs done our citizens righted, and the cause for which we and our allies are fighting is crowned with victory. We who have sons on the battle-front today would welcome peace and would be glad for the time to come when all those now overseas may come safely back to America. But we realize that in their hearts there beats the determination to conquer every enemy of American liberty and break through every line, and we would be unjust to them and unworthy of our country if we should allow their noble efforts to fail, or those who have fallen to have done so in vain."

President Charles S. Hinsch then delivered his address as head of the association, in which he reaffirmed the loyalty of the bankers to President Wilson in the prosecution of the war.

"The bankers will support the nation," he declared, "not merely to their last dollar, but to their last unit of credit."

He also declared against a negotiated peace, and said nothing should be considered but an unconditional surrender.

"In the prosecution of the war," continued Mr. Hinsch, "the Government, instead of restraining business, is encouraging it."

W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank system, urged conservation in the making of loans, that private business might not interfere with Government business during the war.

J. B. Forgan of Chicago then offered a resolution asking Congress to legalize contributions by national banks to war activities, which was unanimously adopted.

This telegram was read from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to President Hinsch:

"Will you please convey my cordial greetings to the members of the American Bankers' Association for their continued co-operation in carrying forward successfully the great financial operations of the Government? They have done splendid work for Liberty Loans in the past, and I know they will with even greater patriotism and enthusiasm help make the Fourth Liberty Loan a success. Hearty good wishes for a successful meeting and for a fruitful outcome of your deliberations."

On motion of F. O. Watts of St. Louis the following reply was sent by President Hinsch:

"The members of the American Bankers' Association, assembled in convention at Chicago, have received your greetings, and they instruct me to tender to you, the courageous leader of the financial forces of our country, their great appreciation for the message, and they at the same time reaffirm their determination to use every means at their command to make the Fourth Liberty Loan the most forceful of all expressions from a free people, to furnish all credits and materials necessary to the Government for a speedy and complete victory."

COTTON OPENS HIGHER, REACTS, CLOSES FIRM

Midday Realizing Is Followed by Good Demand from Southern and Foreign Interests.

The cotton market yesterday had a strong opening, October contracts being quoted 70 points above Wednesday's closing figure. Liverpool cables were considerably higher, and there appeared to be a good demand from Southern and foreign interests as well as from Wall Street sources. In the upward movement October sold up to 33 cents and November to 32.65.

The early advance met with some realizing and there followed reactions of 40 to 50 points, but despite the decline the undertone continued firm and prices later in the day were well sustained. The market closed steady, with October showing a net gain of 67 points, December a gain of 46 points, and May a gain of 37 points.

The weather map showed precipitation in the Mississippi Valley and westward, and light scattered rains in some Eastern sections. Temperatures were about normal for this season of the year. There were reports to the effect that spot cotton in the South was in active demand. It was also suggested that farmers were planning to increase their acreage in wheat and other grains at the expense of cotton, because the former can be produced with less man-power than is required for cotton. Exports reported yesterday totaled 33,509 bales, making 522,037 bales for the season.

WILLARD TELLS OF B. & O. BETTERMENTS

President Reports an Expenditure of $139,000,000 in the Last Eight Years.

A RISE IN EFFICIENCY

Total Ton Miles Increased 42 Per Cent. by Improved Roadway and Rolling Stock.

Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, took the opportunity presented by the pamphlet report for 1917, which was issued yesterday, to recount to stockholders important developments in connection with the property in the last eight years. In selecting the date of Jan. 1, 1910, Mr. Willard said he was influenced by the fact that it was then that the advancing cost of operation began to bear heavily on the railroads, causing them to urge the necessity of higher freight rates.

"During the eight years," he said, "the Baltimore & Ohio expended $139,000,000 for additions, betterments, extensions and new equipment.

"Eight hundred and thirteen heavy locomotives, with a total tractive capacity of 42,933,660 pounds, were added to the company's equipment, while three hundred and sixty-six obsolete type, having a combined tractive capacity of 6,868,130 pounds, were dismantled. The net increase in tractive capacity of locomotives owned by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. during the period under consideration was 37,964,350 pounds, or 65.5 per cent. Within the same period, 44,461 freight cars, of all-steel or semi-steel construction, having a total carrying capacity of 2,297,348 tons, were purchased, and 16,961 freight cars of an average age of 19.5 years, were dismantled because unfit for modern service requirements. The net increase in carrying capacity of freight cars owned by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. from the beginning of the fiscal year 1910 to the first of January, 1918, was 1,098,695 tons, or 34.9 per cent.

"The company now has a continuous double track line from Philadelphia to Chicago, 82 per cent. of which is laid with 100-pound steel rail, and the remaining portion with rail weighing not less than 90 pounds per yard, all in good serviceable condition. Approximately 72 per cent. of the same section of the road is supported by stone ballast.

"The cumulative effect of all these improvements and developments is shown in the statement that the total ton miles (including company's material) carried by the Baltimore & Ohio Company during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1910, was 12,675,482,892, while for the year ended Dec. 31, 1917, it was 18,053,294,172, an increase of 5,377,811,280 tons miles, or 42 per cent."

The report showed that the company's investment increased $46,533,172 in 1917, of which the largest items were $22,593,705 for the Toledo & Cincinnati Railroad Company, acquired through reorganization, $8,194,948 for improvement of the road, and $8,357,777 for equipment.

STUDY NEW SHUTTLE PLANS

Indications that the Public Service Commission is carefully considering the plan for resuming shuttle service on Oct. 5 between Times Square and the Grand Central Station appeared yesterday when it became known that its experts had been figuring on the number of trains that could be operated and the probable number of passengers who would use them.

If three four-car trains were operated at the rate of twelve trips an hour, the figures ran, there would be in operation 144 cars an hour, with a capacity of at least 100 passengers a car. This would mean the transporting of 14,400 passengers an hour during each of the two rush hours of the morning, and the same number in the evening. Other figures produced showed that the commission did not believe that a total of 50,000 passengers would use the shuttle in the morning and evening rush periods.

This was considered a conservative estimate, and if it proves to be accurate the passengers will have plenty of room in the cars, and ample ways of getting out and in at both stations after all of the proposed improvements are made. These improvements consist mainly of separating the tides of travel at the Grand Central station, and in building an additional stairway at Times Square. Men are now busy posting signs in the two stations for the guidance of passengers who were so bewildered when the first attempt was made to operate the shuttle.

Miners Leave Yukon and Alaska.

DAWSON, Y. T., Sept. 26.—Stationary price of gold and increased cost of mining material, food and supplies has caused a sudden exodus of miners and their families from the Yukon and Alaska. Every boat reaching here the last few weeks from Ruby, Fairbanks, Iditarod and other Alaskan camps brings persons leaving the country for the Pacific Coast, where there is hope of obtaining work in war industries at high wages until after the war. The exodus has caused a slump of 50 per cent. in the gold output of Alaska camps.

COMMERCE DIRECTORS LINKED WITH PACKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—William B. Colver, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, testified today before the Senate Agriculture Committee in support of the commission's recent report charging monopoly and profiteering in the packing industry. He also replied to the protest to the President by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that the commission exceeded its authority in conducting the packers' investigation and in other activities.

Mr. Colver gave the names of directors and former officers of the Chamber of Commerce who, he said, were officers in banks which had made large loans to the packers.

He read from a list showing that James Cousins of Detroit, a director of the Chamber, is an officer in a Detroit bank which had negotiated a loan of $250,000 to three of the five large packing firms; that W. L. Clouts of Pittsburgh, a director in the Chamber, also was a director in a bank which had loaned $450,000 to the packers; that William B. Dean of St. Paul, Minn., a member of the committee of the Chamber which framed the report criticising the commission, was a director of the First National Bank of St. Paul, which had negotiated loans aggregating $2,125,000 to the packers, and that L. E. Pearson, another director of the Chamber, was an officer in the Irving National Bank of New York, the loans of which to packers have totalled $1,593,750. Mr. Colver also said that Samuel McRoberts, a former Vice President of the Chamber, was connected with the National City Bank of New York, which has made large loans to the packing interests, while banks connected with J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, also made such loans.

Most of the loans were negotiated since June 30, 1917, Mr. Colver told the committee. Some of them were unsecured and others were secured by Liberty bonds.

Loans by Morgan banks to the packers were not totaled by Mr. Colver, but figures he read from nearly a dozen New York banks connected with Morgan & Co. amounted to approximately $3,000,000.

Mr. Colver said that the commission's investigation of the packers had been made at the instigation of President Wilson in a letter to the Chairman dated Feb. 7, 1917, and later the report on profiteering was delivered in response to a Senate resolution.

"Overwhelming evidence in our hands established a justification for our position," he said. "In making the investigation we were obeying the will of the President and Congress, which was not to build up a case but to establish facts."

Mr. Colver pointed out that Harry A. Wheeler, President of the Chamber, was Vice President of the Union Trust Company of Chicago, and that George E. Marcey, President of the Armour Grain Company, was a Director in the Union Trust Company. J. Ogden Armour, head of the packing concern, according to the witness, owns 64 per cent. of the stock in the grain company and other members of the Armour family own 22.9 per cent.

Loans made to the packers by the Union Trust Company up to June 30, 1917, he said, totaled $674,531, most of which was to Armour & Co. and to the Cudahy Packing Company.

WILL AID PUBLIC UTILITY.

New Finance Corporation to Assist Portland Power Company.

It was learned yesterday that in all probability the first public utility company to receive financial aid from the Essential Industries Finance Corporation, now in the process of formation, would be the Portland Railway, Light and Power Company of Portland, Ore. There are a number of details and formalities which have to be attended to before the Finance Corporation can begin operations, and it certainly will not undertake any financing until after the Liberty Loan campaign.

The Portland Railway, Light and Power Company owns and operates practically all of the street railways in Portland, Ore., and vicinity; and it also does most of the electric light and power business of that city. The company has $4,000,000 of notes due on Nov. 1. These notes matured on May 1 last, but were extended for six months at 6 per cent. The notes originally matured May 1, 1917, but were extended for one year.

The company has outstanding $15,000,000 of common stock, on which 75 per cent. has been paid in; and $5,000,000 each of first and second preferred stock, the second preferred being noncumulative. Besides the notes the company has outstanding $34,646,000 of bonds.

The business of the company is of a character which is essential to the prosecution of the war by reason of the fact that it supplies transportation, light, and power to the shipyards and other war industries.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices were strong in a moderately active close yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final quotations in a majority of the issues were at the highest levels of the session and represented substantial gains. A spirited demand for steel and equipment shares in the final hour of trading made for increased values in these issues and had a good influence on the remainder of the industrial list.

TO MAKE A SURVEY OF FUEL WASTAGE

Every Steam Power Plant Manager in the State Will Receive a Questionnaire.

ADVICE ON SAVING COAL

Fuel Administration Hopes Proper Firing Will Make Up for Bituminous Shortage.

The Bureau of Conservation of the United States Fuel Administration has begun a survey by questionnaire of the steam power plants in New York. Announcement of this fact was made by Charles A. Flynn, Chairman of the New York County Conservation Committee, at a meeting of the Merchants' Association yesterday. It is the opinion of the National Fuel Administration that nearly all plants waste coal, and it was to find out just how much they wasted that the survey was undertaken.

Mr. Flynn said that if the power plant managers conscientiously answered the questionnaire, and then conscientiously followed the suggestions of the Fuel Administration, which would be made, the entire 80,000,000 tons shortage in bituminous coal would be made up and every home in the country kept warm this Winter.

One of the audience inquired if the Fuel Administration could not improve the 'coal delivered to power plants.

"I do not know of any way," Mr. Flynn replied. "To whom, for instance, would you send your share of poor coal? What industry is better able to use more of such coal than you are? You must remember that the bituminous situation is very grave, and it may be necessary, for a time, to stop shipping anthracite coal to catch up with tidewater needs for bituminous."

The Fuel Administration requires that the questionnaires be returned within two weeks. They will then be examined and an official rating will be given to each plant, the ratings running from Class 1 to Class 5. Those plants which are found to have an efficiency of 80 per cent. or better will be placed in Class 1. The plants in Class 5 will be those which show as low an efficiency as 20 per cent. Improvement in a plant's rating may be obtained by making such improvements as will produce a greater conservation of coal. Plants which receive low ratings, and make no move to improve them, will be the first to have their supply of fuel restricted.

C. A. Graves, Administrative Engineer for the State Fuel Administration, gave a short talk on the general subject of fuel conservation. "Comparatively few men putting up power plants," said Mr. Graves, "provide an adequate system for checking up the amount of fuel used and the amount of heating value obtained from it. Each plant should have scales on which to weigh every pound of coal used, and close attention should be paid to the kind of draft, and how it affects the heating system. How many of you here know how much good heating material is thrown off by your plants every day in the form of smoke and chimney draft? Too much draft cools the boiler tubes and much coal is wasted in the attempt to vaporize the water.

"Defective firing is one of the most prolific sources of wastage. For anthracite coal, fifteen pounds of air, or draft, is needed to fire one pound of coal. As much draft as possible should come through the ashpit, in order that it may come into direct contact with the fire. A level bed of coal, with no holes in it, produces the greatest amount of heat. Then, too, the matter of how the coal is shoveled gets little attention. If the coal is shoveled properly the fuel consumption can be reduced to the minumum and yet a good head of steam may be maintained."

The State Fuel Administration will hold a meeting for power plant engineers and firemen in Cooper Union tomorrow night, at which experts on the use of coal will speak and answer questions.

YEAR'S SHIPBUILDING SETS WORLD'S RECORD

American Yards Turned Out 1,956,455 Tons in Last 12 Months, Greatest in History.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—American shipyards established a new world's record today by bringing the total construction for the twelve months since Sept. 26, 1917, up to 1,956,455 gross tons. The previous world's record for twelve months was made by the British Government during the calendar year 1913, when 1,932,153 gross tons were launched.

The figures in connection with this remarkable record, which placed the United States unquestionably in the lead as the greatest shipbuilding nation, were supplied by the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce. The construction figures, like those of the British Admiralty on which the 1913 British record was based, include all construction of over 100 gross tons. All of the American ships included in the total announced have been officially numbered by the bureau.

There apparently is no further reason to doubt that the output of the American yards will increase rapidly from this time and that a much larger total will be turned out during the twelve months to come. All of the officials are agreed that the United States will not, from this time, relinquish its place as the leading shipbuilding nation.

E. T. Chamberlain, Commissioner of the Bureau of Navigation, set forth the facts in this memorandum which he sent today to Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board:

"We have gone 'over the top' this morning in shipbuilding. In the twelve months ended just now (10 A. M. Sept. 26) American shipyards have built and the Commerce Department, Bureau of Navigation, has officially numbered 1,956,455 gross tons, passing the previous high record of the United Kingdom for 1913 calendar year, 1,932,153 gross tons launched, of which 1,703,287 gross tons completed (ocean vessels).

"The United States for twelve months to date completed 1,956,455 gross tons and the United Kingdom for eleven months ended Aug. 31 completed 1,512,-640 gross tons. Together, 3,469,095 tons completed exceeds the world's record, 3,332,882 gross tons, launched by all nations in the calendar year 1913."

It is believed that within a short time the output of the American yards will be considerably in excess each month of the total sinkings by German submarines, including the allied and neutral ships destroyed.

Extensive preparations are being made to man the new ships. The Navy Department is training 22,000 officers and 200,000 men in place on ships which are turned over by the Shipping Board to the War Department. These ships will be used as transports and for the carrying of munitions and other supplies. Under the United States Shipping Board, an additional 4,000 men are being trained each month as civilian crews to man ships in other services.

Medals for Naon and Da Gama.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Secretary Lansing today presented to Ambassador Naon of Argentina and Ambassador De Gama of Brazil, the medals voted them by Congress for their part in the conference at Niagara Falls several years ago for settlement of differences between the United States and Mexico. The ceremony took place at the State Department. Mr. Lansing addressed the diplomats an expression of the thanks of the United States. The medal for former Ambassador Suarez of Chile has been sent to him at his home. Ambassador De Gama is about to return to Brazil to become Foreign Minister.

WARRANT FOR MAYOR SMITH

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 26.—A warrant for the arrest of Mayor Smith on charges of misbehavior and misdemeanor in office was issued this afternoon. The affidavit, made by Otto T. Mallery, Treasurer of the Playgrounds Association, accuses the Mayor of "illegal, wrongful and abusive" exercise of his official power in forcing the appointment of Edward R. Gudehus, "an incompetent and unfit person," as Supervisor of Recreation. Mr. Gudehus, a former political reporter, before his appointment as head of the city playgrounds was Secretary to State Senator E. H. Vare, one of the Republican leaders of the city.

Magistrate Carson, who issued the warrant, fixed Oct. 2 for a hearing. At the same time he wrote to the Mayor informing him that he would not be arrested on assurance of his presence at the hearing.

This is the second time the Mayor has been arrested since taking office. He is now awaiting trial in connection with the notorious Fifth Ward case in which a policeman was killed at the primary election a year ago.

EGGS.—0,494 packages. Arrivals continue light, the demand has been quite active, stocks of desirable quality are clearing up closely, and the market still maintains a strong tone, with some further advance in quotations. At present prices, however, some dealers are showing a more conservative feeling, and in some places the demand appears at the close to be slackening a little. Accumulations have been considerably reduced, but are still fairly liberal of medium and ordinary qualities, but these are generally held at better prices than are acceptable for them last week. Good dirties and chicken checks are firm and in sellers' favor. Fancy nearby white eggs are scarce and salable at rather better prices than previously reported, and there is some reduction in the supply of medium and lower grades, although these are still quite plentiful in some stores and meeting only a little demand. HAYS DENOUNCES FORD AS PACIFIST

Senator Townsend Also Attacks the President's Candidate in Michigan Convention.

SEE STATE'S HONOR IN PERIL

Administration Charged with Vacillation and Inefficiency—State Officers Renominated.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 26.—Patriotism was the dominant theme at the Republican State Convention here today. Resolutions demanding that the war be fought to a victorious finish and a conclusive peace were adopted.

All the speakers, including Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Senator Charles E. Townsend, and Governor Albert M. Sleeper declared the surest means to this end was the return to power of the Republican Party.

All the present holders of State offices for which the convention met to choose candidates were renominated by acclamation. They were Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughan, Attorney General Alex Groesbeck, Auditor General O. B. Fuller, and State Treasurer Samuel Odell.

Both Mr. Hays and Senator Townsend criticised Henry Ford as a Senatorial possibility, terming him a pacifist who opposed war, and an unbeliever in the American soldier. Reference also was made indirectly to Mr. Ford in the resolution adopted. The platform advocates an amendment to the primary law to prohibit a man from seeking office on more than one ticket. Henry Ford in the August primaries made the Senatorial race on both the Democratic and Republican tickets.

The convention recorded itself as unequivocally in favor of woman suffrage and nationwide prohibition; recommended the fixing of prices on all commodities, "including cotton and other products of the South as well as wheat from the North," and declared for Federal control of public utilities needed to prosecute the war.

Senator Townsend charged the national Administration with inexperience, inefficiency, and vacillation, and declared that, although President Wilson told Congress politics was adjourned, Democratic politics never was more active than when the President sent for Henry Ford—a man, he said, "who opposed war and who felt soldiers were murderers"—and invited him to become a candidate for the United States Senate.

Charging that the Democratic Party had attempted to use the war for partisan purposes, Mr. Hays urged that the war be kept out of politics and that partisanship be kept out of the management of the war. The two great parties, he declared, should work together to a common end—peace with victory.

ANSWERS HAYS'S CHARGE.

Tumulty Learns That a Soldier Published Wisconsin Campaign "Ad."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Secretary Tumulty made public today a letter from William J. Cochran, director of publicity of the Democratic National Committee, denying that the committee or any one connected with the Davies campaign was responsible for an advertisement published last Spring calling upon Wisconsin soldiers at Camp Grant, Illinois, to vote for Joseph E. Davies for Senator, because "President Wilson, your Commander in Chief," desired all loyal Americans to do so.

In the recent exchange of letters between Mr. Tumulty and Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee on the subject of bringing the war into politics, Mr. Hays quoted and condemned this advertisement. Mr. Tumulty asked Mr. Cochran for a statement on the subject, and in his letter replying the latter wrote:

"No such advertisement as the one you quote was inserted in any Wisconsin paper. After the election, I was informed that a Wisconsin soldier, a non-commissioned officer, temporarily at Camp Grant, acting upon his own initiative, had inserted the advertisement you have quoted in The Rockford Star, published at Rockford, Ill. The soldier, who was very earnest in the support of the candidacy of Mr. Davies, wrote this advertisement himself, and paid for it with his own money. The Rockford Star in an editorial on June 26 revealed that the advertisement was an original composition, right from a soldier's brain."

STICK to known values is the process of reasoning employed by our customers—the futility of taking chances does not enter into their calculations. Long experience has taught them that reliance on our clothes for men and boys means highest quality without consideration of the price, which always is conservative and modest.

MEN'S SUITS COST $250 IN GERMANY

Costumes for Women $150 to $250 or More

Special Despatch to THE EVENING SUN.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—If it is any consolation to the man whose tailor has just jacked up prices about 35 per cent. from their former level, let him consider that the Germans, as is shown by German advertisements reaching here, are now paying $350 for suits of clothes. This is the price of an ordinary civilian suit, such as would have cost at the beginning of the year about $100 and at the beginning of the war about $34, or a little more at the better tailoring establishments.

The Imperial Union for Man's Fashions, which is an organization of German tailors, attempts to justify these charges by the enormous rise in the cost of materials, but the Berliner Tageblatt in a recent issue says that these prices are called extortionate in competent quarters.

Another German Note!

Even if the man who has just interviewed his tailor doesn't get all the consolation this Evening Sun article suggests, we simply can't help remarking, in our un-kultured American way, that it is the first German "advance" we have heard of in weeks.

Better still, we can impart a great deal of our satisfaction to the gentleman of the first paragraph, if we can only persuade him to visit one of our four convenient stores.

Certainly, it is worth knowing that the chief difference between clothes so well-made and so smartly cut as our all-wool Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes, and the clothes he has been wearing, is approximately the price of an extra Liberty Bond.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Good Fall Clothes

With everything going up and up, it is really surprising that you can buy Fall Overcoats, so well made as Hart Schaffner & Marx make them, for $28, and Fall Suits for $30—but you can, NOW. Also, there are many other interesting all-wool values at $30, $35, $40, $45 and $50—NOW.

Gillette Service for Men who refuse to Waste Time

It will take you only five minutes to see a Gillette Service Expert
This Service is free. It means a finer shave every morning of your life

NO MATTER how well you know your Gillette Safety Razor, our Service Experts may be able to show you how to double the shaving comfort and convenience you are getting from your Gillette.

It may be the "little knack" of holding the blade almost flat to the face. It may be the angle-stroke you are not getting just right—or the proper adjustment for your beard and skin.

Take a few minutes to see a Gillette Service Expert at one of these stores.

And by all means, bring your razor in with you. The longer you have had it the more likely it is to have been dropped, bent or knocked out of alignment.

Our Experts will restore the adjustment. They will not charge you for this service —and it means a first-class shave from your Gillette every day.

The men who value time and right methods are using the Gillette.

They save from ten to fifteen minutes every shave. They don't have to "wait their turn."

Every quarter saved will buy another U. S. Thrift Stamp—or help buy a Liberty Bond.

REALLY, there are only two reasons any man can give for not adopting the Gillette. Either he just keeps putting it off—or else he thinks he can't shave himself.

Twelve million Gillette users will tell him that this is one of the big mistakes of his life.

It is the razor for you—and for every man. No Stropping—No Honing.

Are You Getting Maximum Results From Your Gillette

The Gillette Service Experts and all Gillette dealers want to be of service to every Gillette user in town.

They will show you that "little knack" of the Gillette Shave—how to prepare the face for shaving; the correct angle-stroke; the adjustment for a light or a close shave.

Bring in your Gillette, have it looked over. It may be damaged, bent, out of alignment. If so, they will put it in first-class condition again, free of charge. They may make some valuable suggestions, any way.

When you shave tomorrow morning try this—

Lather the beard thoroughly, and rub well in—that's essential with any shave.

Put in a new blade and screw the handle down tight. Then, if you want a specially close shave, unscrew the handle a slight turn.

Hold the razor naturally and easily and tilt the handle so you can just feel the blade engage the beard.

(Here's where some men make a mistake. They tilt the handle up or down too much.

Then shave with short, slanting strokes.

Keep the edge of the blade as nearly flat against the skin as you can. Any man will catch the "little knack" of using his Gillette in one or two shaves. In fact, when the Gillette is properly used, the beard slips off without your knowing it.

The all-important thing is to lather well and to hold the razor easily, with the handle tilted so that the blade just engages the beard.
